Facts About Brooklyn Lots

Just beyond the thickly built-up sections of Brooklyn are tracts of partly developed land---not many, and, by comparison, not large. These are being bought up by syndicates, some as investments to be held for inevitable great enhancement in value within a few years, and others to be resold in small plots.

A very few of these tracts are left, and they offer an unexampled opportunity for investors. The smaller plots, in parcels of from one lot to one hundred lots, are to-day selling at prices that in a few months will appear ridiculously low.

Lots in the Bronx, the same distance from Manhattan, and an hour's travel instead of 15 minutes by the projected transit lines of Brooklyn, are from six to ten times higher in price.

We are fully conversant with the situation, are posted on values in these various localities, and will be pleased to give information at our office or by mail. We can arrange, if necessary, to carry the larger portion of the purchase prices on most liberal terms.

A LOT. A LOT.

You Are the Judge. Which of These Three Suits You Best?

LIFE INSURANCE. STOCKS. REAL ESTATE.

85,000,000 of people who represent the pulse and heart of this Great Republic move backward and forward in the great channel of life for the struggle of fortune.

The great thirst and hunger for money leads the mind of man to investment, and he alone practically gambles with the future to increase his wealth and attain prosperity.

The public Press of to-day feeds the entire community with columns of deception practiced by the huge life insurance corporations of this country, who receive their cash from the hard earnings of the wage-earner and expend same in the channels which apparently increase their own personal wealth and their aims. Surrounded by friends, relatives, and political influence, whose motto evidently lies in the theatrical success of this last season in which the humorous horse trader, "David Harum," pursued but one method—"Do others or they will do you."

LIFE INSURANCE HAS PRACTICALLY PROVEN TO BE A ROBBERY

or, rather, to be more diplomatic, "A PROFESSIONAL COURTESY," to absorb the policyholder's cash. Statistics have already proven that only about sixty per cent. of the people's money is turned in for the purpose of mutual benefit and applied in the channels of insurance. Forty per cent. is simply taken care of by the promoters of these huge corporations, and they are made the Giants of Finance.

600,000 people in this Great Metropolis—one in every seven carry a policy of life insurance. All hard-earned money wrought for and paid by the sweat of the wage-earner's brow and laid away in the vaults of the Life Insurance Corporations, with the Trust Companies of New York used as a lever to buy and sell men's souls and wipe out any righteous individual who would dare to contend or question the methods of Life Insurance practiced by the officers of these corporations.

INSURANCE AS WRITTEN IN THE POLICY—INSURANCE AS PROMISED BY THESE COMPANIES

looks like a star of wealth shining in the Heavens and making bright the path of future to every man who invests his dollars there. But the last three months by the Investigating Committee of the State of New York have proved that there are better channels for the wage-earners than the Life Insurance Companies of America.

Stocks in Wall Street lie in the same category. The streets downtown to-day are filled with the souls of millions of men whose echoes for years have filled the air. "KEEP AWAY." "KEEP AWAY," "DON'T BE A BRAINLESS FOOL."

Every investor there is but a pebble of sand on the seashore of time, to be wiped away by the great waves of greed and hurled far into the deep sea of eternity.

You Ask Yourself the question, WHERE WILL I INVEST?

WHERE WILL I GET VALUE FOR MY MONEY?—BUY A PIECE OF LAND.

LONG ISLAND, THE LAND OF PARADISE.

For 5 years we have been buying and selling 5,000 acres in and around what we consider the wage-earner's and the Investor's Paradise. Our volume of business, disposing of nearly $1,000,000 worth of land to more than 5,000 people, gives evidence it is progressing and developing to the welfare and profit of the investor.

WHY ARE THEY ATTRACTED? WHY DO THEY BUY?

LONG ISLAND.
FOR SALE.

AT THE GATEWAY OF NEW YORK.

Shrewd and far-seeing investors are rapidly obtaining control of big tracts of land on Long Island. With the completion of the Pennsylvania R. R. Tunnel through the heart of New York and under the North and East Rivers and with all the other vast transit improvements, which are now under way, the outlying stretches of the Borough of Queens will be brought closer to the centre of New York than the Bronx is to-day. Then will follow the greatest boom in Real Estate on Long Island that has ever been known in the history of this country.

Hundreds of square miles will be added to the future Greater New York. Hundreds of thousands of empty acres on Long Island will soon be transformed into small lots and small comfortable homes.

It is hard to point to any piece of ground on this extraordinary island that will not shortly be worth more than the most extravagant price asked for it to-day.

New York is growing fast. It is growing to be a city of ten million people.

The opportunity is now ripe for laying the foundation of independence through Real Estate Investments, wisely made, in Long Island.

68 Acres at Hollis

Twenty-five minutes from the centre of New York, two blocks from a double-track trolley line, and 60 feet from the Long Island R. R., which is now being electrified, and will reduce the running time to the heart of New York to 15 minutes. This farm can be cut up into about 1,000 lots. Property in the vicinity is now selling for $1,000 a lot. PRICE PER ACRE, $2,400. Terms 15 per cent. on contract; 25 per cent. on taking title, and the balance on easy terms.

28 acres in the City of New York

In the Borough of Queens, near a double track trolley line, with a Subway station to be built on the property. Just as near the centre of Manhattan as the Bronx is to-day. Price per acre, $1,500. Terms to suit.

A Magnificent Country Estate

With 900 feet lake frontage.

This lake is one of the finest sheets of water within 100 miles of the city. It is 2 miles long and 1½ miles wide. With the completion of the Pennsylvania Railroad tunnel this property can be reached in less than one hour from New York. Distance 40 miles. Price, per acre, $30. Fifty per cent. can remain on mortgage for five years at 5 per cent.

1500 acres on the Wading River Division

The only large available tract of land on Long Island. Price $15 per acre. Terms to suit.

A large tract of land near Greater New York, now ripe for subdivision and suitable for building lots. A chance to make a profit from 200 to 400 per cent.

500 acres 38 miles from New York, at a prominent railroad station. Has abundance of fine shade trees and a beautiful hill overlooking Long Island Sound. Can readily be sold for $700 to $800 per acre. Can be bou[ght] now for $250 an acre.

SEND FOR IT TO-DAY

BEFORE INVESTING ANOTHER DOLLAR IN REAL ESTATE

Let us mail you sample copy of that interesting, up-to-date, live Real Estate Publication, which fully and accurately describes the tremendous development of Real Estate now in progress in all parts of Greater New York, and points out advantageous localities where rapid advances will take place and how fortunes in Real Estate constantly are made. It also explains how people of moderate means can make by small monthly payments exceptional investments in Greater New York Real Estate that will eventually net them large profits. It is a lively paper that every man alive to opportunities should read. LET US SEND YOU A FREE COPY TO-DAY. SPEAR'S AMERICAN EXCHANGE, Real Estate Department, 171 Broadway, New York.

MY FREE BOOK is called "How Money Grows," and tells: How to tell a good investment; how to invest small sums; how you can convert $100 into $358.8; how to guard against poor investments, etc. etc. If you are able to save $10 or more a month from your income, you should not fail to own a copy. Not an advertisement of any investment, but full to the brim with information that every one should possess before they invest a dollar. Ask for it on a postal and I'll send it FREE by return mail. EX-FIRE CHAPLAIN CALLED.

Rev. Charles T. Walkley Chosen for Rector of Grace Church, Orange.

Special to The New York Times.

ORANGE, N. J., Oct. 14.—The Rev. Charles T. Walkley of Oakland, Cal., a former Chaplain of the New York Fire Department, has been called to be rector of Grace Episcopal Church, Orange, to succeed the Rev. Dr. Alexander Mann, who accepted a call to Trinity Church, Boston, Mass., last Summer.

Mr. Walkley preached at Grace Church during the vacation of the curate, the Rev. George A. Warner, and made a most favorable impression on the congregation. He was born in Newport, near Covington, Ky., in 1860, and was graduated from Kenyon College, Gambia, Ohio. His first work was in Xenia, where he married the daughter of Judge Sherer of the Ohio Supreme Court.

Mr. Walkley is a son of the Rev. Charles Walkley, a Chaplain in the United States Army who is now stationed at Fort Monroe. He secured his first important appointment in 1901, when he was made curate of Grace Church, New York. Dr. Huntington placed him in charge of the work among the firemen of New York, and later he was made a Fire Chaplain. Two years ago he was elected rector of St. Paul's Church, Oakland.

MORE PACKERS SUMMONED.

Men Who Sold Out Called to Tell of Restraining Contracts.

CHICAGO, Oct. 14.—Subpoenas for former officers of packing companies that were consolidated into the National Packing Company and for former officers of the National Packing Company, in a Federal examination were issued to-day. They are ordered to produce records, books and papers. An attempt is being made to show that the men subpoenaed signed contracts, or knew of such papers, binding the signers not to engage in the same line of business after the sale.

The Government will try to show that the National Packing Company is, in effect, a clearing house and that, by its organization, competition was thwarted. The list of witnesses includes the following: Thomas E. Wells, ex-President; Benjamin S. Wilson, ex-Secretary and Treasurer of the Continental Packing Company; Fred Cowing, Secretary of the Anglo-American Provision Company; E. F. Ribbins, ex-President, and T. W. Taliaferro, ex-Secretary of the Omaha Packing Company.

SUCCESSOR TO MGR. CHAPELLE

Bishop Blenk, Porto Ricans Hear, May Be Chosen for Archbishop.

SAN JUAN, P. R., Oct. 14.—The priests of Porto Rico believe that they are about to lose Bishop Blenk, who in December will have presided over this diocese for six years. The belief is that the Bishops soon to meet at New Orleans will recommend to the Vatican the elevation of Mgr. Blenk to be Archbishop of New Orleans in the vacancy caused by the death of Archbishop Chapelle.

Bishop Blenk has lived in New Orleans since he was three years old, was a parish priest there, and the President of a college in the archdiocese. He was a member of the council of Mgr. Chapelle, who was his close friend. He declined the office of Archbishop of Porto Rico about a year ago. Mgr. Blenk said to-day that he knew absolutely nothing concerning the matter.

OBJECT TO THE KEEP PLAN.

Western Merchants to Oppose Creation of a Purchasing Agent.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 14.—Chicago business men, manufacturers, and others throughout the Middle West are vigorously opposed to the suggestion of the Keep Commission that a central agency be established for the purchase of supplies used in the several departments.

Senator Hopkins of Illinois called at the White House to-day to talk with the President about the matter. He expects to discuss the subject also with Assistant Secretary Keep. It is declared that such action by Congress will be opposed seriously.

Silver Service for John L. Jordan.

John L. Jordan, who recently resigned the office of Assistant Superintendent of Buildings in order to resume his connection with his father's firm, John Jordan & Son, builders, was presented with a dinner and tea service of silver plate at a dinner last night at O'Neill's restaurant, Twenty-second Street and Sixth Avenue. The service was the gift of the employes of the Bureau of Buildings.

RANK OF CITIES IN STATE.

Schenectady, Gaining 84.2 Per Cent. Since 1900, Ninth in List.

ALBANY, Oct. 14.—Having found the population of all the cities of the State except New York, the State Enumeration Bureau to-day published a table showing changes in rank of the cities with respect to population. In the following list of twenty-six cities the first figures shows its rank in 1905, the second in 1900, and the third in 1890:

Rochester	3	3	3	Kingston	16	14	16
Syracuse	4	4	5	Watertown	17	19	22
Albany	5	5	4	Poughkeepsie	18	15	14
Troy	6	6	6	Mt. Vernon	19	20	29
Utica	7	7	7	Cohoes	20	16	13
Yonkers	8	8	9	Amsterdam	21	21	18
Schenectady	9	11	17	Oswego	22	18	15
Binghamton	10	9	8	New Rochelle	23	26	33
Elmira	11	10	10	Gloversville	24	23	23

The part which electrical development has played in the growth of cities in the last five years is shown by the fact that Schenectady, the headquarters of the General Electric Company, heads the list in percentage increase with a gain of 84.2 per cent. of population since 1900. Rensselaer gained 43.5 per cent. Niagara Falls, where industries have centred about the big generating plants, is fourth, with a percentage gain of 36.5. The New York City suburban development puts New Rochelle third, with 39.1 per cent. gain, and Yonkers with 28.7 per cent. increase, sixth.

HEART MISPLACED, LOVE LOST

Romance of North Carolina Man Ends in Strange Fashion.

Special to The New York Times.

HILLSBOROUGH, N. C., Oct. 14.—A most strange case of shattered affection is now attracting the attention of a dozen counties in this section of North Carolina.

Charles Burbank wears his heart on the right side instead of the left, as reputable physicians can testify, and that has caused the trouble. The man fell in love. The woman was just as much in love with him as he was with her. They were engaged and the wedding day was set.

Then came the discovery. The woman found the man's heart fluttering on the right, also wrong, side of his body. For some reason, not understood by her, from that minute her affection waned. Why a heart four inches misplaced cannot beat as constantly as a normal one she could not explain. Any way, the engagement has been broken.

KNIGHT QUITS THE CLUB.

Past Commander of Grant Post Says His Comrades Were Snubbed.

As a result of the refusal of the Brooklyn Union League Club to allow Grant Post, G. A. R., to use its clubhouse for a reception to Corp. Tanner, Past Commander Henry W. Knight of the Post has written a letter of resignation to the club.

For nineteen years the post and the club have held a joint banquet on the anniversary of Gen. Grant's birthday, and the relations between the two organizations have always been pleasant. There was much indignation among the war veterans, therefore, when the club turned down the reception proposition. In his letter of resignation to the club, of which he has been a member since its organization, Mr. Knight said:

"Feeling that my comrades, with whom I have served in the dark days of the rebellion, were snubbed by the action of the Governors of the club, I cannot longer remain in it."

NEW TUBERCULOSIS HOSPITAL

Permission has been granted by the Trustees of Brookhaven for the establishment of an open air sanitarium for tuberculosis, between Patchogue and Medford, L. I. Since the plan was broached some time ago its advocates have been fighting for a site. Richmond and Islip refused to have the sanitarium.

Brookhaven's Trustees held a hearing on the matter. Dr. Horace Greely of 147 Pacific Street, Brooklyn, explained to them the proposed institution in detail, telling them that owing to the sanitary regulations such a camp would be healthier than the average community. The hospital's regulations are to be subject to revision by the Brookhaven Board of Health. It is to be exclusively for Long Island sufferers from tuberculosis.

TELLS OF CROWE'S PLOT HERE

Plan to Hold Railroad Man's Child for $50,000, Says Pinkerton.

CHICAGO, Oct. 14.—William A. Pinkerton declared to-day that Pat Crowe, the alleged kidnapper of Edward Cudahy, Jr., was suspected of complicity in a well-organized plot to kidnap and hold for $50,000 ransom the child of a prominent New York Railroad man.

The Cudahy kidnapping at Omaha occurred several weeks after the New York plot was discovered, and the plan followed there was along similar lines. According to Pinkerton, investigation tended to show that Crowe had threatened to assassinate General Counsel Spencer of the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy Railroad Company at Hannibal or St. Joseph, Mo., and then kidnap a member of Mr. Spencer's family.

AUTOIST FORCED TO FLEE.

Dr. Elwood C. Davis of 1,050 Boston Road, while traveling in his automobile along Morris Avenue last night, ran down a little Italian girl named Amelia Ambrusina, of 527 Morris Avenue. She was taken to the Lincoln Hospital, suffering from a fractured arm and contusions.

The accident caused much excitement in Frog Hollow, which is the "Little Italy" of the Bronx. Dr. Elwood waited to see that the child was taken care of, but the threats of the Italians forced him to leave in a hurry. A policeman of the Alexander Avenue station called later at his house and took him to the station, where he gave bail.

DRANK POISON FOR SODA.

PATERSON, Oct. 14.—John Hornberger of 624 Main Street is in St. Joseph's Hospital in a critical condition from drinking cyanide of potassium in mistake for soda water at the Great Notch Hotel.

Hornberger drove there to-day, and after delivering groceries asked for a drink of soda at the bar. Only soft drinks are sold there, and a young girl waited on him. After taking the stuff he fell to the floor, and an ambulance was called. Antidotes were administered promptly by the surgeon, and the patient was hurried with all speed to the hospital. The poison was used for cleaning purposes, and the girl got hold of the wrong bottle.

PRAISE FOR MISS ROOSEVELT.

Missionary Says Her Democracy Was Lesson to Filipinos.

COLUMBUS, Ohio, Oct. 14.—In a letter just received here the Rev. C. E. Rath, one of the representatives of the Presbyterian Board of Foreign Missions at Tachohan, Philippine Islands, says that the Filipinos were surprised because Miss Alice Roosevelt, on her recent visit, did not appear in a royal robe sparkling with jewels, a crown on her head, and with everything that should go with royalty. "I am glad she came to us as she did," he said, "for she could have done nothing better to illustrate the democratic spirit of America."

American Accountants to Dine.

The American Association of Public Accountants will hold its annual dinner at the Hotel Astor Tuesday evening, to celebrate the eighteenth anniversary of its existence.

NEW YORK IS FULL OF ITALIAN BRIGANDS

VICTIMS AFRAID TO TALK

Detective Sergeant Petrosino Advises Reputable Italians to Organize and Seek Federal Aid.

New York is full of Italian brigands, according to Detective Sergeant Petrosino, who knows more about Italians than any other man on the police force. They hail, he says, from Calabria and Sicily, and are almost as bold as they are at home.

Armed men keep nightly watches in the Italian quarter to protect their wives and little ones. The police are powerless, for when they make an arrest it is impossible to get evidence.

This was demonstrated by the case of Felici Pitira, whom the detectives believe to be at the head of the outlaws. They declare that he was implicated in the murder of Spechano de Luvlo on Oct. 19, but even the dead man's brother-in-law declines to testify against him, so great is the fear inspired by the Black Hand among the Italians.

Pitira was arrested Thursday night and released yesterday for want of evidence.

"There are thousands of Black Hand robbers and assassins in New York and Brooklyn," said Detective Sergeant Petrosino yesterday, "and they are a rapidly growing menace to public safety. They are the descendants of generations of brigands from Reggio-Calabria and the Palermo Province of Sicily. Many of the older people among them were brigands before they came to America. They come from the small villages up in the mountains, and form themselves into groups when they arrive in this country. Then they open barber shops, saloons, and fruit shops as blinds, so that they can claim to be earning an honest living.

"When this blackmailing business was first started, some eight years ago, its leaders attacked men who had committed crimes in their own country and had afterward gotten rich in America. These people paid up when written to for money.

"Then they branched out, taking in their countrymen who were known to have saved up money, and sent letters to them demanding that a certain sum be paid at once under penalty of death.

"From one to two dozen Italians come into this office every day to show me letters from Black Hand thugs, and ask for protection.

"One affidavit in Italy would be sufficient to send 500 of these scoundrels to jail, but here we must first prove that they have no lawful means of subsistence, which is very difficult.

"Pitira, who was released for lack of evidence, has never worked, and frequents the worst resorts on the east side. When arrested on Thursday he had $1,380 in his possession. In Italy or London Pitira would have had to prove how he obtained that money.

"I do not know what we are to do unless the Federal Government takes the matter in hand.

"The officials in Italy who grant passports for good character to their criminals in order to get rid of them in America should be fined heavily. I have advised some of the influential members of the Italian colony here to form a vigilance league for their own protection, as they do in Italy, and I believe that a meeting is shortly to be held to discuss plans.

"At present the Black Hand desperadoes only attack their own countrymen, but, unless they are checked, they will get bolder and attack Americans. Last year two of them held up an old lady on a farm in Orange County and punctured her scalp with a stiletto while they demanded her money. They were caught and sent to the penitentiary for twenty years.

"The Italian newspapers here are afraid to denounce these criminals and help organize a protection league for their readers. Instead they try to hush the crimes up.

"My remedy would be to make a list of all suspects and bad characters and then let the Federal Government order them deported."

A well-dressed Italian handed Detective Petrosino a Black Hand letter last night, which demanded that $500 should be paid within forty-eight hours under pain of death. The letter commenced and ended with the words "In the name of the Father, Son, and Holy Ghost, Amen."

A prominent official of the Italian Government said yesterday that the Calabrians and Sicilians had been born in countries which had suffered from centuries of misrule, and that they were accustomed to redress their own wrongs. He denied that the Italian police helped criminals to come to America.

Representatives of the steamship companies engaged in the Italian trade said that the Italian police were careful to see that no returned criminals landed there unless in custody.

BOLD THIEVES STRIP A HOUSE.

Escape After Chase Through East New York, Forsaking Booty.

Four thieves with a wagon load of plunder were pursued by the police of East New York and a crowd of citizens yesterday amid wild excitement. The policemen kept up such a fusillade of shots that the thieves jumped from the wagon and disappeared. The vehicle was loaded with most of the household effects of Jacob Shiphouse of 375 Blake Avenue.

Early yesterday afternoon an express wagon, in which there were four men, drove up to the Shiphouse residence. The family was not at home, as the thieves were evidently aware. They gained admittance into the house by forcing the front door.

In the next hour they had taken from the house almost everything of value. The parlor furniture, most of the clothes of every member of the family, and all the silverware had been stored away in the wagon when Shiphouse appeared upon the scene.

"Hey, what are you doing there?" shouted Shiphouse to one of the men, who was coming out of the front door with a bundle of silverware under his arm.

"We are moving the family," replied the stranger in an off-hand manner, and the next minute he tripped up the unsuspecting Shiphouse, who went sprawling down the stairs. The fellow called for his thee companions, who dashed out of the house. The quartet then clambered into the wagon and drove off at top speed.

Shiphouse regained his feet and started after the thieves, loudly calling for help at the same time. In a few minutes a howling mob was in pursuit of the wagon. Policemen Broderick and several other bluecoats who had been attracted by the excitement joined in the chase. When they found that they were being out-distanced the policemen fired their revolvers after the fleeing men.

The chase led down the Eastern Parkway Boulevard, where the men suddenly pulled up their horse and leaped from the wagon. They sprinted in different directions, and when the pursuers reached the wagon they were not to be seen. Broderick mounted the wagon and drove it back to Shiphouse's residence, where the plunder was replaced.

From the appearance of the parlor it was evident that the thieves would have taken the piano had not Shiphouse appeared unexpectedly. The wagon was taken to the Liberty Avenue Station. It bears the name of an expressman in Rivington Street, Manhatan.

PANAMA OFFER TO PAY DEBT.

Will Share with Colombia According to Population on One Condition.

PANAMA, Oct. 14.—The Government denies the report that Panama will pay $1,000,000 to Colombia's foreign bondholders.

Panama will pay only its share of the debt in proportion to the population of the Isthmus at the time independence was declared, and only on condition of Colombia's agreement to pay the sums borrowed from the former State of Panama's Treasury.

Naval Academy Reopened.

ANNAPOLIS, Oct. 14.—The Naval Academy reopened to-day. The authorities announced that all danger from diphtheria was ended, and that the buildings had been thoroughly fumigated.

GRAY'S PEAK TUNNEL PLAN.

The Denver and Salt Lake Railway Tunnel and Mining Company, which several years ago undertook to tunnel the Continental Divide at Gray's Peak, Colorado, is making renewed efforts to finish the undertaking. It is said that the tunneling of Gray's Peak would shorten the possible railroad distance between Denver and Salt Lake City 100 miles.

L. B. Jones, a Director of the company, said yesterday that final estimates of the cost of the undertaking had not yet been made, as the company is now engaged in making a resurvey. Mr. Jones said that the expenditure involved was great and that the company had not obtained the necessary financial backing to finish the work. The length of the proposed tunnel is about 4¾ miles, of which from 4,000 to 5,000 feet have been completed.

HEMERY'S RACING CAR DAMAGED BY FIRE

BIG AUTO QUICKLY ABLAZE

While Hemery, the French chauffeur, and his team mate, Wagner, were cleaning their victorious car yesterday morning at Mineola preparatory to bringing it to town the car caught fire through the carelessness of some one who threw a lighted match on the oil-soaked ground. In an instant the car was wreathed in a mess of flames that caused those near by to run for safety. Hemery was almost beside himself with grief and rage over the accident.

It was a sorry ending for the splendid eighty-horse-power Darracq that represented a triumph of French manufacturing skill. Hemery understood his car and loved it as fondly as any trainer or owner ever loved a favorite trotter or race horse. Under his guidance the car has carried him to victory on more than one occasion. It was the same car that won the famous Ardennes circuit race in Belgium this year, when Hemery made the remarkable speed of 62 1-3 miles an hour for the entire distance of 373 miles. In Saturday's race he nearly equaled those figures, averaging 61½ miles.

The accident occurred just outside the garage at the Darracq headquarters at the Glenwood Hotel. Both of the French racing cars had been run out of the barn and the men were taking them apart, carefully examining every piece to see that everything was in perfect condition. The cars were to have been sent back to France on Thursday. Shortly after 8 o'clock the men began work, and soon a crowd gathered. The waste oil had been allowed to run out, and considerable gasoline had been spilled. The car, moreover, was covered with oil and grease, as it had not been touched since the final weighing in. One of the mechanicians was pouring out what gasoline was left in the tank when the cry arose:

"Look out, fire!"

The man had presence of mind to keep hold of the gasoline can as he ran out of danger. Instinctively Hemery and Wegner darted forward with a few old rags in their hands, but they were oil-soaked and blazed up the instant they were thrown over the car.

The fire traveled along the ground with lightning-like rapidity. For a second or two the crowd looked on dazed. Then some one called for sand, but it took some time to find suitable sand, and by that time the car was completely enveloped in flames. There was nothing to do but stand by and see it burn.

The rubber tires as they burned made great red circles of fire. All the woodwork burned like so much tinder. The excessive heat also melted the more delicate parts of the mechanism, destroying the magnets, the different connecting rods, the wires, the speed gearing, the braking, the wiring, and other parts of the car. When the blackened frame was finally cool enough to touch, Hemery and Wagner went to work feverishly to see how much of the car was still useful. It was found that the cylinders were in perfect condition. The frame, too, seemed all right. The charred hulk was taken to pieces during the day and packed up in sections for shipment to the Darracq quarters in this city. The damage was estimated roughly at between $1,000 and $2,000. New parts will be fitted as quickly as possible and the racer will then be returned to the French factory.

Wagner's Darracq was standing close by, and the fire had begun to singe the tires and woodwork on one side when, despite the terrific heat, a half dozen mechanicians rushed forward and by sheer strength pushed the 2,000-pound machine to safety. Attention was then turned to the barn. Many gallons of gasoline were stored there, and a third car used in practice had not been taken out. Hemery's car was within fifteen feet of the barn, and had there been any wind to speak of it would have been impossible to save the building. Fortunately there was scarcely any wind, but the paint on the door was blistered by the heat.

The news of the burning of Hemery's car traveled quickly, and before noon Jenatzy, Driver George Heath, S. B. Stevens, John B. Warden, Duray, Szisz and many others drove up to the Glenwood Hotel to see the car and offer sympathies to Hemery.

NOVELIST STARVED TO DEATH.

Prof. Hewett Finds That His Sister Died in Tanana Wilderness.

Special to The New York Times.

TACOMA, Wash., Oct. 15.—After a Summer of hard work, Prof. Hewett of Minnesota has established the fact that Mrs. White, his sister, died from starvation three years ago on the Upper Tanana River, and that her body was found and buried by fishermen.

Mrs. White went alone into the Upper Tanana wilderness, either to search for gold or to obtain material for writing a book. Her diary indicated the latter purpose. The remnants of several camps, each containing some of her belongings, were found. The objects discovered included clothing, the diary, and dental tools. She was a dentist and physician and her writings were well known.

Prof. Hewett took his family to Fairbanks in order to devote the year to clearing up the mystery. The Signal Corps has lent much assistance.

Mrs. White's diary contained a pitiful account of her sufferings from starvation. Long before she died she had given up hope of rescue.

TROLLEY CAR RUNS AWAY.

Twenty Persons Hurt in Stamford Smash and Panic.

Special to The New York Times.

STAMFORD, Conn., Oct. 15.—A crowded runaway street car here this afternoon caused a lot of excitement, a smash, and the shaking up and bruising of about a score of persons.

A string of cars, loaded with passengers returning from the baseball game, were speeding to Stamford when the accident happened. One of the cars, which had even its running bonrds crowded with humanity, had almost reached the top of Knapp's Hill, and two other cers were on the hill behind, when the power suddenly failed.

The motormen immediately put on the brakes. The load was too much for the brakes of the first one, however, and it started sliding down the hill. As it gathered momentum the motorman of the car behind attempted to run beckward to get out of the way, but the car behind him was too close to permit of quick action, and before the road wes clear the first car came smashing into his. He let go the brakes, however, and broke the force of the shock. The three cars then went racing down the hill.

On board the first two there was a bad panic. As soon as it became evident that a collision was coming there was a lively scrambis to get off. Men on the running boards of the runaway tumbled all over the road, and those inside fought for a chance to follow their example. Some of the badly frightened men shoved women and other men off the car in order to make wey for themselves.

Such incidents were repeated on the second car when it was seen thet a crash was coming. One man, in his anxiety to save his sweetheart, shoved off five persons who were in the same seat.

Miss Josephine Hickey had a narrow escape from death. She was pushed off by a big man who was struggling to get out of the first car and fell on the highway. She was rolling under the wheels when some one caught her skirt and pulled her out of danger.

Miss May Brooks, who also was pushed off, wes trampled by some of those who followed her. She swooned from pain and fright, but was revived by a physician.

The cers were stopped at the bottom of the hill and the power was soon turned on again.

FREES McADOO'S COUSIN.

But Magistrate Crane Speaks Plainly About Auto Speeding.

William G. McAdoo of Yonkers, a cousin of Police Commissioner McAdoo, was discherged in the Herlem Court yesterday when he was arreigned for violating the speed law. Magistrate Crane said he had no doubt as to Mr. McAdoo's guilt, but would give him the benefit of the doubt as to his intention. It was brought out in evidence that Mr. McAdoo et the time of the arrest seid to Policeman Gibney, "I am Commissioner McAdoo's cousin."

To this Gibney replied: "I don't care if you are his father. You are violating the law, and I know the Commissioner will uphold me in making the arrest."

In court Gibney seid that Mr. McAdoo was speeding his automobile at the rate of twenty-fivs miles an hour. He warned him once, but as no attention was paid to his warning, he arrested him. Mr. McAdoo plended that he did not know that he was going so fast.

"You know that you are guilty," said the Magistrate.

"Yes, I believe I em," replied Mr. McAdoo; "but the officer was insolent in making the arrest, and I will complain of him."

"No, you don't," interrupted Magistrate Crane. "What did this policeman say to you?"

Mr. McAdoo replied that he had rather insolently commanded him to shut down.

"You rich men think you can abuse the police," continued the Magistrate. "They have enough to contend with. You people are sane before you get in an automobile, but the very minute you get in one you become insane. You forget everything. You forget that you are still on earth. Some don't care for the men, women, and children on the streets.

"Rich men have heen abusing the police, and it is a wonder to me that they are not more insolent and resent it by thrashing some of them. This policeman is a good one, and I believe he did his duty. I am going to give you the benefit of the doubt as to intent, and discharge you."

Mr. McAdoo decided not to complain about the policeman.

DOUSED HUSBAND WITH ACID.

Wife Got the Poison to Commit Suicide, but Changed Her Mind.

Curtis Peck and Sophie Peck, his wife, who live at 13 Corbin Avenue, Jersey City, and have four children, quarreled yesterday because Peck did not return home until late. Peck left the house, and his wife prepered a dose of carbolic acid, intending to commit suicide. After pouring the acid into a cup Mrs. Peck changed her mind and followed her husband, carrying the acid under her shawl.

At Summit Avenue she overtook her husband and called on a passing policeman to arrest him. The policemen refused to do so without a warrent.

"Then I will give you ceuse to arrest me," said Mrs. Peck, as she drew the cup from under her shawl and dashed the contents in her husbend's face and eyes. Peck was taken to the City Hoepital, where it wes seid that he would probably lose the sight of both eyes. Mrs. Peck was locked up on a charge of assault.

DOCTOR'S AUTO HELD UP.

Hurrying to a Patient, He Said, and Was Allowed to Go.

Special to The New York Times.

MINEOLA, L. I., Oct. 15.—Justice Remsen and the catchers of speeding automobiles had a stand to-day with a measured course near New Hyde Jark and stopped four autoists for exceeding the epeed limits. One was Robert A. Freedin, chauffeur for Dr. William Polk of 73 East Thirty-sixth Street.

The chauffeur explained hurriedly that he was taking his employer to a sick patient, and knew he was exceeding the limit. Justice Remsen quickly suspended sentence, and the machine shot down the road again.

The others stopped were Robert R. A. Jarage, who paid $25 under protest; C. W. Church and John Markoff, each of whom paid $20 after pleading guilty.

COUPLE IN JAIL FOR AN ACCIDENT SWINDLE

Ex-Car Conductor and His Wife Accused of Conspiracy.

WOMAN FELL FROM HIS CAR

And Detectives Say the "Mrs. Herbert" Who Sued the Company Later Was the Conductor's Wife.

The New York City Railway Company caused the errest yesterdey of Albert Woods and Mrs. Mae Woods, a middle-aged-couple, on the charge of having attempted to defraud the company out of $2,000 on an eccident claim. The technical charge against them is perjury. The case derives considerable importance from the fact that trolley end street railway companies all over the country have recently been imposed upon by claims similar to that made by the Woods couple.

The alleged accident upon which the perjury cherge is besed detes beck to June 27, 1904. On that date a Mrs. Herbert was alleged to have fallen from a surfece cer at Fifty-third Street and Columbus Avenue. Woods was the conductor of that cer. He hed worked on that line nine days when the accident occurred, although, it is said, he had worksd on another division of the roed under another name prior to that time.

Woods is accused of havlog written a report to the company's beedquarters, describing the accident to Mrs. Herbert. According to the compeny's officials, Woods practically claimed liability on the pert of the company because he admitted in his report that he was fixing the register clock when the accident occurred, and had given e signal to the motorman to go aheed, not noticing that a woman was standing on the running board of the car. Woods then further stated, according to the counsel of the company, that he heard the woman scream and that he saw Mrs. Herbert fall. Woods at that time gave his name as Walter Gardner and said that he lived at 211 West Forty-sixth Street.

The trial of Mrs. Herbert's suit to recover $2,000 from the railway company came up in White Plains before Judge Platt and a jury on Nov. 2, 1904. At thet trial two physicians certified that Mrs. Herbert had received a fracture of the lower part of the spinal column. Her counsel at that time is seid to have been Alpheus Frenk and Harry Hardenbrook, with offices at 120 Broadwey. The suit was decided in favor of the company. It came out then, the detectives say, that Mrs. Herbert really wes Mrs. Woods.

The company decided to take up the matter again about two months ago and put detectives on the care. They traced Woods to the New England States, but he jumped so quickly from one State to another that they failed to catch bim. Recently, however, they learned that he was living at 213 West Thirty-eighth Street.

As soon as this was discovered by the company's detectives warrants were issued in White Plains for the arrest of the couple, and they were taken into custody. Both were arraigned in the Jefferson Market Court yesterday morning. At that place Ambrose McCabe, counsel for the railwey company, appeared with the company's chief counsel, Mr. Quackenbush. There appeared also Detective Sergt. Tinker of the Central Office and Detectives Murphy and Brosnen of the Tenderloin police station, who had made the arrest. The prisoners were remanded to Police Headquarters for a hearing to-day by Magistrate Cornell.

Fake accident claims have recently become so numerous that the large corporations have organized a secret service to ferret them out. They have employed a corps of several hundred detectivee to bring the swindlers to justice.

It is declared that a swindle similar to that charged against the Woodses was recently attempted in Baltimore, and the police are investigating the case there.

FOOTPAD ATTACKS A GIRL.

Newark Young Woman Beaten, Robbed and Left Unconscious in the Street.

Miss Emma Gassert, 17 years old, of 275 South Eighteenth Street, was attacked and robbed within a short distance of her home, in South Nineteenth Street, Newark, late Saturday night. She was found unconscious by four boys just after midnight. Her pocketbook, containing a few cents, and three of her finger rings were gone. The rings had been torn from her fingers so roughly that the skin was badly lacerated.

The girl was taken to the City Hospital, where it was found that her nose was broken and she was severely bruised about the head and body. When she recovered consciousness she was unable to gave an accurate description of her assailant. She says that while passing a vacant lot at 368 South Nineteenth Street a man suddenly sprang from behind a clump of bushes and attacked her.

As near as Miss Gassert can remember the attack took place about 11 o'clock. She was returning from a visit to a married sister residing in South Tenth Street.

TEACHERS FIGHT A FIRE.

Special to The New York Times.

TARRYTOWN, Oct. 15.—Through the efforts of a hundred Christian Brothers who have a monastery at Pocantico Hills, a large herd of cows and a dozen horsee were reecued from a fire to-night, which destroyed a $20,000 barn belonging to the institution. Some of the brothers formed a bucket brigade while others directed their attention to aaving the animals. They rushed into the barn and drove the cows out, but the horses became frightened and several of them had to be blindfolded and led out.

The monaetery is only a short distance from the country eetate of John D. Rockefeller, and many of his employes and the Pocantico Hoee Company aided the Brothers in fighting the flames. Despite their efforts the building could not be saved.

The Pretoria in a Bad Storm.

DOVER, England, Oct. 15.—The Hamburg-American Line steamer Pretoria, from Hamburg for New York, sailed from this port at 10:45 o'clock to-night. The arrival of the vessel here was delayed nine hours owing to a turioue gale in the Channel.

The through sleeping car New York to Lake Placid by the New York Central will be continued until further notice.—Adv.

PLANNED TO WRECK A TRAIN.

Some One Put Iron Bar and Stones on New Haven Tracks.

Special to The New York Times.

STAMFORD, Conn., Oct. 15.—An apparent attempt to wreck the Springfield Express over the New York, New Haven and Hartford Railroad, was fustrated at Selleck's Cut at Stamford this afternoon by George A. Scofield, a tower oprator.

Mr. Scofield was walking the tracks toward the tower house when he found a heavy iron bar, about eighteen inches long, lying lengthwise on the express track, just beyond the eastern entrance of Selleck's Cut at a point where the curve is sharpest. On either end of the bar were piled stones in such fashion that if en engine hit them it would bounce up on the bar and then jump the track. Selleck's Cut is one of the most dangerous on the New York division.

Scofield removed the obstacle. He says four or five men and two women were on the railroad embankment nearby at the time. He went on to the station and reported the matter to the police. When the officers arrived they found another piece of iron on the tracks. Several men found nearby were arrested, but all of them explained their actions satisfactorily.

STORM-BEATEN SHIP IN PORT.

The Caledonia's Passage a Continuous Battle with Heavy Seas.

The voyage of the Anchor Liner Caledonia from Glasgow, which ended at this port yesterday, was e continuous battle with wind and weve. On Tuesday the Caledonia ran into the teeth of a northeaster, end so violently did the ship roll that some of those on board seid that the table racks did not prevent the crookery from being deshed to the saloon floor.

On Wednesday the liner got into the worst pert of the storm, but on the next day it began to moderate. Even though more moderete, the wind shifted to the southward and blew a half gale. Tons of weter continued to craeb down on the Caledonia's decks, for she was then bucking a cross sea. During the nights of the storm it was said that meny of the women spent the time in prayer.

The steerage passengers had a most uncomfortable time. There were 432 of them, and they were shut up between decks, where in the ill-lighted space they could continually heer the sea crashing down on the ship.

FIRE RUIN IN RESTAURANT.

A crowd was driven in a panic early iest evening from Edgett's restaurant, in Fulton Street, near Flatbush Avenue, Brooklyn, by a fire which, although comparatively small, was the cause of ruin to costly decorations and furnishings. The damage was estimated at from $40,000 to $50,000.

The restaurant is in the theatre district. It was filled when the fire started, soon after 6 o'clock. There was a stampede to the doors. The blaze had its origin on the third floor of the building, all of which is used by the restaurant proprietor, supposedly from the breaking of the insulation of an electric light wire. When the first of the firemen arrived they saw that there was a possibility of the fire spreading to the big building of B. G. Latimer's Sons' Company, furniture dealers, adjoining, and a second alarm was turned in. The fire, however, was confined to the upper floor of the restaurant. Most of the ruin was caused by water.

About $10,000 was spent recently in redecorating the main floor of the building. These decorations, paintings, and costly furnishings were ruined. The police estimated the demage at $75,000, but William Edgett, the proprietor, said he did not think the loss would exceed $50,000.

EAST SIDE THEATRE PANIC.

Somebody Became Excited Over a Fight and Yelled "Fire!"

Hundreds who were at a saored concert performance in the Irving Concert Hall at 214 Broome Street iest night were thrown into a panic by the cry of fire that came from an excited man, whose nerves were unstrung over a fight between a youth and several ushers. To add to the confusion and excitement somebody turned in a fire alarm from the box at Broome and Suffolk Streets, and when the engines and trucks rattled up crowds rushed to the theatre, thinking it on fire.

Isaac Arschemaz, a young butcher, of 104 Stanton Street, in trying to take a 50-cent ecat when he had only a 25-cent ticket started the trouble. An usher told him to give up the seat. He refused, and Special Policeman Banner started to eject Arschemaz from the theatre. Somebody shouted "Fire!" Most of those in the theatre sprang from their seats and started for the exits.

Banner realized what this meant, and he took a firm hold on the butcher's collar and dragged him from the theatre. Meantime word had passed to the front of the house that the theatre was on fire, and somebody sent in an alarm. The ushers announced that the houee was not afire, and some of the cooler ones returned to their seats, the performers went on with their acts, the orchestra struck up lively airs, and the peanut and programme men shouted their wares more lustily than ever.

Hundreds, however, especially the women and children—and there were a great many of them in the theatre—became unnerved at the first cry of fire. When the fire engines rolled up, their whistles blowing and bells clanging, many more in the music hall were convinced that the cry had been raised for good cause.

When the firemen arrived they were met at the door by theatre attaches, who told them of the false cry and begged that they not enter the theatre with their fire fighting toge on. The Captain of one of the truck companies, being assured that there was no fire, had his men "back out" quickly and quietly.

One of the performere at last went on the stage and roared that everything wae all right and there wae no fire. Then the show went on.

Arschemaz was taken to the Eldridge Street Police Station, where he was held on a charge of disorderly conduct.

MR. ROOSEVELT INSISTS ON TALKING TO NEGROES

Demands a Change in Plans of the Jacksonville Committee.

SENDS SEVERAL TELEGRAMS

Floridans Decline to Heed the Request of Secretary Loeb, but Finally Give In.

Special to The New York Times.

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., Oct. 15.—A telegram was received to-day from Secretary Loeb insisting thet the committee that is arranging for the reception of President Roosevelt recognize the negroes of Florida. As a result the President will make an address to negroes while in this city.

The committee had made no provision for the colored citizens of the city and State in their general plan for entertaining the President. It was asked by colored citizens to permit the President to address them et the Floride Baptist Acadsmy, the colored college of this city. The committee replied briefly that the plans for the entertainment had been perfected.

Then leading negroes of Jacksonville took the matter up with the President direct, sending telegrams urging some recognition of the race.

The telegram received from Secretary Loeb to-day was not the first one on this particular subject. The others asked the committee to arrange some recognition for the colored people. The committee replied that everything had been closed, and that to break in upon the arrengements now would embarress them.

Secretery Loeb wired to-day thet the President would insist upon stopping at the Florida Baptist Academy during his drive about the city, and would make an address. This settled the matter, and at a hurried conference all plans were arranged.

The committee feels thet the action of the President has relieved them from all embarrassment end responsibility in the matter. When Senetor Frye was in Jacksonville last Winter as the guest of Senator Taliaferro he delivered an address at the colored academy.

WON'T DINE WITH PRESIDENT.

Gov. Davis of Arkansas Objects to Powell Clayton.

Special to The New York Times.

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., Oct. 15.—Gov. Jefferson Davis announced to-day that, while he will be in the city on the day of the Roosevelt reception, he will not sit at the same table with Gen. Powell Clayton, ex-Ambassador to Mexico, and therefore will not be present at the banquet to the President.

The entertainment plans of the Boerd of Trade are being revised so as to substitute Lieut. Gov. John P. Lee of Clarendon for the Governor at the banquet. Gov. Davis is willing to participate in the reception to the President at the City Park, but the committee has chosen United States Judge Jacob Trieber to deliver the address of welcome.

There is some talk that Gen. Clayton will absent himself from the banquet so that Gov. Davis may attend. His friends, however, say he has no thought of accommodating Davis to this extent. He is a member of the Reception Committee, and is expected to arrive to-morrow from Eureka Springs to remain until after the President's visit.

COLUMBIA, S. C., Oct. 15.—Gov. Heyward has accepted an invitation from Gov. Terrell to be the guest of the Governor of Georgia, at the visit of President Roosevelt in Atlanta next Friday. The President's train will pass through South Carolina during the mianight hours and Gov. Terrell asked Gov. Heyward to join him in Atlanta.

COMPLIMENT TO PRESIDENT.

First Person to be Told the Czar Had Signed the Peace Treaty.

ST. PETERSBURG, Oct. 15.—At 3 o'clock this afternoon Spencer Eddy, the American Chargé d'Affaires, officially informed the Foreign Office that the Emperor of Japan ratified the Russo-Japanese peace treaty yesterday.

The French Minister at Tokio at the same hour informed the Japenese Government that Emperor Nicholas had signed the treaty.

As a mark of appreciation of the part he took in bringing about the conference at Portsmouth and the resultant peace, President Roosevelt was the first person to be notified by the Ruesian Government that Emperor Nicholas had ratified the treaty. As soon as the Emperor's signature had been affixed, the news was sent directly to the President. Official notification by the Government to France followed several hours later, when Count Lamsdorff had completed the ratification by his signature.

The Government took no steps to make known to the people of Russia the fact that the Emperor had signed the treaty before the receipt of the official notification that the instrument had been ratified by the signature of the Emperor of Japan.

As soon ae the treaty had been fully ratified, the Foreign Office communicated the fact to the War, Navy, and other Ministries, and the neceesary orders were immediately issued for the bringing home of some of the ships interned in neutral harbors. The date for the exchange of prisoners of war has not yet been fixed.

ST. PETERSBURG, Oct. 15.—The formal notification of the exchange of ratifications of the treaty of peace, made this afternoon, evokes widespread satisfaction.

The most appreciable effect, so far as Ruesia is concerned, will be the possibility of provisioning Vladivostok. Accommodation has been prepared there for 80,000 Russian prisoners of war from Japan.

Eight New Cases in New Orleans.

Ali has informed Dattos who are assisting the Federal troops to effect his capture that he is now preparing to meet and kill them. Provisional companies of troops are now taking the field for a vigorous campaign, aided by friendly Dattos who are armed by the Government.

THIRD EARTHQUAKE IN CUBA.

More Severe Than Previous Shocks—Felt in Jamaica, Too.

SANTIAGO, Cuba, Oct. 15.—Another earthquake shock was felt here this afternoon.

It was stronger then the shocks on Friday and yesterday.

KINGSTON, Jamaica, Oct. 15.—Another earthquake shock was felt at 4:35 o'clock this afternoon, lasting for nearly a minute.

It was oppressively hot before the shock.

ROCKEFELLER'S GOOD HEALTH

Never Felt Better, He Tells His Tarrytown Church Friends.

Special to The New York Times.

TARRYTOWN, Oct. 15.—The congregation of the First Baptist Church at Tarrytown-on-the-Hudson had its first glimpse to-dey of John D. Rockefeller in his new wig, at the morning service. Mr. and Mrs. Rockefeller and Miss Spellman, Mrs. Rockefeller's sister, drove from Boxwood to the church in a three-seated trap. When the plate was passed Mr. Rockefeller dropped a gold piece in it, and at the conclusion of the services he shook hands with the pastor, the Rev. E. W. Histed, and many members of the church.

"I am glad to see you," seid Mr. Rockefeller, as he shook hands with various persons. "I hope you are well. I never felt better, thank you."

Everyone remarked that Mr. Rockefeller seemed to be in better health then he had for yeers.

JEROME FOR THE FIRING LINE.

Starting Wednesday in Carnegie Hall He'll Speak Every Night.

District Attorney Jerome intends to start his independent campaign on Wednesday night with a meeting in Carnegie Hall. This will be Mr. Jerome's first great speech of the campaign. It will be followed the next night by two speeches in different parts of the city. The first will be delivered in the Murray Hill Lyceum, in Thirty-fourth Street, near Third Avenue, and the second at the Grand Central Hall, 90-96 Clinton Street. On Friday night Mr. Jerome will speak in the Bronx at Zeltner's Hall, Third Avenue and 170th Street.

Other engagements are now being mapped out by the District Attorney and his campaign managers. It is their intention to have meetings on practically every night of the campaign after to-morrow.

ROMANCE IN THAWS' CHURCH.

Dr. McEwan, Pittsburg Pastor, Is to Marry His Stenographer.

Special to The New York Times.

PITTSBURG, Oct. 15.—The Rev. Dr. William L. McEwan of the Third Presbyterian Church next Tuesday evening will marry his stenographer, Mrs. Eleanor Fulton Colvin.

Dr. McEwan has been a widower many years. Mrs. Colvin is a widow. She studied shorthand writing and typewriting after her husband died. Dr. McEwan's eldest daughter will act as bridesmaid for Mrs. Colvin.

Mrs. William Thaw gave a reception last Thursday evening in honor of Mrs. Colvin, as the latter is not a member of the Third Church, nor was she known to the members of the congregation.

Dr. McEwan has officiated at the various marriages in the Thaw family. He performed the ceremony when Alice Thaw was married to the Earl of Yarmouth, as well as that of Harry Thaw and Evelyn Nesbit.

SENATOR'S FATAL AUTO RIDE.

Mr. Fulford of Canada Dies from Hurts Due to Accident.

NEWTON, Mass., Oct. 15.—Senator George T. Fulford of Brockville, Canada, died at the Newton Hospital this afternoon as the result of injuries received in an automobile accident last Sunday. His injuries, which were at first regarded as slight, developed into the paralysis of the vital organs.

The accident occurred on Walnut Street, in this city, the machine in which Senator Fulford was riding with William T. Hanson of Schenectady, N. Y., coming into collision with an electric car. Louis Zerjax of Albany, the chauffeur, died three days later. Mr. Hanson escaped without serious injury.

Senator Fulford was 53 years old. He was a member of the Brockville Town Council for twelve years, and in 1900 he was called to the Senate of Canada. In politics he was a Liberal. He amessed a large fortune as a manufacturer of patent medicines. He was an enthusiastic yachteman.

SEEK NEW BALLOON RECORDS.

Fifteen Aeronauts in Long-Distance Contest—American Out of It.

PARIS, Oct. 15.—Aeronautic representatives of France, Belgium, Spain, Russia, Italy, and England ascended this afternoon from the Tuileries Gardens in the presence of an enormous crowd.

The contest is to be an endurance one, and was organized for the benefit of the sufferers by the recent earthquakee in Calabria.

Fifteen balloons safely effected a start toward the German frontier during the prevalence of an extremely high wind. The aeronauts will endeavor to beat the distance record of 514 miles, and prizes also will be given for the balloons remaining in the air forty-eight hours without replenishing their gae bags.

The American, Frank Larms, and four others, who had entered, abandoned the contest.

IVINS CHALLENGES HEARST AND M'CLELLAN

Tells What He Will Do to Bring About City Ownership.

INVITES BOTH TO DEBATE

He Will Hold Himself, Not the Organization, Responsible for the Acts of His Administration.

William M. Ivins, Republican candidate for Mayor, issued an open letter yesterday to Mayor McClellan and William R. Hearst, challenging both to meet him in joint debate and thrash out the issues of the campaign in the presence of the voters.

In his letter, which comes out flat-footed for municipal ownership in its every aspect, Mr. Ivins sets a warm pace for the campaign. He lets it be clearly understood that he is the Republican campaign and intends to make things hum till election day without regard to any aid the Republican organization may or may not be able to give him. His letter says:

Mr. Ivins's Challenge.

"The Hon. George B. McClellan and William R. Hearst:

"Gentlemen: For the purpose of making perfectly precise the position which I occupy in the present compaign, and for affording the public a measure or standard of responsibility to which I may be held in the case of my election, and in the hope that you may respectively do as much, so that we may all stand before the public in the light of the fullest publicity of pledge end purpose, let me state the platform upon which I shall stand:

"The office of Mayor will be my own and not that of any organization, or of any political leader or leaders. I pledge myself to absolute independence of every organization and individual, being willing to hear all, and obey none.

"I shall conduct the city's business on the theory that it is purely and simply the city's business; independently of all partisan considerations, as well as of the interests of any political organizations and irrespective of personal ambitions for party promotion.

Advice on Appointments.

"I will completely disregard all merely National party considerations in the making of my appointments, end shall consider nothing but fitness, efficiency, and character. I shall appoint a Municipal Civil Service Commission, which I pledge shall be loyal to the merit principle of appointment to the public service expressed in the State Constitution, and which commission shall be competent to put that principle into effeotive operation, to the vest improvement of the public service of the city.

"I will do my own thinking, speek my own speeches, prepare my own public documents, personelly decide all questions coming before me ee Mayor, and appear personally before the Legislature in all metters of importance touching the city's interests. Will you do es much?

"No organization and no paid subordinates shall frame, direct, or voice my poiicies or my purposes. I shall stand upon the platform of personal and not of party responsibility. The people shall be my party, and I will answer to them directly.

"Where legislation is necessery, as it will be, I shall appeal to what I hope will be a friendly Legislature for the creation of the instruments looking to the restoration to the people of their rights where such instruments do not already exist. Can you rely upon getting the necessary legislative aid, without which all platforms are empty promises?

Will Stay in a Full Term.

"I will agree with the public to continue in office for the full term for which they elect me, and not become a candidate for any other office whatever, and thus make it impossible that a person not elected to the office of Mayor should take the place and assume the performance of duties for which he was not elected.

"I will retire from the practice of law, and from all business whatever; will so realize my properties that my personal affairs, apart from purely domestic matters, shall require absolutely none of my time. I will have no divided interest, and the performance of my duties can never be made subservient to the advertisement or publicity of any personal business interest whatever.

"I will forthwith upon my election and without delay or subterfuge, put every agency of law into operation to secure the control by the city of all lapsed or forfeitable franchises.

"I shall urge the Legislature to so amend the law that the Rapid Transit Commission shall heve the power to contract for the construction of subways independently of any contract for their operation.

"In the matter of municipalization of our public franchises, except on the point of the compensation payable on the reassumption by the public of such franchises, I will listen to no adverse party interest. The principle is no longer open to discussion.

Will Condemn Gas Plants.

"I will appeal to the Legislature for the passage of a law condemning all existing gas plants, under the right of eminent domain, with power on the part of the city to enter into immediate possession, leaving the question of value to subsequent determination by commission. In this way the people will have relief at once, whereas any other method means indefinite delay.

"I will push the construction of a municipal electric and power plant, and enforce the rights of the city in respect to the underground electric conduits.

"I will make myself personally responsible for the administration of the Police Department.

"I will insist on a revision of our system of public accounting, so that the people may intelligently hold its officials to a strict accountability.

"I will also, without delay or hindrance and independent of any considerations of parsimony, take immediate steps to find a seat, and provide full time instruction for every public school child, and I shall labor to have the law so amended as to remove all unreasonable delay. My slogan will be fewer palaces and more schoolhouses at the expense of the city.

"I will gladly meet either or both of you upon a common platform at any time and anywhere to discuss these and all other issues of the campaign.

"Will you meet me?

"WILLIAM M. IVINS."

When a copy of the letter was shown

to Max F. Ihmsen, Mr. Hearst's campaign manager, he said:

"Mr. Ivins seems to have adopted the old campaign methods of the South. They used to do that sort of thing out in Arkansas, I believe. I don't know whether Mr. Hearst will accept the invitation or make any reply. That will be decided when Mr. Hearst has consulted with his Campaign Committee."

The Hearst Campaign Committee has not yet been organized.

Mayor McClellan was out of town yesterday and could not be reached. His campaign manager could not say what Mr. McClellan would do about Mr. Ivins's letter.

Ivins Starts in Hard To-day.

Standing by the spirit of his letter Mr. Ivins will start to-day his active campaign. His political headquarters in the Hotel Breslin will be opened this morning, and they will not be closed until the votes are in on election night. He has selected Senator Nathaniel A. Elsberg and Horace E. Deming as his campaign managers, but really Mr. Ivins will personally direct his own campaign. His managers will merely act as lieutenants to see to the preparation and distribution of literature. Mr. Ivins will also appear on the stump practically every night until election eve.

As his first speech of the campaign Mr. Ivins will appear to-night before the members of the Republican Club and endeavor to turn them into active campaigners. It is the regular monthly meeting of the club, and last night it was announced that it would resolve itself into a reception for Mr. Ivins and his associates on the city ticket. Alfred R. Ommen, Chairman of the club's Campaign Committee, has issued invitations to all members, and urged their attendance.

Following to-night's speech at the Republican Club Mr. Ivins will make an automobile tour of the city. He intends, if it be physically possible, to visit every one of the sixty-one Assembly Districts which are part of New York City. It is intended to begin the first installment of the automobile tour on Tuesday night. The route has not yet been decided.

WILLIAM HALPIN SAYS:

Now Is the Time to Elect a Fearless Anti-Tammany Mayor—Register!

Chairman William Halpin of the Republican County Committee gave out this statement last night at the Republican Club:

"To-morrow, Monday, is the last day of registration. The Republican Party is making every effort to get out a full registration. Now is the opportunity to elect a man whose record of civic accomplishment and of fearless opposition to Tammany Hall has long before won the confidence of the people.

"Mr. Ivins has begun a vigorous militant campaign. In view of the defection from Tammany Hall to the Municipal Ownership League, it needs only united action on the part of Republicans and Independent Democrats to secure the election of Mr. Ivins and the defeat of Tammany Hall. I am confident that all the Republican election district Captains throughout the entire city will be found at their places to-morrow, bringing out the full Republican registration."

NEWBURGER ASKED TO SAY NO

Tammany Wants Him to Decline the Republican Indorsement.

Strong pressure is being brought to bear on Judge Joseph E. Newburger to have him decline the Republican nomination for the Supreme Court. The interests opposed to having him accept this nomination all are Tammany Hall interests. They declare openly that they believe an acceptance by him of the Republican indorsement would militate against all of his associates on the Tammany County and borough tickets.

Judge Newburger received the Tammany nomination because it was desired to recognize the Jewish vote. He was put on the judicial ticket with Justices Ingraham and Gildersleeve, and the next night the Republicans indorsed two of the Tammany nominees, Ingraham and Newburger, and declined to indorse Gildersleeve for re-election. Instead, the Republicans nominated Justice Addoms, named last week by Gov. Higgins to sit on the Supreme Court bench until Dec. 31.

Because of the Republican discrimination against Justice Gildersleeve and its nomination of Newburger, rather than take up a sitting Justice, the Tammany leaders have let it be known that they regard it necessary for Judge Newburger to decline to remain on the Republican ticket. Judge Newburger's friends last night said he had not made up his mind what to do, and that he would not reach a decision until formally notified by the Republicans.

PEDDLERS EXACT PLEDGES.

"Give Us a Market and Oust Woodbury to Get Our Votes."

Four meetings of east side peddlers were held yesterday to consider which candidate for Mayor the peddlers shall support in this campaign. The meetings were called by the United Citizen Peddlers' Association, which has six branches. The principal meeting was at 98 Forsyth Street. President Sigmund Schwartz was Chairman.

The peddlers have been in favor of Mayor McClellan, but lately there was a report among them that in case of Mayor McClellan's re-election it is the intention to drive all the peddlers off the streets. A committee was appointed to wait on the Mayor and ask him if he will arrange for the establishment of a market or markets where the peddlers can keep their stands by paying a nominal rental without being interfered with by the police.

It is also proposed to ask him to promise not to reappoint Street Cleaning Commissioner Woodbury. If the Mayor makes these promises the peddlers say they will support him.

Among the east side trades unions there is a Hearst contingent, and the agents of the Municipal Ownership League are anxious about the result of the visit to Mayor McClellan. The east siders who will support Hearst are attracted by the municipal ownership plank of his party. A representative of the Municipal Ownership League called at the meeting in Forsyth Street, and asked to see Sigmund Schwartz, the Chairman. He told Mr. Schwartz that he would like to speak to the peddlers on municipal ownership.

"I am sorry," said Schwartz, "but this is not an open meeting."

Republican Organ for Cassidy.

The Queens Borough Journal, the official organ of the Republican Party in Queens, has come out for the re-election of Borough President Cassidy. The Journal attacks Joseph Bermel, the Republican nominee. The paper heretofore has been decidedly hostile to Cassidy.

COW CAUSES FATAL WRECK.

Five Trainmen Killed When Engines Plunge Into a Ditch.

OSKALOOSA, Iowa, Oct. 15.—Five trainmen were killed to-day at Seaton, Ill., when a heavy double-header freight train, east bound, on the Iowa Central Railroad ran into a cow at a speed of twenty miles an hour.

Both locomotives and eleven freight cars loaded with grain and lumber were piled in a heap beside the track. George A. Caffal and Harry Summers, engineers; Harry Barr and L. H. Briley, firemen, and P. T. Morgan, brakeman were killed.

A cow was lying between the rails, hidden from view by other cattle. The whistle of the approaching train caused the standing cattle to scamper away, but the forward locomotive struck the cow. It was derailed and pitched down an embankment, drawing the second locomotive and cars with it. The wreckage caught fire, but the conductor and rear brakeman, aided by persons who lived near by, put out the flames.

NIGHT CHANGED SENTIMENT

These nominations for offices in this county and this borough were announced last night at the Hoffman House headquarters of William R. Hearst's Municipal Ownership League:

COUNTY.

Judge of the Court of General Sessions—JOHN PALMIERI.

Sheriff—JOSEPH W. CODY.

County Clerk—J. FAIRFAX McLAUGHLIN.

District Attorney—CLARENCE J. SHEARN.

Register—Michael Brayer.

BOROUGH.

For Borough President—THOMAS GILLERAN.

Coroners—MAX STERN, Dr. ALFRED H. RIEDEL, ARTHUR HAGAN, and SIMON LEVY.

A committee of three, composed of Secretary James F. Donegan, Coroner William J. O'Gorman, Jr., of the Bronx, and Joseph W. Cody from the Twenty-first Assembly District, was appointed by the County Convention of the Municipal Ownership League on Saturday night to cooperate with the executive committee of the organization in the selection of candidates. It remained at work almost until daylight yesterday morning, and then had not completed the work. The two committees went at it again after noon yesterday. It was not until 10 o'clock last evening that the names of the candidates were announced.

There was surprise in some quarters when it was learned that the name of District Attorney Jerome was not to appear on the Hearst ticket. There was some hope that he would be indorsed by the League now that all the organizations that have been denounced in the Hearst platform as "boss-ridden" had thrown him overboard. It is even known that prior to the convention his name had been prominently before the Executive Committee, and that the head of the ticket had withdrawn his objection to Mr. Jerome, in case it should be determined that his name would add strength to the ticket.

It was said last evening, however, that over night a decided opposition to Mr. Jerome had developed, and that after the committees got together yesterday his name had not even been mentioned.

It was announced that the nominations had been made unanimously, and that all the nominees had signified their intention to accept. Nobody who attended the convention on Saturday night could doubt for a moment the decided willingness on the part of a majority among Mr. Hearst's followers to run for office. It was this willingness, in fact, that retarded the work of the convention.

According to Melvin G. Palliser, who, as a member of the Executive Committee, was one of the conferrees, the grand prize that everybody seemed to hanker after was the nomination for Coroner. There were about sixty candidates for that office, and there is a lurking suspicion in the mind of some of the conferrees that some of the slips with names of candidates that the delegates were asked to submit to the two committees on Saturday night bore autographs.

As there are only four places for Coroners some fifty aspirants had to be disappointed. The disappointed began to send in their protests over the telephone last night after the nominations had been announced.

Of the candidates, Thomas Gilleran, nominee for Borough President, is a lawyer. He belongs to the Manhattan and Catholic Clubs and the Bar Association.

Samuel Seabury, the candidate for Supreme Court Justice, is a Judge of the City Court. He has held that place since 1901, when he was elected on the Fusion ticket and ran 6,000 votes ahead of Low. He is a young man, and has written a book entitled "Municipal Ownership of Public Utilities in the City of New York." Clarence J. Shearn, who was selected for the District Attorneyship, is Mr. Hearst's personal counsel. Joseph W. Cody, the candidate for Sheriff, is a well-to-do contractor. J. Fairfax McLaughlin is a former Assistant Corporation Counsel.

It was announced last night at the Hearst headquarters that the idea of importing orators from Chicago had been abandoned. Home talent will be employed.

REPUBLICANS JOIN HEARST.

Independents Nominated in the Thirty-first Assembly District.

Independent Republican nominations for the Assembly and the Board of Aldermen have been made in the Thirty-first Assembly District. The anti-Strasbourger Republicans have picked John F. Huhlin for Alderman, and William C. Reddy for Assemblyman, the nominations to be made by petition.

The movement is in the hands of the Thirty-first Assembly District Republican Club of 320 Lenox Avenue, and the organization has indorsed the platform of the Municipal Ownership League.

BURGLARS BUSY IN BROOKLYN.

Got $2,000 Worth of Plunder in One House—Two Flats Robbed.

The Brooklyn police are looking for the burglar that robbed the home of Joseph B. Friedlander, 555 Fourth Avenue, early yesterday morning. The owner values his missing property at $2,000, but the police say it is not worth more than $600.

The thieves pried open the parlor window with a "jimmy" and did their work so quietly that none of the family knew that anything was wrong until daylight, when Mr. Friedlander found that a silver service he had bought in Europe last Summer and a diamond and pearl necklace belonging to his wife were gone.

A flat at 192 Dean Street, occupied by Dr. William J. Callan, was also robbed yesterday morning. He lost about $150 worth of surgical instruments. On the top floor the flat of William Moehlich was robbed of $167 worth of jewelry.

DOG RATHER LIKES BURGLARS.

Therefore What's the Use of His Being Death on Book Peddlers?

The family of Levi B. Sanders of 21 Watchung Avenue, Orange, N. J., owns a watchdog that is death on peddlers and book agents. As soon as representatives of either calling set foot on the Sanders premises the watchdog sallies forth with great enthusiasm and sees them to the gate. Peddlers and canvassers give the Sanders domicile a wide berth.

Early yesterday morning burglars entered the Sanders have, ransacked the lower part of it, and stole 40 cents. The dog was down stairs, but never let out a bark. One of the women in the house heard some one striking matches down stairs about 3 o'clock, but thinking it was Mr. Sanders paid no attention, even when the sound of drawers being opened was brought to her ears.

She did call out finally to see what was going on and was promptly told to go to sleep again by another member of the family. This morning the lower part of the house was found in confusion. The faithful watchdog stood amid the ruin wagging his tail.

The residence of W. B. Archer at 13 Chapel Street was also entered and about $5.60 in change secured. Nothing else was missing, though the silver had been handled. The police are greatly puzzled by these strange burglaries, which occur on Saturday nights with great regularity. In no cases are the bauls large, the burglars apparently taking what loose money they can find, and nothing else. In no case has the loss aggregated $10.

TO SUPPORT McCLELLAN.

Real Estate Men Will Work for His Re-Election.

A strong effort is being made to organize real estate interests to support Mayor McClellan in the municipal campaign. The matter has been taken in hand by a committee of the Real Estate Board of Brokers, consisting of Charles E. Schuyler, Chairman; J. S. De Selding, Francis E. Ward, Thomas P. Graham, Wright Barclay, William Richtberg, F. R. Houghton, and F. B. Ames. The members of this committee, with two exceptions, are enrolled Republicans.

"The Mayor has given us such an excellent administration, so far as real estate interests are concerned," said Mr. Schuyler yesterday, "that we feel that he deserves re-election." This movement will not be confined to real estate brokers. Circulars have been sent out to builders, material men, architects, and others whose interests are dependent upon real estate prosperity. Over 200 replies have already been received, expressing sympathy with the plan to support the Mayor.

"An additional field of activity for this organization of real estate men will be opposition to all those candidates for the Assembly who will not pledge themselves to work for a repeal of the mortgage tax."

A call has been issued for a meeting of all those in real estate circles who favor the re-election of the Mayor. The meeting will be held at the rooms of the Real Estate Board of Brokers, 156 Broadway, on Tuesday at 3:30 P. M.

SCHOOL FOR SPELLBINDERS.

Tammany Orators Get Points on What to Say in the Campaign.

Tammany's spellbinding campaign was mapped out yesterday by Chairman Thomas C. T. Crain of the Speakers' Committee. He got together at Tammany Hall the 300 speakers on his lists and told them what they were to say on the stump.

Beginning to-morrow night, Tammany will send out street-corner and cart-tail speakers all over Manhattan and the Bronx. There will be an average of nine speakers to each Assembly district every night. This is exclusive of the star speakers at the big meetings that are to be held in Carnegie Hall, Grand Central Palace, and other places. W. Bourke Cockran, Charles A. Towne, Thomas F. Grady, and others will address these meetings.

Chairman Crain and Maurice B. Blumenthal, Vice Chairman of the committee, told the speakers to tell the people about the improved condition of the schools, to emphasize the fact that there has been no criticism of the way Commissioner Hayes has run the Fire Department, to talk about the way Commissioner McAdoo has improved the Police Department.

They were told to make much of the steps taken by Mayor McClellan toward municipal ownership, such as the Staten Island ferry service and the construction of a municipal lighting plant. Here are some pointers Mr. Blumenthal gave them:

If you must put fireworks into your speeches, put them where they will light up a solid argument.

Don't rely for applause on the mere mention of a prominent name; such applause does not make a single vote.

Don't talk merely; say something.

When candidates or other speakers are waiting to be heard, "cut it short" and give them a chance.

If you haven't anything to say that will make votes, for Heaven's sake avoid saying anything that will lose votes.

There is no occasion for stage fright this year; we have nothing to be afraid of.

The speakers' meetings at Tammany Hall will be held every Saturday afternoon until election.

REAL CAMPAIGN BY THURSDAY.

Tammany Prepares to Ratify and Unleash Its Orators.

From Tammany Hall and from Mayor McClellan's personal headquarters in the Hotel Bartholdi, the Democratic campaign will be started to-day under full headway. It is the intention of the campaign managers to utilize the next three weeks to the utmost, and to make as lively a campaign as possible.

John H. O'Brien, Mayor McClellan's ex-secretary and present campaign manager, has his headquarters in fighting trim. To-day he will start sending out literature in German, French, and Italian, while by to-morrow the Yiddish bureau will be in full operation.

The Mayor's first campaign speech will be made in Tammany Hall on Thursday evening, when the general ratification of the ticket will be held. Arrangements are being made for overflow meetings in and around Fourteenth Street, and Tammany will give its usual reception to its candidates.

The next night the Mayor will go to Brooklyn and will speak at four different points in that borough. To-night Tammany will let loose two hundred or more cart-tail and street corner orators, apportioning practically half a dozen to each Assembly District in Manhattan and the Bronx. In addition Tammany will use W. Bourke Cockran, Charles A. Towne, Senator Thomas F. Grady, and Congressman William Sulzer to address the more important indoor meetings. These meetings will be held in Carnegie Hall, Grand Central Palace, Cooper Union, and Durland's Academy.

Charles F. Murphy will come from his Good Ground country home this morning and will assume the active direction of the Tammany battle. A call has been issued for a meeting of the Campaign Committee for 4 o'clock this afternoon at the Wigwam, to go over in detail the matter of campaign funds.

WON OVER BY ARIZONA.

Traveling Congressmen Say They Will Vote for Statehood.

PRESCOTT, Ariz., Oct. 15.—All the members of a Congressional party which is traveling in Arizona to-day expressed themselves as strongly in favor of separate Statehood for Arizona. The party includes the following Congressmen: Adams and Minor of Wisconsin, Goebel of Ohio, Tawney and Davis of Minnesota, Mann of Illinois, Maynard of Virginia, and Marshall of North Dakota. Representative Goebel said:

"Arizona's schools alone should entitle her to become a State, but she has a great deal more. She deserves Statehood now."

Representative Maynard, the only Democrat in the party, said:

"If it were not for family ties, home associations, and native love for Virginia, I would sell my ticket and stay in Arizona, and if I ever move it will be to this Territory, which will soon be a State."

The other Congressmen were equally enthusiastic for immediate separate Statehood for Arizona, and all promised to change their votes in favor of Arizona.

Union Carpet Layers Heard From.

The Central Federated Union yesterday, at the request of James Hanley, delegate of the Carpet Upholsterers' Union, ordered the Secretary to write to the city officials, requesting that all carpet-laying for public buildings be done by union men. Hanley said that for several years all the carpet-laying in public buildings had been done by non-union carpet layers.

SOCIALISTS HAVE ONLY HISSES FOR HEARST

He Is the Principal Subject at Their Ratification Meeting.

ALL PARTIES DENOUNCED

More than 2,000 Socialists who gathered at Carnegie Hall last night for the ratification of their city ticket were warned by the speakers that William R. Hearst must not be regarded as being in the same class with Henry George. They were told, too, that the Republican and Democratic Parties looked alike to Socialists, and, further, that the fight which had been waged to force them to give up the title Social Democratic Party and adopt that of Socialist Party was a capitalistic trick to confuse the voters.

A band which played "La Marseillaise" with frequency—and ability—and the placing of a huge red flag where all could see it helped to stir up enthusiasm. The candidates, Algernon Lee, for Mayor; Cortes W. Cavanaugh, for Controller, and Morris Braun, for President of the Board of Aldermen, were seated on the platform with some 200 men and 50 women. Altogether, there were about 500 women present.

The speakers dwelt more upon Mr. Hearst than any of the candidates. His campaign was declared to be counterfeit. "Of all the issues of the campaign, the one humbug, the worst humbug, is municipal ownership under William R. Hearst," said one speaker. Every mention of Hearst's name brought forth demonstrations of disapproval.

"This is a most singular campaign," said Morris Hillquit. "It is a picture of chaos and confusion. We have before us the utter helplessness of the so-called citizen reformers. We have had kaleidoscopic changes from the first. These things all started from the efforts to down Tammany Hall.

"The Republicans have tried to make their campaign through legislative inquiries. The insurance inquiry has shown that the Republicans and Democrats are allies in corruption. We find the Republican Party offering its Mayoralty nomination to any person in New York over 21 years old. The Democrats, of course, presented their candidates and issues ready made, cut, and dried."

The speaker saw in municipal ownership under certain conditions more political corruption than at present. It would be advisable for the working classes only when controlled or strongly influenced by themselves, he said.

"Ante-election promises are cheap," continued Hillquist. "Learn what interests dominate the various tickets. Now, there is William R. Hearst. Who is William R. Hearst? Isn't he the man who would have gladly taken the Democratic nomination for President last year?

"Didn't he take a nomination for Congress from Tammany Hall? He would like to have been its candidate for Mayor. When Tammany turns him down on that, he determines to be the Municipal Ownership candidate. If you vote for him you only further his personal ambitions.

"Henry George was not a Hearst. He was a man of sterling qualities. He was a big man; Hearst is a pigmy as compared to Henry George."

HEARD IN THE CAMPAIGN.

Who's Duffy?—Note from a McClellan Well-Wisher—One Good Bet.

"Who is James J. Duffy?" William Halpin was asked on the night of the Republican Borough Convention.

"He is one of the biggest excavators in New York," replied Mr. Halpin.

"That was a good idea of yours to put him on the ticket, then," said the questioning delegate. "I think we will have need for his services on the day after election. They tell me it's a terrible death to be buried alive."

Some curious letters of congratulation are received by candidates, but one in Mayor McClellan's mail on Saturday was a record-breaker. It was from a negro who apparently takes great interest in political affairs.

"I regret very much," it ran, "that my incarceration in the Tombs on a charge of murder will prevent me from taking any active part in this campaign. However, I want to say that the entire ticket headed by yourself meets with my fullest approval and has my earnest support. It is too bad, though, that my old friend Edward M. Grout is not figuring in the campaign."

At the Mayor's political headquarters, in the Hotel Bartholdi, just before 5 o'clock in the afternoon, Campaign Manager John H. O'Brien and some of his political and personal friends were discussing matters in general. Mr. O'Brien consulted his watch.

"Most 5 o'clock," he remarked, "and time for the ham tree to bloom on the free-lunch counter of the Fifth Avenue Hotel. Too bad, but I can't get over there for a while."

"Well, we're going over now to get some," announced W. J. K. Kenny, ex-Supervisor of The City Record, as he and a couple of friends started out.

"Send me the ham bone," called Mr. O'Brien, with a laugh, as he settled back to work.

Fifteen minutes later a messenger boy entered, carrying a long package. Mr. O'Brien cautiously unwrapped it. It was the ham bone from the Fifth Avenue Hotel café.

***

"Do you know what I consider the one best bet of this campaign?" asked Winn Thomas last night in the Amen Corner.

"What?" inquired the Ameners, eagerly.

"Spoiled ballots to show," said Thomas.

SUBWAY TAVERN RAIDED.

Police Found No Burglars, but the Water Was Turned On.

Sergt. George Petersen of the Police Headquarters Telegraph Bureau, was passing the Old Subway Tavern on his way to Police Headquarters last night at 12 o'clock when he heard strange noises.

"Burglars in the Old Tavern," he mused, as he put his ear to the keyhole.

"Now, you fellows, get your guns ready," Petersen commanded, "and take no chances if they try to get away. Now, when I say "Three," in goes that door. Go right in and fire right and left, up at the ceiling, of course, 'cause we don't want to kill the poor devils, even if they are crooks."

At the word three, they made a rush at the door. It was heavily bolted and stood firm.

"No, Sarge," replied Smith. "I can still hear the noises."

"Well, as long as they are so bold about it, you run around to Engine 20 in Mercer Street and get the firemen with their battering ram."

In a jiffy the firemen had the door down. They searched the tavern, and every nook and corner, but not a burglar did they find.

"Hey, there!" exclaimed a fireman who had joined in the search. "There's your burglar, all right, all right. And I've got him, and me a fireman, too."

The three bluecoats, with drawn revolvers, rushed toward the soda fountain, and with the aid of a lantern they discovered that an automatic water cock had been turned on, and the strange noises were from the dripping of the water into the cellar, which was flooded.

PICTURES AT THE ARTS CLUB.

First Exhibition of the Season Reflects Rural Scenes.

The National Arts Club opens the Winter season with a collection of paintings and water colors in its galleries on West Thirty-fourth Street, consisting for the most part of work produced during the Summer outing. Scenes of farm life, views of haymaking on the marshes, harbor marines, and glimpses of lake and river, sketches that seek to fix a passing effect of cloud and sunshine, moonlit distances, and attempts to reproduce the cold darkness before the dawn give no little variety to the walls. There is the landscape painted with the sobriety of Düsseldorf and the stippled canvas that belongs to the later race of pointillistes, hard-cut figures that scorn all mystery, and those which are scarcely more than dashes of color disappearing into a background nearly the same in tone. The collection is termed "Out of Doors."

A long wall is covered with the pale nocturnes of the Messrs. Scott and Leon Dabo, who have taken Whistler for their patron Saint and offer French and American views so diapbanous and elusive in drawing that one has to see them by daylight or not at all; for under artificial light the faint differences in tone which compose them melt into unrelieved surfaces of pale drab or pale gray. One asks one's self where in ordinary houses such pictures can find sufficient light to make themselves visible. Scott Dabo's "Notre Dame de Paris after Rain" has a fine cloud effect where the light breaks through, but it is only after careful search that the towers of the famous Gothic pile are discovered, small and far away, lost in the mists. So with Leon Dabo's "La Saluté, Venice"; the name is nothing; the attempt to reproduce night and fog effects everything. If Leon Dabo gropes in a confused and foggy "Dawn" his brother goes him one better with a murky "Before Dawn." Other pictures just arrested on the verge of evanishment are "The Hackensack, Evening," "Collier's Late Evening," harbor scene with dim shipping, and "Hackensack Marshes," by Scott Dabo, also "River Mists, Night," "Sun and Mist," and "After Rain" by Leon Dabo.

Contrast with these the sparkling oil sketches by Charles W. Hawthorne, little landscapes full of colorsense and a crisp gayety of touch. Miss Eugenia M. Heller attacks a difficult "Surf," with no small success, rendering the spurt of combers and the rush of wind-driven foam over the crests of the breakers with much spirit. "Russet Hills," by Guy C. Wiggins, is a well-painted and typical glimpse of a hillside at Lyme, Conn., with its outcropping of gray stone and picturesque oaks. Henry R. Poore sends a brown Autumnal view of salt marsh and bay wagon, in which wagon and beasts take their place very harmoniously with the landscape. From Robert Henri comes a shore view, with waves and high bank rather too harshly blocked in with a broad brush. Bolton Colt Brown offers a gray stippled view of Monterey Bay and a more attractive landscape, "Clouds and Mountains." "The Valley" and "Pastoral," by Gifford Beal, have the quiet that landscape lovers enjoy. Oil sketches, delicate in sentiment, by Lewie Coben, are "Moret on the Loing" and "The Brook."

There are pleasing landscapes by Mrs. A. H. Wyant, Walter J. Greacen, Lester W. Mabie, and W. H. Cole, some very charming water-color sketches by Chester Loomis, a cattle piece by Carleton Wiggins, a curious low-toned view of desert and walled town with a group of peasants on borseback, by R. M. L. Walsh, called "On the Road to Toledo," landscape sketchee by the Misses Alethea Platt, Zelma Bayloss, and Laura Barrett, &c. The oddest pictures here both for subject and handling are Mr. William Walton's figure pieces: "July," "Twenty-third Street, New York," and "Among the Skyscrapers." Certain of these pictures will be sure to enrage some people; but surely there is variety enough in styles and subjects to make a visit (by card of member) worth the journey.

LINE UP TO BEAT ODELL IN SPEAKERSHIP FIGHT

The Platt-Depew-Black-Barnes Wing Is Already Busy.

FIVE CANDIDATES ANNOUNCED

Three of Them Are the State Chairman's Friends—The Skirmishing Began Before Nixon's Death.

One of the liveliest fights ever known in the Republican Party in this State has been begun over the election of a Speaker of the Assembly to succeed the late S. Fred Nixon. Already the Platt-Depew-Black-Barnes wing of the party is lining up to try to keep State Chairman Odell from filling this most important place.

Five candidates are in the field.

Speaker Nixon died on Oct. 10, but the storm was seen coming long before that, because it was known that he could not recover from the operations he had undergone. The fight promises to equal in bitterness the fight for the Speakership in 1895, when Hamilton Fish defeated George R. Malby for re-election.

J. T. Rogers of Broome County, who is the present floor leader of the Republicans, is a candidate for the Speakership, and has the backing of Col. George W. Dunn, ex-Chairman of the State Committee, and one of the Platt wheelhorses. Every influence the Odell supporters possess will be brought to bear against Rogers, while the Platt men will back him to the end. If they fail with him, the Platt forces have other men in reserve.

Jean L. Burnett of Ontario is in the field, with Senator John Raines back of him. He, of course, is an Odell candidate, but would meet with strong opposition from anti-Raines sources.

Assemblyman Edwin A. Merritt, Jr., of St. Lawrence County is another candidate for the Speakership, with the backing of Senator Malby. He, too, would be an Odell candidate. Assemblyman Louis Bedell of Odell's home, County of Orange, is a candidate, also, and is recognized as Odell's own man. The fifth candidate is Charles W. Mead of Albany, who has been put in the field by William Barnes, Jr., the anti-Odell leader of Albany County. In the event that the Platt men fail to win with Rogers they may turn to Mead.

Odell and Platt and their followers are taking careful stock of the situation, and each side is putting forth its strongest efforts to elect their own men to the next Legislature, which will elect the Speaker.

CHANGE OVER TO PALMA.

Santa Clara Provincial Council Leaves the Liberal Party.

HAVANA, Oct. 15.—The Provincial Council of Santa Clara to-day accepted the resignations of the Governor, Gen. Gomez, who recently abandoned the Liberal candidacy for the Presidency, and M. Alverdi, the Lieutenant Governor, who has been Acting Governor during the absence in the United States of Gov. Gomez. The Council then took up the question of the election of their successors.

The City Council of Santa Clara, the members of which have hertofore been adherents of the Liberal Party, to-day declared their adhesion to the Moderate or Administration Party.

NEW FOES FOR GORMAN.

Foreign-Born Citizens Combine to Defeat Negro Disfranchisement.

Special to The New York Times.

BALTIMORE, Oct. 15.—An organization has been formed composed of foreign born citizens representing nine nationalities to co-operate with the Independent Democrats and Republicans in fighting the Gorman negro disfranchisement plan. They charge that the proposed Constitutional amendment, while intended on the surface to disfranchise only the negro, will have the effect of disfranchising also all foreigners who are not well educated.

A committee has been appointed to confer with the independent Democrats and with the reform league for common action. An appeal has been issued addressed to all foreign-born citizens declaring the amendment will take away the right to vote from all naturalized citizens and their sons unless they can explain a section of the Constitution read to them in English to the satisfaction of a majority of the registrars.

Rev. G. T. Packard Dead.

BOSTON, Oct. 15.—The Rev. George Thomas Packard, a well-known Episcopal clergyman and a contributor to newspapers and magazines, died at his home in Jamaica Plains to-day, aged 61 years. Mr. Packard was a native of Lancaster, Mass. His first parish was St. Ann's, Brooklyn, N. Y. Later he was rector of a church in Jersey City. His health failing, he took up newspaper work, and for several years was connected with the editorial staff of The Boston Advertiser.

H&I COLLARS ARE LINEN

Collar Chat No. 36

You supposed you were getting linen; but the linen stamp is not there.

What a wholesale deception!

Your protection is the H. & I. "Warranted Linen-Four-ply" stamp on every collar.

You are entitled to full value.

You don't get it in Cotton Collars; but you do get it in H. & I. Collars. 2 for 25c.

If your dealer won't supply you, send us his name, asking for booklet, "Linen versus Cotton," and get collar-wise.

Lace robes at $5 to-day

THEY are not $5 Lace Robes, though—not by any means. We doubt if you can duplicate their equal elsewhere for less than $8 to $12—so you can well imagine the great demand there will be for these Robes. Main Floor.

Here's another thing you want to consider—we've only 500—and at the best the lot will not last long.

It's one of those typical Simpson Crawford Co. lace robe sales—an event that gives you a bona fide opportunity to secure the newest and best styles of imported and domestic robes at about half price.

We never hold a great sale of Lace Robes without offering extraordinary values, extraordinary assortments, and that is why New York women attend these great special offerings.

$5.00 for $8 robes.
$15.00 for $25 robes.
$25.00 for $40 robes.
$35.00 for $50 robes.

WHITE BRUSSELS NET ROBES IN MANY STYLES.
SPANGLE ROBES IN BLACK, WHITE AND OPALESCENT.
LIERRE ROBES IN ENDLESS VARIETY.
EVENING WEAR ROBES.
LACE NET ROBES IN MANY EFFECTS.
PARIS MODEL ROBES.
ROBES MADE IN BRUSSELS.
ROBES MADE IN ST. GALL.
ROBES MADE IN SAXONY.
ROBES MADE IN NEW YORK.

A new tailor made suit that's a beauty

IMPORTANT NOTICE

If you cannot find the shade or size you want in this lot of Suits we will take your order. The value is entirely out of the ordinary and we are determined that no smart dressers shall be disappointed.

OUR suit and coat section is equal to the requirements of the smart dresser who insists on having her new Fall Suit made to order, just as it is to those who are satisfied with the ready-for-service garments.

Compared with our suits and coats in style, quality and material there's absolutely no advantage in going to the extra expense of having a garment made to order. They are the acme of fashionable elegance.

However, the custom tailor engaged to make these suits after a specially imported model was unable to have them ready in sufficient numbers for Monday's Sale, so we had him send up the fifty that were completed, and we will take orders to-day at 42.50, in any size or color. The regular price for these suits, ready for service, 50.00.

Special range of colorings—Elephant gray, Orchid, Gobelin blue—several shades of wine, bottle green, navy and black—long, tight fitting coats made of fine doeskin—lined with heavy quality taffeta—new skirt model. Price, 42.50

CHINA'S LONG SLEEP SEEMS ABOUT TO END

Japan's Efforts Result in Rousing National Consciousness.

MOVEMENT IS ANTI-FOREIGN

It Is Asserted That Japan Means to Use It to Further a Campaign of China for the Yellow Race.

ST. PETERSBURG, Sept. 25.—Upon the receipt here of dispatches from Tokio saying that Japan soon intends to open negotiations with China regarding Manchuria, the representative of The Associated Press called on a prominent Russian merchant who is on a brief visit home after a long residence in Northern China and questioned him concerning Japan's future efforts to obtain predominant interest and influence in the affairs of the Chinese Empire. This merchant, who is exceedingly well qualified to speak of Far Eastern affairs, made the following communication:

"The national progressive movement in China, which has been going through a course of activs development for the last ten years, is to-day a very powerful factor in the Middle Kingdom, and one with which the Japanese are reckoning to the fullest extent. This movement had its origin with the old secret societies, both anti-dynastic and anti-foreign, which were brought into existence by bad administration on the part of the central Govefnment and by the abuses indulged in by missionaries and other foreign residents of China.

"The Boxer outbreak of 1901 was a startling evidence of this anti-foreign feeling. The movement has developed slowly and steadily, outgrowing the old secret societies and forcing them into the background, and always progressing toward the ideal of Chinese solidarity and national unity, until to-day it is quite divorced from its origin and stands alone. The recent Japanese naval and military successes have added to the popularity of the idea, and brought it to its present strong and flourishing condition.

"There are material evidencss of the movement, but of much greater importance and significance are the growth and broadening of ideas with which it has been attended. By this I mean the grafting upon China as a whole of Western ideas and ideals, which has resulted in a quickening of the nation at large, such as has never been witnessed before. This is very significant, but the most important element of this phase of the situation lies in the fact that these ideas have been introduced into China through Japan, one ean almost say by the Japanese, who have by this procedure exerted a powerful influence upon the civil edueation and mental growth of the Middle Kingdom.

"Every one knows that the Japanese schools and universities are filled with Chinesc students, and that Japan goes out of her way to make these young men welcome and impress upon them her interpretation of the broader ideas they imbibe on her soil. When these young Chinese return to their country they are the pioneers not only of Western ideas, but of Japan's far-sighted and far-reaching political purposes. Of this fact the Chinese are often unconscious, but the work they do for Japan on Chinese soil is none the less effective. One of the most striking results of this propaganda was reco.ded but a few weeks ago, when the Government, in response to petitions from students and many members of the Progressive Party, not excepting some of the Viceroys, for a Constitution, appointed a commission with Prince Tsia-Tze at its head to examine various Constitutions now in existence and report on the advisability of an adaptation to Chinese needs.

"This propaganda of Western education under Japanese influence is conducted in other ways. China is filled with Japanese, working in various ways to these ends, whose existence and efforts are known only to such foreigners as are intimately acquainted with ths country. Furthermore, there are to-day about seventy Japanese professors engaged permanently by the Chinese Government, as well as large numbers of Japanese employed by local Chinese authorities in many minor capacities.

"The National progressive movement is spreading rapidly, and it numbers among its adherents many high personages. The provincial viceroys are too good politicians to be sincerely pro-foreign, and their affiliation with the new movement has been followed by that of many other influential Chinamen.

"The boycott against American goods was an outcome of this movement, and showed its anti-foreign character. While the boycott was directed against the United States, nominally because of immigration restrictions, its deeper significance is seen by us who know China and the Chinese in the evidence of the growth of the idea of 'China for the Chinese,' the awakening of China to self-consciousness, and this is a direct result of the progressive movement.

"The boycott has shown the Chinese their power, what they can do when they get together, and at any moment we may see it directed against any other foreign power doing business in China, not necessarily in retaliation for a specific grievance, but as an aggressive act based on the belief of growing nationality and solidarity, self-sufficiency, and general anti-foreign sentiment. This is the real danger underlying the boycott movement, a danger which renders it of interest to all merchants doing business out there. The Chinese have become conscious of their entity, their existence, and power as a nation.

"Japan has prepared the way for a far-reaching effort, namely, that of turning the national progressive movement in China into a movement of 'China for the yellow race,' with Japan at the head. The Progressives are anti-foreign and the field is ripe. The magnanimous giving back of Manchuria to China will be but the stepping stone to the broader idea. Japan will not restore Manchuria for nothing; she has been at work too long and too adroitly to let this splendid opportunity for driving an advantageous bargain escape her. She practically created and then fostered these feelings of solidarity and self-consciousness, and now purposes to use them for her own ends.

"A most interesting and, from the standpoint of Japan, a most dangerous element in this situation is found in the fact that it is not always possible to direct and control a strong and growing spirit of nationalism. Southeastern Europe gives many striking examples of this. The Chinese Progressives may insist upon turning the lessons they have learned from Japan to their own account, of applying to China and for China alone the ideas of national independence which Japan has nurtured among the best elements in the empire. China has quickened to a spirit of patriotism, and as a result, China may combat Japan's efforts toward the ideal of 'China for the Yellow Race' with the slogan 'China for the Chinese.'"

COMBINATIONS FOR PEACE.

Important International Readjustments About to be Effected.

LONDON TIMES—NEW YORK TIMES Special Cable. Copyright, 1905.

ST. PETERSBURG, Oct. 15.—The final consummation of the treaty of peace throws open the door to international readjustments wherein this country is concerned.

I am able to state with the greatest certainty that we are on the eve of most important developments, which, without committing the powers chiefly concerned to any definite engagements, will nevertheless prepare the way for political combinations calculated to assure the peace of the world.

I am not at liberty to disclose the nature of these developments, but I may state that nsither Russia, Great Britain, France, nor Germany will have cause to complain, as Germanw did in attempting to justify her aggressive attitude regarding Morocco, that the other powers are trying to isolate her.

AGAINST AMERICAN TRUST.

12,000 New Zealanders Ask That Our Harvesters Be Barred.

LONDON TIMES—NEW YORK TIMES Special Cable. Copyright, 1905.

WELLINGTON, N. Z., Oct. 15.—Twelve thousand workers have petitioned Parliament to prevent the American Harvester Trust from exploiting New Zealand, as its operations, not being subject to labor laws similar to those in New Zealand, would be detrimental to the workers of the colony.

The petitioners demand that a 40 per cent. duty be imposed on all goods sold by the trust which can be manufactured here, the object being to maintain the high standard of living which the New Zealand workers enjoy. The implement manufacturers also ask for prohibitive duties.

The Government, apparently fearing the hostility of the farmers, has not promised anything definite, and, as opposition is expected from the country members, legislation by the present Parliament is doubtful.

MANY MISSISSIPPI MURDERS.

Human Life Seems to be Cheap in That State This Year.

Special to The New York Times.

MOBILE, Ala., Oct. 15.—During the week now closing there have been twenty-six homicides in Mississippi. Sunflower County gets the discredit of six of these killings which occurred within two days. Hinds County had three homicides, Simpson County had two.

Mississippi's criminal record this year exceeds by far any record of previous years or the days of reconstruction. In some counties, especially where a large negro population exists the inhabitants seem to have a homicidal mania and men are murdered on the public roads and city highways without fear.

Von Sternburg Not to Retire.

BERLIN, Oct. 15.—An official denial is given of the report that Baron Speck von Sternburg is likely to retire from the post of Ambassador to the United States on account of delicate health. The question of a change of Ambassadors at Washington has not been considered. Baron von Sternburg will sail for the United States on Oct. 24.

Another Shock in Calabria.

REGGIO DE CALABRIA, Calabria, Oct. 15.—Another shock of earthquake, lasting ten seconds, occurred this afternoon throughout Calabria and caused a great panic. The situation was rendered graver by torrential rains, which caused houses to fall, but fortunately there were no serious accidents.

COPULA AND COMMA AGAIN.

With Embroidered Instances of Consistency in Comma Using.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

An interesting point is raised by your correspondent "C. B. S." in relation to the punctuation of this statement: "The following officers are to be elected: President, Vice President, Secretary and Treasurer." Because it is not unusual for the offices of Secretary and Treasurer to be held by one person, there is room for doubt as to whether three or four persons are to be elected. There would be no such doubt if a comma were placed after the word "Secretary." There are two rules of punctuation covering this point. Almost any book on rhetoric and composition will tell you that the comma should be inserted; newspaper usage decrees that it should not. Here, for example, is a sentence punctuated according to the rhetoric rule: "The butcher sells beef, pork, lamb, and veal." In a newspaper the comma after "lamb" would be omitted. A rhetoric book would say it should be inserted, on the theory that its omission falsely implies a closer relation between lamb and veal than betwsen the other articles enumerated.

It is not well, to regard either ruls as ironclad. The writer who punctuates mechanically by rule is sure to get into trouble. I have known writers who so closely followed and wrongly interpreted the newspaper rule as never, under any circumstances, to place a comma after a word followed by "and." Frequent absurdities resulted, of which the following is a sample: "Last night Mrs. Smith lost her watch and her husband, on being informed of the fact, notified the police." The reader, it will be observed, runs up against a snag. The first impression is that Mrs. Smith "lost her watch and her husband." As a matter of fact, Mrs. Smith lost her watch; and her husband, on being informed of the fact, notified the police.

On the other hand, the comma may be overworked. I knew a scholarly critic who contended for the following punctuation of a firm name. "Smith, Jones, & Robinson." His theory was that if the comma after Jones were omitted an announcement like the following might be misunderstood: "Smith, Jones & Robinson are offering a fine line of dress goods at low prices." The critic held the far-fetched view that this was equivalent to informing Smith that Jones & Robinson were offering a fine line of dress goods, &c.

As a matter of fact, it is equally erroneous to claim that the comma should always, or should never, be omitted after a word preceding "and." The only object of punctuation is to make the meaning of the writer clear to the eye of the reader. Having learned the significance of the various marks, the thing is to use them intelligently with that end in view. The only art to be acquired is that of "making good sense" and avoiding ambiguity. Not Really Popular.

From The Washington Star.

"Don't you play any of the popular airs?" asked the man who was attending to the details of a convention.

"No," answered the leader. "This is a political band. We don't play anything but 'Hail to the Chief,' 'Star-Spangled Banner,' and 'He's a Jolly Good Fellow.'"

RULERS PAY TRIBUTE TO IRVING'S MEMORY

ACTOR SACRIFICED HIMSELF

Advised Long Ago to Give Up Arduous Roles—Nation Wants the Burial In the Abbey.

LONDON, Monday, Oct. 16.—King Edward and Queen Alexandra, through Gen. Sir Dighton Probyn, keeper of the Privy Purse and Extra Equerry to the King, yesterday sent a message of sympathy to the family of Sir Henry Irving, in which their Majesties say:

"He will indeed be a great loss to the profession of which he was such a distinguished member."

A message of sympathy has also been received from President Roosevelt.

Director Jules Claretie, on behalf of the Comédie Francaise, has telegraphed condolences.

That the body of Sir Henry Irving should find a resting place in Westminster Abbey appears to be a very general desire. An editorial in this morning's Daily Telegraph says:

"Ths nation will, we are persuaded, ask this honor for him with no uncertain voice, and we know we interpret the wish and feeling of the country when we plead for a public interment in the Abbey."

The flood of tributes of admiration and affection is unceasing. Men of all classes, including the great churchmen, are giving public expression to their feelings, nearly all dwelling as much on Irving's personal character as on his histrionic talents.

It seems to be beyond doubt that Irving sacrificed himself by hard work. He had been advised a long time ago to give up arduous rôles like that of Mathias in "The Bells," owing to the strain on his weak heart, and only last week he had been reluctantly persuaded to omit "The Bells" in future. It appears that for several years past the weakness of ths lungs had thrown an undue strain on the heart. Sir Charles Wyndham says that last February he begged Sir Henry to take warning and not to burn ths eandle at both ends with receptions in the morning and exacting performances in the evening.

Many interesting stories are told in the tributes of Sir Henry's friends. For instance, Mr. Forbes Robertson says that Sir Henry told him it was his financial success in the United States that enabled him to obtain his success at the Lyceum Theatre in London.

Gen. Booth of the Salvation Army, J. L. Toole, the actor, and Sir Theodore Martin were among the veterans who hastened to express the sense of ths loss the world had sustained in the death of the distinguished actor.

Nothing has yet been decided as to the funeral arrangements, pending the meeting of theatrical managers which Sir Charles Wyndham has called for to-day, and which probably will decide to ask the Dean of Westminster Abbey to permit the interment in the Abbey.

EXPERT TESTIMONY.

Should It Have the Final Voice in Matters of Public Morality?

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The editorial in THE TIMES of Friday, Sept. 22, entitled "The Army Canteen," is a matter of some interest. It seems calculated to set forth once and for all the truth in connection with "expert testimony," and it does a greater service than if it were merely what it purports to be—some reflections on the working of ths army canteen. The truth is, as THE TIMES points out, that expert testimony must always come from the inside. The inside look is the only valid basis for expert testimony. Kipling's Indian Prince is right. The "barren women" of England, who leave their natural functions of dishwashing and child bearing and seek to educate public morals, havs no expert knowledge of army conditions in India, nor can they have. This is so manifestly true that it is a strange necessity laid upon THE TIMES, that of calling attention to the fact. We might illustrate the truth further, and say that no expert testimony in connection with recent disclosures of gifts from corporations to political machines can come from newspapers or from any ex-cathedra source, but must come from the corporations and tho machines themselves. We havs a reminder of this editorial truth, also, in the fact that the words "expert" and "experience" come from the sams root.

However, this truth presented in THE TIMES's editorial is not the whols story of the army canteen, nor of any other question up for public debate. Men and women, not expert in drinking beer in military camps, have gathered certain ideas of morality that expert tesimony is not likely to overthrow. It may be most inconsiderate in the men and women of this country to judge J. D. Rockefeller for the practices of the Standard Oil. Such peopls doubtless display "ignorance and impudence." What can they know of trust methods when they have never personally conducted a grsat trust? Yet we know it will bs a sad day for this country when the right and wrong of Standard Oil business methods are judged only by "expert" judges (stockholders) on the basis of "expert testimony."

We are fain to think that expert testimony is but a small part of the matter, after all. We listen with impatience to the "expert testimony" of officers, (moderate drinkers and hard drinkers,) and by some strange logic heed instead their wives and mothers; and these speak with quite other tongues. And by this same token we hope that, if the canteen question is to come up again, our legislators may still hark to the standards of morality held by "ignorant and impudent" women who have never drunk expert knowledge from an army canteen.

But, further, while it seems true that men and women of this country who are not at close quarters with the canteen in operation have a right to be heard, it is hardly fair to believe that the judgment of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union takes into account no inside information. Time and expense have not been spared by this organization to gather testimony, partisan and non-partisan, from men and women located at army posts. This is sufficiently a matter of record to demand no more than the mere statement of fact. But, putting aside the fact that the Woman's Christian Temperance Union possesses a great mass of accurate information, the larger question still remains—namely, whether, after all, "expert (partisan) testimony" must not be considered the smaller part in any question of public morals. NOT TO STAY IN MANCHURIA.

Japanese Troops to Begin Evacuating the Territory at Once.

TOKIO, Oct. 15.—It is believed that the Government has sent an order to Manchurian headquarters to begin the evacuation by Japanese troops to-morrow. It is expected that Japan will effect the complete withdrawal of her troops in six months.

M. Hayashi, Minister to Korea, when interviewed by a Jiji representative at Osaka, said that the peninsula was now practically a dependency of Japan. Adequate capital and wise foresight would certainly develop the natural resources of the country and make Korea the source of considerable wealth.

M. Hayashi arrived here to-day.

AMERICAN STEAMER SEIZED.

Japanese Captured the Centennial, Bound for Vladivostok.

TOKIO, Oct. 15.—The Navy Department announces the seizure of the American steamer Centennial on Oct. 10 in Soya Strait.

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 15.—The Centennial is an iron schooner-rigged steamer of 2,075 tons. She is owned by the Charles Nelson Company of San Francisco.

Japanese Want to Hear Bryan.

TOKIO, Oct. 15.—William J. Bryan and his family, who arrived at Yokohama yesterday, will spend two weeks in Japan. They will make a visit of five days to Tokio, and Marquis Ito and Count Okuma will invite Mr. Bryan to dinner. The Japan American Society will request Mr. Bryan to address its members at the Young Men's Hall on Tuesday. Count Okuma will preside.

Nansen May Come to Washington.

CHRISTIANIA, Monday, Oct. 16.—The Politken says it learns that Dr. Nansen, the arctic explorer, will be appointed Norwegian Minister at Washington.

ADVANCE AT FALL RIVER.

Manufacturers Agree That Wage Rate Should Be Partly Restored.

FALL RIVER, Oct. 15.—It is understood in manufacturing circles here that within a short time the Fall River Cotton Manufacturers' Association will grant an advance in wages to the operatives, of whom there are now upward of 25,000 employed in association mills. No official action fixing the amount of the advance has been taken, but it is expected an announcement will be made during the week.

Last Sunday the Textile Council voted to request the restoration on Oct. 23 of the scale which prevailed prior to the cut of 12½ per cent. made on July 25, 1904. While the majority of the manufacturers favor an advanee, either on that day or a week later, many of them are of the opinion that the mills are not yet able to pay an increase of 12½ per cent., and advocate a half-way step, with the understanding that no further advance will be considered until next Spring.

ALARM FOR PRIVATE CRANE.

He Has Vanished from Fort Hamilton and His Papers Are Destroyed.

The brother Masons of Thomas F. Crane, a private soldier at Fort Hamilton, began to advertise for him yesterday. Crane left the barracks about two weeks ago, saying that he was going to the bank to draw some money, and from there to visit his sister. Since Crane disappeared there has been a fire at Fort Hamilton, and his papers and effects were burned up. This complicates the case, as nobody knows the name of Crane's sister, who is married.

CHEAP CREW FOR SQUIERS.

It Is Said He Got Foreigners Because Americans Wanted Usual Pay.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, Oct. 15.—At the coming convention of the Federation of Labor in Pittsburg, the Boston representatives of the Seaman's Union will report that the United States Minister to Cuba, Mr Squiers, shipped a crew of foreigners here last week for his yacht Hoosier, because he had failed to get Americans to make the voyage for less than the standard rate of wages.

Mr. Squiers is alleged to have offered his crew $10, whereas the rate is $30.

Train Kills Husband and Wife.

HALIFAX, N. S., Oct. 14.—While driving to church to-day Mr. and Mrs. Henry M. Ernest were struck and killed by a Halifax and Southwestern Railway locomotive at a crossing near Mahone Bay, Lunenburg County. A young son of the couple was so badly injured that he cannot recover.

ST. PETERSBURG MOBS DISPERSED BY TROOPS

Gendarmes Charge People Following Troubetskoy's Body.

THE NATIONAL HYMN HISSED

Panic at a School Festival—Compositors to Quit Work and a General Strike Is Feared.

ST. PETERSBURG, Oct. 15.—The body of Prince Troubetskoy was conveyed to the Nikolai Station to-day for removal to Moscow. A vast multitude, including deputations of students, followed it.

When the procession was nearing ths station a squadron of gendarmes appeared, and almost at the same moment a revolver shot rang out from the crowd, causing a panic. Tho gendarmes drew their swords and charged and dispersed the crowd. So far as can be ascertained no one was injured.

Red flag demonstrations in the Nevsky Prospect this afternoon drew out immense crowds of spectators, but a squadron of gendarmes and Cossacks drove the demonstrators away without resorting to force.

From the Nevsky Prospect a band of students and workmen carrying red flags and chanting revolutionary songs, marched across the river, and began an open-air meeting in the square in front of the university. While the speeches wsre in progress the police again charged and dispersed the crowds. A workman and a student received sabre cuts.

At the annual school festival of ths Fifth Gymnasium to-day people in ths audience began to hiss the National Hymn. A panic ensued, and the excitement was augmented by the explosion of giant firecrackers. Many persons wers bruised, but no one was seriously injured.

The St. Petersburg students ars exasperated over ths attacks by the police and the arrest of several members of a coalition committee chosen by a student meeting on Sept. 26. A renewal of the disorders is not improbable.

The most serious feature of ths situation is that a striks of printers was declared to-night on political grounds. It is to last for three days, but it may be continued longer in case of repressive measures or arrests. A few of ths leading daily newspapers hope to be able to issus single sheets giving telegraphic news, but the others will suspend publication entirely.

The employes of several factories are ready to follow the lead of the printers, and the authorities are fully alive to the danger that ths strike may become a general one.

The street sales of the Slovo have been prohibited.

By command of the Emperor ths Council of ths Empire has suspended the greater part of its legislstivs labors and has returned the bills awaiting its consideration to the Ministerial departments concerned for submission to ths Imperial Douma.

STIMULUS FOR SHINTOISM.

Togo Sets an Example by Worshipping in Ise Temple.

TOKIO, Oct. 15.—Ths news that Admiral Togo worshipped in Iss Temple is creating a profound impression.

It is believed that his act will furnish a lasting example in national rsligious education and that ancestral worship will receive fresh stimulation, especially in the army and navy.

Admiral Togo has shown his implicit faith in what he said in his report of ths great naval battls, when hs attributed the Japanese victory to the protection of the spirits of the imperial ancestors.

THE FLUTE OF PAN

By JOHN OLIVER HOBBES

If you were in love with the Queen of Siguria—and you knew that she loved you—and you were too proud to figure as Prince-Consort—would you ask her to abdicate for you? Would it be right to say to her "Come to my studio in Venice, and lead the simple life?" Would a strong man do that? This is the problem presented in this novel in which the destiny of Siguria hangs on the thread of the love of a girl.

Electric Lighting

The CHEAPEST, utility, maintenance and adaptability considered, of all artificial illuminants

¶ In the home electricity is the safest and most convenient form of lighting. Rooms may be equipped with any number of lamps for decorative purposes or special occasions without effect upon the rate

¶ Apartment Buildings—A large economy may be effected in the management of apartment buildings by the installation of EDISON SERVICE. It solves perfectly all lighting and power problems; it completely eliminates all dirt, noise and inconvenience

¶ Hotels—It is here that the EDISON SERVICE is proving indispensable—a perfect lighting service—power for electric elevators to be run at any desired speed, high or low. Existing hydraulic elevators may be operated by electric pumps, superseding steam

¶ Laundry Machinery can be more effectively operated and at less expense than by any other method

¶ Restaurants and Cafes where every square inch of space is so valuable find EDISON SERVICE the most valuable form of lighting. Here, where the demand at any moment may call for 100 or 5,000 lamps, the expense is always in proportion to the actual current consumed

¶ The Small Store is always brighter and more attractive when lighted by electricity. It invites the purchaser—displays the goods to better advantage—banishes dark corners and helps to sell goods

¶ The Large Department Stores in some instances have as many as 30,000 lamps and hundreds of horse-power in elevators, fans, cash systems and refrigeration. The number makes no difference to the Edison Service; always the same under all conditions

¶ Electric Signs are acknowledged the most attractive form of advertising. Their vigilance at night, "keeping everlastingly at it," makes lasting impression on the purchasing public

¶ For Every Purpose where light and power are required, economy, convenience, safety, cleanliness and cheapness are characteristics of the EDISON SERVICE

DOCTOR'S STRANGE TRIP ON A FREIGHT CAR ROOF

SWAM THE HARLEM RIVER

He Is Dr. Arthur St. Clair Knudsen, Who Has Been Staying at the City Club.

Policeman Diehl of the West 152d Street Station found a bundle of clothing about 7:45 o'clock yesterday morning on the Speedway under Washington Bridge. The bundle contained a blue suit and some underwear. The clothing and linen were in first-class condition, and evidently belonged to a man in good circumstances.

In the pocket of the coat were two checkbooks on the Fifth Avenue Bank, two cablegrams, one addressed "Knudsen, City Club," and the other "Knudsen, Fifth Avenue Bank," five letters addressed "Dr. A. S. Knudsen, City Club, 55 W. 44th Street," a nickel watch, but no money. The police surmised that the owner of the clothing had climbed the railings and committed suicide by jumping into the Harlem River.

About the same time that the report of the Sergeant of the 152d Street Station on the case reached Police Headquarters a report came from the Yonkers police that a man had been found early that morning by a brakeman lying naked on a New York Central freight car. The man was in an exhausted condition from exposure, and could not tell who he was or how he came to be in such a peculiar state.

The police took him to St. Joseph Hospital, Yonkers, where he said that he could not remember anything that had happened on the previous night. After the surgeon had given him stimulants, he said that he was Dr. A. S. Knudson of the City Club, New York. Then Sergeant McGowan called up Police Headquarters in New York and asked if they had found any clothes that might belong to the man they had found naked on the freight car.

"Yes, we have the clothes, and we want to find the man who goes with them," replied Sergt. Hildebrand.

"Well, we've got your man up here."

"In Yonkers?" "Yes"

"Did he float up there so soon?" asked Sergt. Hildebrand, who supposed the owner of the clothes had jumped into the river.

Meantime Police Headquarters had telephoned the City Club and found that Dr. Arthur Sinclair Knudsen had been staying there for several weeks with his friend, William F. Wilbour, a lawyer of 141 Broadway. When Mr. Wilbour was informed of what had happened to his friend he sent a messenger to the West One Hundred and Fifty-second Street Station for the clothes, and instructed him to take them to Yonkers.

Mr. Wilbour informed Lyman Dyer, another friend of Dr. Knudsen's, and they hurried to Yonkers. When they arrived at the hospital the doctor had somewhat recovered, but was in a highly nervous condition.

Late in the evening Dr. Knudsen was brought back to New York and lodged in a private house under the care of a physician.

The police theory is that Dr. Knudsen, while temporarily insane, took off his clothes and climbed over the iron railings and plunged into the Harlem River.

The cold water gave him a shock which restored his senses, and he swam across the Harlem River and landed on the other side because it would have been impossible for him to have climbed the slippery wall on the Speedway side where he had left his clothes. The river is about 200 yards wide at that point. He probably boarded the freight car which happened to come to a standstill at that moment.

Mr. Wilborn did not believe that his friend had tried to commit suicide. He said that it was simply a case of exaggerated nervous prostration.

"I have known Dr. Knudsen for many years as a man of the highest reputation," he said. "He comes from an old family of Swedish missionaries, who settled in Honolulu, and is a comparatively rich young man.

"Five years ago D. Knudsen took his degree in the Columbia Medical College, but has never practiced medicine. He spends his time traveling, and has just returned to New York from Honolulu. Lately the doctor has been suffering from nervous prostration, and was very much overwrought about some private affairs. My idea is that he walked out into the country and feeling very hot he plunged into the river for a swim, and could not get back to his clothes.

"This would be nothing unusual for a man born in Honolulu to do, as both the natives and whites there live in the water. He does not use drugs and never drinks."

Before leaving the hospital at Yonkers Dr. Knudsen told Surgeon Gannon that all he could remember was that on Saturday evening he dined at the City Club with some friends. Leaving there he walked up Broadway, when a feeling of extreme fear overtook him. He started to walk more rapidly, and finally broke into a run, his only thought being to move rapidly.

Finding that this did not satisfy his feelings, he took a cab and rode to 155th Street, where he says he took a train for High Bridge. There he took to the road again and ran. Feeling that his clothing was oppressing him and holding him back, he says he remembered removing it and starting to climb over a freight train. That was the last he remembered until he was revived at the hospital.

It was said at the City Club last night that Dr. Knudsen had acted strangely for several days. On Saturday he asked for his mail at the desk, and when informed that there was none for him he remarked "Oh, well, I don't suppose you would give it to me if there was any."

The last time he was seen there was at 8 o'clock on Saturday evening, when he rang the bell violently on the third floor and then ran downstairs and tore madly out of the door before the bellboys could get to him.

He is a member of the Harvard and Seawanhaka Clubs, but does not belong to the City Club. Dr. Knudsen is 30 years old and single. It is said that he will recover.

ONE SHOT AND ONE STABBED.

Two Unarmed Men Wounded in a Jersey City Street Fight.

Robert Hamill of 36 Woodward Street, Jersey City, and George Sullivan of 17 Weldon Street were passing Railroad and Brunswick Avenues last night when they were jostled by two men. A quarrel followed, and the men attacked them, one with a pistol and the other with a knife. Hamill was shot in the left lung, and probably will die. Sullivan was stabbed in the neck and back.

The police arrested Louis Corbrussia and Frank Lemmeck, who denied having had anything to do with the fight, but both were locked up. Hamill and Sullivan were unarmed.

INSURANCE FOR MARINES.

"Dod-dingle, whet's this ere insurance biz, anyhow?"

It was Binnacle Bill McDougall, A. B., at the regular weekly mind-meeting of the survivors of nautical consciences at the navy yard yesterday. He looked at "Toddy" Jones, who makes pretense to learning, his father being a horse doctor.

"I'm all hove to on a mind vo'age," explained Bill. "'Tween chews I ha' been astudin' this thing an' I'm jigful of B. Q. U.'s and p. c.'s and jinted accounts, and all this high-falutin' Josh tiff, dod-dingle, I'm groggy in the foretop."

Old Man Barometer O'Brien stopped forecasting cold waves by virtue of his "bum jints" to vouchsafe, "Ye've company, Bill. It's a problem of life."

"It's shangaling other people'e boodle," said Gloryhole Charlie.

Mr. Jones caressed his trousere to make sure his legs were in them, and then coughed like a tugboat towing one of Major Woodbury's deck-laden battleships.

"Insurance," said Toddy, "is not fer plain men to dinkle with. Thar'e a fleet of eddicated land Admirals over in Noo Yo'k tryin' ter find out whet it is. It's clearance papers is all fine an' square, an' it flies the ensign at the jacketaff clean an' proper, but thar's a lot of stoodente jalouse the Cap'n may be usin' the black flag fer a pillow. Insurance, mateys, is an art like makin' ellpknote. You gents air the policy holders, an' I be the company. You all chips in a chew of tobac', an' I pumpe up an affadavy pervidin' thet if you intelligent gents gets marooned till the tobac' gives out, an' yer down to the tarpaulin I'll hand ye out a nice plug with a band on it.

"Me agent, Twelve Bore, rer instance, will pipe ye all 'bout the benifits of it, the least he knows beln' the more convenient to his future. Well, you dubs thinks I salt all yer plugs in the strong box. But I wants mine, an' the Vice President wants his and the Directors an' me cousin an' me wife's cousin an' the other orficere' cousins, they all want theirs. Now I gets in me fine work as a syndercate. If you seed me tradin' yer plugs fer them dude marines stick pins an' collar buttons ye'd npine I war takin' a chance on them gilt edge securities. But I goes inter a jint account with Bill here, an' I gives him the plugs an' he goes aroun' the barracks a-tradin' them. Now, pint one—I wear the stick pins fer safe keepin', an' Bill sporte the buttons. When I gets enough pins I organize another company an' puts me friend Gloryhole in it. He hollers he's a jeweler an' sells them pins to you intelligent gents, an' Glory an' meself an' the Vice President and the Directors an' me cousins an' their cousins an' the other orficers' cousins divvy up the spi'ls. Thar ain't no risk, not a dodo of it, fer dy'see me securities are the best, bein' yerselves, an' the profits is powerful.

"When I war a boy that war a methody sort o' feller with a figgerhead like a morgue hatch an' a walk like 'taps' thet used er go aroun' the countryside pattin' little rookies on the head an' eayin', meiancholy like, 'Whet a pretty rookie to be sure, an' I do hopes yer parents hev the charts fixed up all right if ye air called away to Davy Jones. Them appendicitis an' rickets is ragin' fierce in the next village. Thet pore Grogan boy he war dead las' week, an' no money in the house ter bury him. If I only had se'zed the benifits of civilization an' insured him,' his pore mother said to me.

"D'ye know thet little Grogan war as happy an' lively as yer own rookie las' week? Them gastritis took him sudden an' it war all over in a night.' Thet feller would go on an' chin 'bout sudden death an' aristicratic diseases till the pore wimmin folks used ter hitch painters onto his bow lines fer fear he would escape without insurin' them. Thet feller war whet I call the firing line of the sharpshooters of insurance. Away back war the battleships achasin' the merchantmen with thirteen inchers of argument.

"Nowadays ye begin as a little boy an' get handed a deck order like this: 'Dear Bill: You want yours. Write an' spell well an' figger, espicially figger.'

"Thar's the kernel of the matter, figgerin.' Figgerin' is a gift, mateys. A man thet can figger can do mos' anything with figgers, an' a man thet can't, can't be no Admiral on the insurance ship. By an' by, with application, ye can figger yerself the papa of the crew an' make them all Dimmycrats or Roosevelts. Yer responsibilities will weigh on ye, an' if ye ain't keerful will squeeze the stickpins out of yer raiment."

"But 'bout them syndercates, Toddy?"

"Whet becomes o' them plugs?"

"Now ye hev struck a good pint. If it war known whar all them plugs went it wouldn't be insurance. If the President knew it wouldn't be insurance, or if the Vice President knew or the Directors or the President's cousins or the Directors' cousins. Each gent mus' just know a little—thet's corporation."

"Whet can they do with them, anyhow?"

"Nuthin'," said T. Jones. "Don't you dubs get yours? Whet more did ye sign fer? An' ain't I President thet says so?"

READY TO MEET HARRIMAN.

Kruttschnitt in San Francisco—Southern Pacific Plans.

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 15.—Julius Kruttschnitt, Director of Maintenance and Operation of the Southern Pacific Company, is in San Francisco, for the purpose of holding a conference with E. H. Harriman, President of the Southern Pacific, who is expected to arrive from the Orient about Oct. 21.

Exactly what will be discussed during the conference is not disclosed.

Mr. Kruttschnitt to-day made the announcement that a large amount of rolling stock had been ordered for the improvement of the Southern Pacific service throughout the system.

Included in the order are 140 locomotives of the newest type, 6,000 steel flat cars, 120 coaches and baggage cars, and 8 observation cars.

Three steamers of 10,000 tons also have been ordered for the Southern Pacific's Atlantic Coast steamship service.

Another announcement made by Mr. Kruttschnitt was that in the next three years it is planned to have a perfect block system in operation between San Francisco and Omaha. In the future all rails laid by the Southern Pacific will be of the 90-pound, instead of the 80-pound variety.

CHIHUAHUA, Mexico, Oct. 15.—The Southern Pacific Railway Company has made a deposit with the State Government amounting to $540,000 to guarantee the construction of the railway line between Guaymas and Guadalajara. The road has already made a contract with Henry Lund & Co. of San Francisco for 50,000 tons of steel rails.

LITTLE KANAWHA EXTENSION.

Line That the Wabash Once Improved Gets New Life.

Senator Stephen B. Elkins, who is here to-day on personal business, is authority for the statement that the Little Kanawha Railroad, which is part of the holdings of the Little Kanawha syndicate, much discussed recently in connection with the Ramsey-Gould trouble, is to be extended to a connection with the coal and coke railroad owned by Senator Elkins and ex-Senator Henry G. Davis at Burnsville.

Nearly $1,000,000 worth of improvements were made on this railroad before it was abandoned by the Wabash, and it penetrates some of the richest coal fields in the State. Senator Elkins says the extension will be built at once by the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad.

KILLED IN THE GOOSE MARKET

Church Crowds See a Fight That Ends in One Man's Death.

Two men bumped together at Ninth Avenue and Sixteenth Street shortly before 9 o'clock yesterday morning, an argument followed, and the result was that James Smith, a janitor at 91 Ninth Avenue, is dead, and John Holten, a truck driver, is under arrest charged with the murder. The district is known as the "Goose Market."

The crowds were pouring into St. Bernard's Catholic Church, in West Fourteenth Street, near Tenth Avenue, when many stopped to watch the two men, who were quarreling. Holten had a poker, and in the melée Smith was knocked down. He was picked up and sent to the New York Hospital, where he died shortly afterward of a broken skull.

Holten pleaded self-defense, and declared that he had simply pushed Smith away, and that he tripped and fell. He said that he had bumped into Smith, and that the latter had begun to abuse him.

$10,000 for Charity

The Siegel Cooper Co.'s Donation For This Year.

Its Distribution to Be Determined by Popular Vote, in Which You or Your Neighbors Are Invited to Participate.

THE SIEGEL COOPER CO., following an established precedent, will again this Season make a Donation of $10,000.00 to the Charities of Greater New York and Vicinity.

In making a similar donation last season we were confronted by the old difficulty—that of how and where to distribute it; for there are very many most worthy charities to be considered in this connection.

After mature deliberation we decided to leave the question of distribution to our Patrons, feeling that the bond of interest which unites them to this establishment was the best guarantee of their wisdom in such distribution.

The thorough satisfaction evinced on every hand in the division of last season's donation, in which $10,000.00 was divided among 81 institutions, impels us to adopt the same method for this year's work—except that instead of 81 institutions, we have arranged for 133 insititions to receive benefits.

Sales Slips to Be Used as Ballots.

From now until January 31, 1906, our customers may avail themselves of the SALES SLIPS given with each purchase (using them as Ballots) by writing on the back thereof the name and location of the Institution or Organization they desire to favor, and then deposit these SALES SLIPS within two weeks after the dates stamped on the SALES SLIPS or RECEIPTS in a locked box placed for that purpose at the entrance to the Woman's Parlor, Second Floor, Centre.

For each TEN CENTS of purchase shown on the SALES SLIPS or RECEIPTS one vote will be counted for the Institution or Organization written on the back thereof.

To the Institution or Organization receiving the greatest number of VOTES will be donated	$1,000.00
To the recipient of the next greatest number of VOTES	500.00
To the recipient of the next greatest number of VOTES	250.00
To the 20 recipients of the next greatest number of VOTES, each $100	2,000.00
To the 30 recipients of the next greatest number of VOTES, each $75	2,250.00
To the 80 recipients of the next greatest number of VOTES, each $50	4,000.00
Making 133 distributions, and a total of	$10,000.00

A daily bulletin will be posted at the Voting Stand naming the different Institutions and Organizations voted for, and the relative order they occupy in the contest, as shown by the total number of Votes cast for each up to date.

Universal Approbation is the surest proof of supreme merit. Amateurs and professionals alike pronounce the Steinway the best piano produced; it is acknowledged the "Standard Piano of the World." Facts are stranger than fiction, and the mere fact that over $100,000,000 worth of Steinway Pianos are in constant use is proof positive that it is the most popular and esteemed piano in the world. In over 300 principal cities of the globe the Steinway Piano is sold as their leader by the very best piano houses, and it is appreciated alike in palace and cottage.

Owing to the fact that it is constructed on perfect principles, and that only the choicest material and the most skillful labor are employed, the tone of the

The latest Steinway models, the Vertegrand, at $500, and the Miniature Grand, at $750, have revolutionized the entire piano industry, and they have brought the Steinway within easy reach of thousands of families to whom the price has heretofore been the only obstacle.

A critical examination of these new styles is respectfully invited.

SAYS EVERYTHING NOW MAKES FOR VULGARITY

Sir Edward Fry Deplores the Results of Modern Conditions.

HIT AT CARNEGIE LIBRARIES

Politics, American Slang, Cheap Locomotion, and Gambling as Degrading Influences.

Special Correspondence THE NEW YORK TIMES

LONDON, Oct. 7.—Despite the fact that he is nearly eighty years old, Sir Edward Fry, the noted jurist and member of The Hague Court, continues to make speeches and write articles which deal with old subjects from new points of view and which consequently result in stimulating discussion and criticism. Last Monday he delivered the inaugural address of the eighty-third session of the Birkbeck College in this city, and his remarks are being widely commented upon, to-day's Times devoting an editorial to them.

Sir Edward's subject was "Study as a Check to Vulgarity," and in the course of his address he declared in so many words that practically everything in modern life made for vulgarity. "Vulgarity," said Sir Edward, "seems inevitably to flow from the diffusion among the many of the things which beforetime belonged only to the few, the popularization sometimes of their advantages, sometimes of their vices. It seems almost inevitable that whatever popularizes should vulgarize.

The first thing the speaker mentioned as among the chief forces making for modern vulgarity was politics. It comprised, he said, not only the almost infinitely great but the infinitely little; for, while few things were more noble than the study of politics, as the science and the welfare of mankind, few things were more paltry, more wretched, or more vulgar than the lower forms of political partisanship, when thoughts of party-gain, personal ambition, local interest, or even more sordid matters, usurped the place that should be occupied by thoughts of the highest good of the country, or still more of the race. With the extension of the suffrage, the multiplication of elections for county, district, and parish councils, the development of a cheap, and often low, class of small newspapers, it was no wonder if this phase of political life seemed to some people to have gained a most undue prominence in the life of England.

Sir Edward then spoke of the vulgarization of the English language. "Consider by how many foes this noble language is attacked," he said. "The invasion of slang and vulgarisms, some home-bred and some brought across the Atlantic Ocean, the extent to which the pen and the press are used by persons of imperfect education and deficient taste, the hurry and carelessness of newspaper writers—all these things are constantly tending to the degradation of the written and spoken tongue of Englishmen."

The speaker made a passing fling at the Carnegie libraries. He remarked that if one turned from such an institution as the Bodleian library at Oxford, or the library of the British Museum, to one of the new municipal libraries, founded, perhaps, by the munificence of Mr. Carnegie and supported by the rates, and if they compared the character of the majority of the books consulted, first in the one and then in the other, they were conscious of a marked difference, and they could not deny that the functions of the one seemed higher than that of the other; that the one institution seemed the more refined, the other more popular.

Sir Edward said he had no wish to undervalue good works of fiction, but he declared that most modern novels were trash, and he regretted the vast preponderance of the works of fiction over works of a more serious and instructive character in the outfit of many public libraries.

There was, said Sir Edward, yet another kind of reading that was miserably weakening to the intellect and vulgarizing to the reader. He meant the reading of scraps and snippets of news, often of mere idle and personal gossip, which some papers provided for their readers, and the silly reader of which almost flattered himself as he read that he was participating in the idleness and frivolities of the great people about whom he read.

Modern facilities for cheap locomotion were another fruitful cause of vulgarity, according to Sir Edward. He went on to speak of the degradation of Scott's country and of the Alps, of the presence of hotels and musicians and showmen at places which, to be enjoyed properly, could only be enjoyed in quiet, of the flaring advertisements on Alpine heights, and of trippers' trains.

Finally, he declared, the diffusion of the vices of the few among the many was "one of the most serious facts of the present day," adding:

"Years ago betting, gambling, horse racing, were for the most part confined to the wealthy classes. The man of the middle and lower ranks of society scarcely felt the temptation to these things, and only wondered that aristocrats were such fools as to devote themselves to such pursuits, and often to leave their estates encumbered to pay the debts incurred by their extravagance. Now, as we all know, all this is changed, and the bookmaker is everywhere. He depends now not only on the thousand pounds of the wealthy, but on the shillings and the pence of the poor, of the working man, of his wife, and even of his children; and thus an evil which affected formerly only a small class of society has spread over its whole surface and permeated to its heart."

SHOT BY A POLICEMAN.

Man Who Wouldn't Stop After a Robbery Is Seriously Wounded.

William Jansen of Eastern Avenue, Perth Amboy, was knocked down and robbed near the Perth Amboy Ferry in Tottenville, S. I., last evening. As it was growing dark he stopped in a Main Street hotel in Tottenville to get a drink, and there fell in with John A. Willis and Edward Johnson. They drank together. When Jansen started for the ferry, Willis and Johnson accompanied him.

In a dark spot in Main Street, near the ferry, Jansen was overpowered and thrown down. Somebody took $25 from him. He shouted for help, and Policeman Kettler, who was at the ferry, ran up and chased Willis and Johnson, who started to run away. At last the policeman ordered them to stop, saying he would shoot if they did not. Johnson stopped and threw up his hands. Willis kept on and Kettler fired. The bullet hit Willis in the left side and passed close to his heart. Willis was placed on board a train as quickly as possible and sent to the S. R. Smith Infirmary, a prisoner. Johnson was also arrested.

MORE HARLEM ROBBERIES.

Caller Who Wanted to Leave a Clinking Bag Gathered In.

Robberies in Harlem have been more frequent in the last week. The East 104th Street police arrested yesterday morning George Neolen, 21 years old, who could not remember his address, but was sure that he was a painter by trade. They think he is the thief.

Mrs. Newyear of 301 East 107th Street called up the police at midnight saying that a man had called at her house and asked her to take care of a bag he was carrying. She said that after she had slammed the bag in his face it occurred to her that it sounded as if it was filled with silverware.

The man arrested answered the description given by Mrs. Newyear of her caller. Six blocks away the officers found a bag containing $1,000 worth of silverware in a vacant yard.

The police are still looking for the robber who was scared away from the home of Mrs. Addie Brown, at 254 West 135th Street on Wednesday evening, but succeeded in getting away with $200 from Dr. W. H. Hitchcock, her brother, who has an office on the ground floor.

The home of Benjamin F. Haskell at 277 West 131st Street was robbed on Friday night while the family was at dinner. Miss Haskell remembered as the family sat down that she had not taken some of her medicine, and went to her room. She found the gas on, the room in disorder, and some toilet articles and trinkets missing. A search of the house failed to give any clue to the thief.

SUES FOR GRAFTED SKIN.

Man Willing to Furnish Some Says Too Much Was Taken.

SPOKANE, Oct. 15.—George Lovejoy, an Elk, who was selected to furnish cuticle to save a fellow-Elk's wife, Mrs. Fred B. Searles, suffering from severe burns, yesterday brought suit against C. P. Thomas for $10,000 as the value of fifty inches of skin which he says the doctors peeled off his legs while under chloroform.

Mr. Lovejoy asserts that it was represented to him that the surgeon would take from his thighs only two or three strips of cuticle three or four inches long and three-fourths of an inch wide. After the operation Lovejoy found that the fronts of his legs between knee and hip were stripped of skin, and it was ten days before he was able to leave the hospital.

Mrs. Searles was burned in an accident with a lamp at Lewiston, Idaho, and was brought to St. Luke's Hospital, Spokane, for treatment. A number of Elks volunteered to furnish cuticle to cover the burned places, but Lovejoy proved such a promising subject that while under chloroform all the skin necessary, except some supplied by Mrs. Searle's husband and brother, was peeled off his legs. The grafting operation was successful, but the woman was so weakened from long illness that she died.

NEWSBOYS IN LUCK.

Beneficence of a Man in Too Big a Hurry to Save Money.

A nice looking young man and two girls stood on the corner of Fourteenth Street and Broadway last night at 6 o'clock waiting for a north-bound car. Another young man dashed by them after a south-bound car, which he boarded. From his pockets spilled three half dollars, two quarters, and a dime.

The nice looking young man and the two girls picked up the money and yelled in concert to the loser. There was no answer. They looked at one another in an awkward way.

The finders were not acquainted and were in trouble. It was evident that they were honest.

They appealed to a policeman, offering him the money. He said he did not belong to the "graft squad," and whispered advice in the ear of the young man.

The girls handed to him their share. He tossed it in the air. There was a scramble among the newsboys. The two girls boarded the first car, and the young man waited until several cars had passed before he continued his journey.

OUR DEFICIENCY BIGGEST.

The Record of Postal Service—Some Countries Make a Profit.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 15.—The International Postal Bureau, Consul General Guenther reports from Frankfort, has published the financial results of the postal services of the several countries for 1903, which show that in a number of States the expenditures exceed the receipts, the United States leading in the deficiency list. The following are the results in the several countries and colonies in 1903:

Excess of Expenditures—United States, $4,356,000; Argentine Republic, $919,838; Mexico, $248,970; Luxembourg, $32,145; Crete, $5,600; Cuba, $53,461; Orange Colony, (Africa,) $37,442; Honduras, $16,405; Algeria, $220,985; French India-China, $716,223.

Surplus receipts—United Kingdom, $22,581,000; Russia, $15,054,000; Germany, $14,668,000; France, $14,489,000; Spain, $3,088,000; Hungary, $2,895,000; Belgium, $2,509,000; Japan, $2,316,000; Netherlands, $965,000; Italy, $772,00; Roumania, $579,000.

MUST PAY BY HEIGHT.

Swiss Railroad Provides Machines for Measuring Youthful Passengers.

The Swiss railroad booking clerks have just been provided with machines for measuring the height of children traveling over their roads, and have been told that all children over three feet tall must pay full fare. If there is any dispute the clerk must take the child's measure with the machine.

In the Summer months Switzerland is full of Americans who are often accompanied by tall children who never appear to be over 10 years of age. Ten years is the Swiss limit for half fare. This has led to so many heated arguments in German and English that the Government decided to introduce the measure system.

The fun will not really commence until next Summer, when the tourist season begins. In the meantime the clerks are getting steady practice, but they have not as yet framed up a vote of thanks to the Director who suggested the new system.

GEN. HANCOCK'S NEPHEW HELD FOR MAID'S DEATH

Warrant Also Out for a Sister, Charging Complicity.

ARREST MADE NEAR MIDNIGHT

Accused Sister Declared That Maid Died After an Unexplained Absence—Doctor Contradicts Her.

Special to The New York Times.

HYATTSVILLE, Md., Oct. 15.—Winfield Scott Hancock, nephew of the famous Union General and Democratic candidate for the Presidency against James A. Garfield, was arrested shortly after midnight last night charged with manslaughter. He is suspected of having been implicated in the death of Emma Smallwood, a maid employed at Collingwood, the Summer home of his father, Col. John Hancock, near this place.

A warrant has been issued for the arrest of Mrs. Amanda Mackall, a sister of Hancock, who is charged with complicity in the crime.

The authorities here were notified of the death of the girl late Thursday night. As the circumstances seemed suspicious, an investigation was begun immediately.

Mrs. Mackall at the inquest, which was called immediately, testified that the maid had absented herself from the Hancock home for three days and had not let the family know of her whereabouts. She returned on Thursday evening and complained of feeling ill. A cup of tea was given to her, and immediately after she drank it she fainted. Hancock attempted to carry her to her room, but she died in his arms.

Up to midnight Mrs. Mackall had not been arrested. Her brother refuses to make any statement further than to say "This is terrible." Col. Hancock, who is greatly disturbed, says his son had been drinking for the last year. Col. Hancock has done everything possible to afford facilties for a thorough investigation.

Dr. Glazebrook, who performed an autopsy on the body, declared there were many evidences that the girl had died before Thursday evening. He expressed the opinion that death had taken place on Wednesday evening at the latest.

After many consultations, the authorities decided to arrest Hancock. They would not say what evidence they had against him. Officers were sent to the Hancock home late on Saturday night, and early in the morning they took Hancock from his bed and brought him to jail.

Hancock is 43 years old. He once held the office of Postmaster in the Census Office in Washington. He is a widower with two children.

BETTER BARNS FOR DAIRIES.

Department of Agriculture Opens a Campaign for Improvements.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 15.—Secretary Wilson of the Department of Agriculture believes that good dairying begins with the right construction of cow barns.

He will therefore send out this week a general call to dairymen everywhere to tell the department how they have built such structures. Some of the best barns will be visited by agents of the department with a view to securing complete details.

Those who contemplate building new dairy barns or intend to rebuild their old barns with a view to make them modern and sanitary are asked to write to the Dairy Division and explain the details of size, cost, drainage and slope of land and exposure, and purpose of barn. It is not expected that the department can furnish every applicant with a full set of drawings and specifications, but all such correspondence will have careful attention.

From this study of the needs of the farmers it is expected to work out eventually a system that can be readily adapted to the needs of the greater number of dairymen.

NEW CLUB IN PANAMA.

PANAMA, Oct. 15.—A meeting of American university men employed by the Panama Canal Commission was held this afternoon in the Administration Building for the purpose of organizing in the City of Panama a club for the preservation of the college spirit of fraternity. A constitution and by-laws were adopted.

Charles F. Magoon, Governor of the Canal Zone and American Minister, was elected President; R. H. Hitsbard, Vice President, and J. Sargent, Secretary. Col. William C. Gorgas, chief sanitary officer of the Zone; P. B. Maltby, division engineer; Judge Little, and R. M. Arrango were among those selected for the Board of Governors. A building formerly occupied by the American Legation will be rented by the new club.

SENATORS PLAN TO KILL RATE BILL WITH TALK

WILL NOT MEAN ANYTHING

Some Republicans in the House Are Sincerely for Revision, but They Will Not Have a Chance.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 15.—Despite the fact that the tariff has been withdrawn from the field as an Administration issue, signs are increasing that there are likely to be some brushes on the subject in Congress. The Massachusetts platform is expected to serve as the text for speeches which in previous Congresses were made on the Iowa idea.

That Republicans will be the most interesting participants in such a discussion goes without saying. That the struggle will be a serious one, however, is not believed. The principal uses of what tariff discussion there is to be will be for the purpose of blocking the President's railroad rate policy.

The Senate is at present understood to be determined on the death of the railroad rate plans of the Administration, but the Republicans in the Senate do not fight the Administration openly. When they oppose its policies it is by quietly drugging the Administration bills to death, at the same time loudly professing in public their fondness for the President. Even Senator Foraker will protest his fondness for the Administration to the end.

The President himself perceived the present danger and forestalled it to the best of his ability by withdrawing tariff revision as a policy to be insisted upon at present. Notwithstanding his effort to prevent the use of the tariff as a means of blocking regulation of railroad rates, the tariff talk continues. Of revision there is no prospect whatever.

The Democrats see plenty of chance for party advantage in using such a discussion to emphasize an apparent division among their opponents.

In the House there are many sincere advocates of tariff revision among the Republicans. Most conspicuous among them is Tawney of Minnesota, the Republican whip. Minnesota is really more nearly the representative of the Iowa idea than is Iowa herself, and there are other parts of the Northwest which are strong for revision. These sincere tariff reformers will not keep silent, and their participation in the debate will lend it an accent of reality. But the part the House will play in such an affair will be small because of the iron rule of Speaker Cannon's machine, and Mr. Cannon is too good a friend of the President to permit a Presidential programme to be sidetracked by a fight of this kind.

WINE SHOW IN THE GARDEN.

The National Liquor League Also to Meet on Wednesday.

The first Wine and Spirits Industrial Show to be held in this country will open at 11 o'clock on Wednesday morning in Madison Square Garden. The opening address will be made by John J. Delany, Corporation Counsel, who will represent the Mayor.

The show will continue for eight days. There will be many interesting things to see, not only for persons identified with the trade, but for the public in general. The annual conventions of the National Liquor League of the United States and the American Bottlers' Protective Association will also begin on Wednesday.

SUICIDE KILLED FRIEND, TOO.

Wandered Into the Wrong Room and Turned on the Gas.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 15.—William Vogel killed himself and his best friend with gas early this morning in a room in the National Bakery Home, a lodging house. The friend was Gottlieb Burkbart, an aged baker. Both were found dead in Burkhart's fourth-story room. Vogel is believed to have entered it by mistake and turned on the gas.

Vogel entered the house after midnight and told a hanger-on he was sick of life. He groped his way up the dark stairway to the fourth floor. He evidently had no matches. He probably thought Burkhart's room was his. He turned on the gas and lay down on the bed.

DISPUTE OVER BATTLESHIPS.

American Naval Experts Divided on the Latest Idea Abroad.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 15.—A lively controversy is being waged by the naval experts over the designs for the battleships Michigan and South Carolina. Whether the United States shall follow the lead of other nations and build 18,000-ton war vessels or stick to the present maximum is the chief point in dispute.

While the greatest secrecy surrounds the deliberations of the naval experts, it can be said that one design has been worked out to such a point that if it should be adopted the contracts could be let early next year. It involves a radical departure in battleship construction, both as regards the character and disposition of the main battery and the ability of the ship to remain afloat despite the severest pounding. Although presenting an entire novelty in battleships, it has found such favor among the officers who are familiar with it that at present it seems likely it will be the one chosen.

The act of Congress authorizing the Michigan and South Carolina provided that they should have a trial displacement of 16,000 tons. Since that act was passed the question of building still larger ships has been much discussed, and there are several advocates of at least 18,000-ton ships among the officers of the General Board.

The principal argument of these officers seems to be that other nations are building ships of that size and the United States must follow suit or be left behind. Admiral Dewey has expressed himself as in sympathy with the idea.

There are officers in the Construction Corps, however, who do not share this opinion. They argue that the principal gain by such an increase in size would be a slightly increased speed, but that this would not be effective except when the ship was fresh from dock, and that it could hardly be sufficient to produce much advantage in action. Moreover, it would be obtained at the cost of other important factors.

An officer who discussed the matter this afternoon said: "Suppose it were decided to add 2,000 tons to these ships. It could be done either by sending them further into the water or by giving them greater length. In the first case, they could not get into our harbors and there are no docks that have water enough to take them in. Channels would have to be dredged and new docks constructed. In the second case, it is doubtful if the addition of 2,000 tons would give the required increased speed, and it would enlarge the target presented to the enemy by 12 per cent. and decrease the handiness of the ship in manoeuvring."

Each increment of speed after a certain point is reached is obtained only by a very greatly increased horse power. This officer cited the case of a battleship which steams at sixteen knots with about 9,000 indicated horse power, but which requires 12,000 horse power to attain seventeen knots and 17,000 to make eighteen knots.

He was inclined to the belief that with ships of 16,000 tons, as the South Carolina and Michigan are to be, an additional 2,000 tons would not give sufficiently increased engine power to produce an advantageously higher speed. Half of that increase would be taken up in the increased length, and nearly the other half in the added turret which the greater length would demand.

If size is to be increased in order to get greater speed, he is inclined to favor going beyond 18,000 tons. Of the three things to be desired, speed, power of battery, and stability, not more than one could be improved, in his opinion, by adding only 2,000 tons.

Interest, not unmixed with amusement, was exhibited by some officers at the Navy Department this afternoon in the detailed exposition of the supposed design of the Michigan and South Carolina made in the latest edition of a well-known English naval publication, copies of which have reached Washington. It is only a guess, and serves to excite curiosity among officers as to other data concerning the United States Navy published in the same periodical.

New Montclair Church Free of Debt.

MONTCLAIR, N. J., Oct. 15.—The congregation of Trinity Presbyterian Church dedicated their new building to-day. The dedicatory sermon this morning was preached by the pastor, the Rev. Orville Reed. The feature of the dedication was the fact that the edifice, which cost $70,000 to build, was handed over by the Building Committee free of debt. The funds were provided by voluntary contributions.

CROWN FOR AMERICAN GIRL.

Newark Preacher, After a Foreign Trip, Makes a Prophecy.

The Rev. Dr. Daniel H. Martin of the Clinton Avenue Reformed Church, Newark, N. J., who returned yesterday from England, says that he believes an American girl will soon occupy one of the thrones of Europe.

"There is a sort of tremor in the average European nervous system," he declared, "over the colossal fortunes that are piling up in America. Some of the journals seem to be in dread lest a Morgan or a Carnegie buy up all their art treasures and send them to America. Already you may see in the shop windows the sign 'Made in America' or 'American Style,' by way of commending the articles.

"The European aristocracy is evidently trying to forestall the American invasion by monopolizing the great American heiresses and thus making their country profit by our wealth. There are 192 American women in the aristocratic circles of England and 78 in France. I am looking forward to seeing an American girl on a European throne. Why not?"

AUSTRALIA CUTS INTO OUR CHINESE TRADE

Endeavors to Profit by the Boycott on American Flour.

NEW MILLS IN SHANGHAI

China Prepares to Grind the Wheat That Soon Will Be Produced in Manchuria.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 15.—Special Agent Burrill furnishes a report on the consumption of flour in China which is especially interesting at this time, in view of efforts made to prevent importation of that commodity by means of the boycott. Australian dealers expect to receive permanent advantage from the boycott, but what will most interest United States exporters is the probability that in the near future Manchuria will supply a fair proportion of the flour required by China. Mr. Burrill's letter is dated at Shanghai, Sept. 1, and says:

Shanghai is the distributing point for northern China, and into this port there was imported from the United States in 1904 commodities at a customs valuation of 25,986,201 Haikwan taels, of which there were 91,728 piculs of flour, valued at 343,980 Haikwan taels. Figuring the arbitrary customs rate of 1.38 Haikwan taels to $1 gold, as established for the month of September, the total importations amounted to $18,830,580, and the 91,728 piculs of flour, equal to 45,864,000 pounds, were worth $249,261 in American money. Of this, 1,244 piculs, valued at 4,664 Haikwan taels, were re-exported to foreign countries and Hongkong, and 58,860 piculs, valued at 213,036 Haikwan taels, were re-exported to Chinese ports, leaving the total net imports 33,851 piculs, valued at 126,929 Haikwan taels. It is estimated that northern China consumes about one-sixth of the flour imported into the empire although by reason of the system, or lack of system prevailing hers, it is impossible to obtain accurate figures.

In 1904 practically every pound of flour imported into China came from the United States, but there is now a movement on foot by which the Australian product is to be introduced, and rigorous efforts are to be made to increase the demand and maintain the supply. A commercial agent, under the direction of the Australian Government, visited Shanghai about six months ago to investigate trade conditions and reported that, although the United States controlled the market in China, there was an opening for Australian flour which, if properly worked, might be developed into a paying business.

This report, it is said, will lead to the invasion of the Northern China market by the Australian flour manufacturers at an early date, but it remains to be demonstrated whether they can successfully compete with the American brands already firmly established and popular with the consumer. The opening of Manchuria will, however, unquestionably have an important bearing on the flour trade in Northern China, and manufacturers may be confronted with a disagreeable situation in the not distant future.

It is known that wheat can be grown in Manchuria comparing favorably with the best quality raised in the United States, and this, it is maintained, will lead to the erection and operation of flour mills which will be able to supply a good grade of flour at prices far below those at which the American flour can be sold. Not only will the cost of production be less, but the freight and insurance charges will be extremely low as compared with rates from the Pacific Coast, and the cost of labor may be estimated at approximately 25 cents (Mexican) a day. With these advantages, the grinding of Manchurian wheat into flour by mills owned wholly or in part by the Chinese is merely a question of opportunity and capital, and that eventually the flour made in Chinese mills of Chnese wheat will control the market of Northern China appears to be equally as well assured.

The outlook for the continued control by the United States of the flour market of Northern China is not especially bright, while the promised venture of the Australians into this field of commercial activity seems predestined to failure. The price of an article of food is the first consideration of the Chinaman, although the dsy has passed when the manufacturer catering to this market can afford to disregard the quality of his product. The competition is now keen, and will grow stronger with the opening up and development of Manchuria, so that American flour producers will be compelled in time to meet the lower prices or abandon this field to the Chinese. Of course there is now and will be in the future a strong demand for high-grade American flour, but this is confined almost exclusively to a small percentage of the 10,000 foreigners in Shanghai and a few in the outports.

In Shanghai alone there are six companies operating flour mills, and as two of these own double mills there are in reality eight in active operation. The erection of a ninth mill has just been completed, and the machinery, which is in part American and part English, is now being installed. This mill, it is reported, will begin work in the near future, and its output, it is estimated, will amount to 700 barrels a day. Of these eight mills, all are owned by the Chinese, with the exception of the China flour mill, which is controlled by both foreign and native capital. In every instance, however, the mills are operated under foreign supervision. The machinery of the Fou Foong (a double mill) is entirely of American make, while the other double mill has half American and half English machinery. All the other mills, with one exception, are equipped with English machinery.

The combined output of the eight mills is 3,000 barrels a day, and of this quantity approximately 1,800 barrels a day are turned out by those mills using American machinery. Chinese labor is employed exclusively, and while to operate a mill practically four times as many employes are required as would be found in any mill of similar capacity in the United Sattes, the difference in wages paid to workmen in the two countries greatly decreases the cost of production.

Most of the wheat used is brought from Wusih, near Soochow, from Yangchow, and from Kiangyin, all within 150 miles of Shanghai. It is transported in native boats having a capacity of from 300 to 400 bushels each. The wheat is in an extremely dirty condition when delivered, being mixed with small lumps of clay, mud, and stones. This is a part of the great national system of "squeeze," the foreign matter increasing the weight of the grain, thereby insuring an additional though small profit on each transaction. Suffice it to say that when cleaned at the mill a loss of approximately 10 per cent. is shown on the deal. The average price of wheat delivered to the mill is $1.20 a bushel, but it is subject to fluctuations.

The flour manufactured by these mills is not of a high grade. Although it has a white appearance and looks strong, the wheat is comparatively free from gluten and the result is a weak product. That the demand for locally made flour is exceptionally good is shown by the number of new mills erected within so short a period. The first flour mill was built about ten years ago, and all are apparently paying good dividends on the investment. The Chinese managers declare that their success is attributable to the fact that the flour produced is much drier than the American flour and is preferred on that account.

FOUR KILLED BY POISON.

Three Children and a Man Taste Corrosive Sublimate.

Special to The New York Times.

HAZARD, Ky., Oct. 15.—Three children of Jason Commetts were killed by eating corrosive sublimate, and Mareon Combs, who found them dead, is also dead from the same poison.

Jason Commetts is a veterinarian. Yesterday he left a package of the poison on a desk in his office while he answered a call several miles away from his home.

The children—2, 4, and 7 years of age—fouud the package after his departure, and, evidently thinking it contained sugar, ate some of it. All of them evidently were instantly killed.

Combs, who lived on an adjoining farm, called at the Commetts house and found the children dead. He was accompanied by a cousin, Henry Webster. Picking up the pinch of the corrosive sublimate and putting it in his mouth, Combs started from the house for help for the children. He had gone but a few yards from the house when he fell, and was dead when his cousin reached him.

FAMILY POISONED.

Mrs. Nellie Gabriel, 45 years old, her daughter Hattie, 21, and her son, Samuel, 19, of 1,584 Madison Avenue, were taken to the Harlem Hospital at 1:45 o'clock this morning suffering from ptomaine poisoning. They had eaten sardines.

Soon after midnight Mrs. Gabriel became very ill and tried to rouse the members of her family. She found them even more afflicted than she was. By great effort she got to the office of Dr. L. A. Lyons at 145 East 103d Street. He found every symptom of ptomaine poisoning when he examined the patients, and had them taken to Harlem Hospital. It was said that they were in a serious condition.

Mr. Gabriel, who was also poisoned, was treated by Dr. Lyons at home.

THE ANTHRACITE SITUATION.

Mining at High Mark, but Shipments Delayed by Car Shortage.

The September returns of anthracite coal shipments fully carry out all that has been said in regard to business in that particular line of the fuel industry. The shipments are running at the rate of 5,000,000 tons a month, and yet there does not seem to be much in the way of an accumulation, in first hands at least; there has been a pretty good lot of coal put away by consumers and dealers in the aggregate, and thus these factors are forestalled as against necessity of an unexpected or urgent character. No one seems to think so much of the strike talk as they did a few weeks ago, but this may be largely due to the fact above noted, for the man who is well fed and warmed does not fear the wintry blast. There is a good deal of comment on the situation, and the consensus of opinion is surely adverse to the demands of the miners, if they be the means of a strike being called.

The total shipments for the year to Sept. 30 by the companies, with percentages and a comparison with 1904, follow:

The output to date in the first three quarters of the year is 3,214,042 tons ahead of 1904, and the output is ahead of any year except 1903.

The demand for bituminous is such that prices are advancing rapidly. Large consumers the country over are getting small shipments on their contracts and are entering the market and buying cheaper grades, forcing prices up rapidly on any spot coal offered. The most urgent demand seems to be at New York, just at this writing, coal in large quantities, by water conveyances, going to fill requirements of consumers formerly taking all-rail shipments. Owing to various restrictions, all-rail coal has been very hard to ship, and stocks have become low in consequence. Some of the concerns doing bunker business have had considerable trouble in furnishing the quantities required with prompt dispatch, although no detention bas been causcd as yet to steamers.

One month earlier than last year the railroads are confronted with a car famine so general and widespread that it is more scrious than anything known in years, and it will grow worse instead of better. This statement comes from a conservative traffic official, who says further that the aggravated condition is not confined to any one branch of transportation, but affects nearly every commodity handled by the carriers. The shortage of equipment seems to be most embarrassing on east and west bound business. The perplexing feature is that the outlook for immediate relief is discouraging, and the carriers are at their wits' end in striving to satisfy demands made upon them for cars.

Notwithstanding the tremendous number of cars that have been ordered, many of which have been received, there is a shortage that is giving the railroads much concern. The Reading, Baltimore & Ohio, and Jersey Central Roads, in order to protect themselves against a shortage that will interfere with business, have issued orders not to allow their cars to go off the road, excepting where it is imperative. The railroads are now handling a great deal of coal, and they need all the cars they own. Many of the smaller roads that handle coal only through interchange with the coal-producing companies are guilty of misusing cars, and the new order just issued by the railroads named is aimed at them, as well as at the dealers who use the cars for storehouses.

It is not surprising to find the anthracite shares selling at the rates they do when one knows the limited extent of the territory and the fact that it is held by so few companies, gradually getting to be fewer. The output is increasing slowly, as the demand calls for more coal at a price, and this is the result of the conservatism that now regulates the output to the demand. Reading's hard coal tonnage has grown from 9,230,000 tons in 1897 to 12,029,000 tons in 1905. It is a cheering fact that the Reading, now more than three months in a new fiscal year, is in a fair way to exceed the record of 1904-5 by a handsome margin. These results are attributed to the natural advantages of the system, to a logical growth with the industrial development of the country, and to other physical causes; but beyond everything else the property owes prosperity to the ability and conservatism of its management.

AUTO RACE NEXT YEAR FOR AMERICAN CARS

NO VANDERBILT CUP PROTEST

Heath Had Drawn Up One, but Reconsiders — Telegraph Pole Shattered by Keene Attracts Visitors.

Amid the excitement and splendid achievements of the Vanderbilt Cup race, still fresh in the minds of all automobile lovers, plans were laid yesterday for a big road race of American cars next year. By the terms of the deed of gift of the Vanderbilt Cup, that trophy was to be raced for in America for the first two years. After that, the country holding the cup has the right to specify where the race shall be held. France now has that right by virtue of Hemery's victory last Saturday. Speculation has been rife in the Long Island racing headquarters for several days as to what would be done for long-distance automobile road racing in this country another year. Many manufacturers and owners of fast machines were loath to let the opportunity of holding a race pass by, but no one had any idea that steps were to be taken so quickly to give American cars another chance of showing what they can do in a long sped contest.

A meeting of several manufacturers was held yesterday afternoon at the Hotel Astor, and E. R. Thomas, head of the Thomas Automobile Company, made the formal offer of a cup to be raced for practically under the same conditions that govern the Vanderbilt Cup contest. The race for this cup is to run next season, and is to he open to American cars It will be an out-and-out American race, not an elimination event, but should a Vanderbilt Cup race be held abroad, it is quite possible that the successful cars in this event might be selected to represent America.

Mr. Thomas does not wish his name to be used in connection with the cup, and advised that it might be termed the Home Industry Cup. He is willing to have the trophy won outright by the victor in next season's race. As Mr. Thomas briefly outlined his plan for the rules governing the competition, the present intention is to have a committee of manufacturers frame the rules, and this general committee will name another committee to take entire charge of the race, the entries, and selection of cars to go abroad if that should be advisable. This latter committee will be composed of men who have no interest, even indirectly, in the manufacture of automobiles. Mr. Thomas hopes to induce a number of well-known men of ability to act as the real race committee. Another meeting of the leading manufacturers will be called within a few days, and plans will be more thoroughly perfected.

Over the Vanderbilt Cup course yesterday everything was quiet about the racing garages, but the twenty-eight-mile course was alive with the whir and chug of touring automobiles from early in the morning until late at night. It was estimated that from 800 to 1,000 machines went over the course. Nearly every car stopped at the telegraph pole at the "S" turn near the Albertson Station, which bore the visible marks of Foxhall Keene's collision. A big section of the pole near the base has been cut away as though hacked out with an axe. Keene's damaged machine is still in the barn near by.

Louis Chevrolet fixed the broken axle of his Fiat car near Bull's Head, and drove it to the Fiat headquarters at Garden City. Lancia was bright despite his disappointment at not winning. He and Nazzaro will start on a quick trip to Niagara Falls to-day and will sail for home on Thursday. Duray and Szisz will also sail Thursday. Joe Tracy overhauled his Locomobile yesterday and will bring it to the city to-day. Most of the other cars will leave Long Island within a day or two.

With a night's sleep and the cooling off of the first excitement after the race, the tendency to enter protests died away entirely yesterday. George Heath, who got second with his Panhard, it was learned, had gone so far as to draw up a formal protest against the winning Darracq car on the plea that the tires with which it was equipped were not made in France. Hearing of this, the Darracq people were ready to enter a counter protest that the magnet used by Heath was made in Germany. A member of the Racing Board said:

"I am afraid they were pretty stiff protests and I believe each side thinks it an act of wisdom now to call it square. No protests will be made."

Chairman Robert Lee Morrell and Secretary A. G. Batchelder of the Racing Board wound up their Vanderbilt race matters yesterday and left the Garden City Hotel in the evening. They were both happy and relieved at the successful outcome of the race. Keene's and Christie's mechanicians are getting along well. Christie's mechanician is still in the Nassau Hospital at Mineola, but is suffering chiefly from shock and a general shaking up.

The officers of the Automobile Club of America will entertain the owners and drivers of the cars in the race to-night at the club rooms, Fifth Avenue and Fifty-eighth Street.

TWO GUILTY OF LAND FRAUD.

Oregon Men Convicted of Conspiracy to Cheat the Government.

PORTLAND, Ore., Oct. 15.—A jury in the case of the United States against Willard N. Jones, formerly State Representative; Thaddeus Potter, an attorney, and Ira Wade, a timber locator, to-day returned a verdict finding Jones and Potter guilty of conspiracy to defraud the United States of a part of its public domain. Wade was acquitted.

The charge against the defendants was that tney secured persons to locate on lands in the Siletz Indian reservation in Western Oregon and to swear falsely that they had occupied the land.

BIG STABLES TO RACE AT LATE FALL MEETINGS

Great Establishments to Campaign to End of the Season.

LARGE FIELDS IN PROSPECT

Important Stakes for Two-Year-Olds Divided in Unusual Style Through the New York Turf's Year.

According to tradition, the Eastern racing season for the great stables ends with the Westchester Racing Association's Autumn meeting, but for this season at least tradition seems to be a lost influence in turf affairs, and the big stables, instead of preparing to go into Winter quarters, are as willing to take advantage of the late Fall meeting as are the owners of selling class horses.

In the stake entries for the Metropolitan Jockey Club's meeting, which begins at the Jamaica track to-day, every racing establishment of prominence in metropolitan racing is represented, and from all promise the quality of the horses racing through the remainder of the year at Jamaica and Aqueduct will be about the same as the Belmont Park meeting brought out, for the best horses of the year had been retired before the Belmont Park opening, and the racers that went through the two weeks of the Queens course racing are horses that almost to the last individual are intended to go straight on to the end of the year's campaign. This will carry the racing on for just one month more before the wind up at the Aqueduct track, where the turf year of 1905 in New York will end. One other thing in prospect is that the fields for the remainder of the season will be as large as the limits of the two tracks will permit, for the condition of turf affairs in the West has kept a big majority of the horses in training in New York all the latter part of the season, and the smaller establishments are prepared to fight hard for a share of the money to be won in the four weeks left for racing under the State law.

At both Jamaica and Aqueduct the programmes arranged are the most ambitious ever offered for Fall meetings on those tracks, the stakes comparing favorably with the average of the Summer meetings, but there are no really great prizes left to be contested for. Under the circumstances, it will require a most extraordinary series of successes for some one of the leading stables to make any change in the relative standing of the establishments on the winning list, and it is not within the limits of possibility that any stable can even approximate the winnings of the first establishment on the roll, that of James R. Keene, with about $225,000 to its credit. The Keene stable owes its prominence to the champion of the year, Sysonby, which three-year-old earned $143,000 of the stable's total, while Wild Mint, Delhi, and Von Tromp were the other chief contributors. The record made by the stable is a most unusual one, for the least part of the winnings came through the two-year-olds, which ordinarily are the best carners in any stable that races in the important stakes.

Mr. Keene's fortune with his two-year-olds has been that of every other owner in the East this season, for the big stakes for two-year-olds have been divided with singular impartiality. Of all the owners Harry Payne Whitney sent out the greatest number of stake winners in the big events, and the Whitney stable has not been remarkably fortunate at that. With Burgomaster, accounted the best colt of the season, Mr. Whitney captured three of the great stakes, the Great American at Gravesend in the Spring, the United States Hotel at Saratoga in the Summer, and the colt's part of the Matron at the recent Belmont Park meeting. Pegasus in the Junior Champion at Gravesend, Ironsides in the second part of the Double Event at Sheepshead Bay, Battle Axe in the Grand Union at Saratoga, and Perverse in the filly part of the Matron, were the other winners of big stakes for the Whitney stable, Perverse with three stakes to her credit at the one meeting at Belmont Park being the sensation of the Fall, and the chief contributor to the sum of $40,000 won by the Whitney horses at that meeting.

Misfortune earlier in the season more than offset the success that came in the Fall, for in addition to having the great three-year-old fillies Artful and Tanya shelved through the entire Summer and Fall, and the failure to get Irish Lad up to a race, the Whitney stable lost what was regarded as its best two-year-old filly when Queen of Hearts was cut down in the Spring.

The Keene stable showed two winners of important stakes, in Bohemian, which took the Tremont at Gravesend, and Kuroki, winner of the Brighton Produce, but for an establishment conducted on the scale of Mr. Keene's breeding and racing operations, the showing is far below what reasonably might have been expected, the biggest disappointment of the entire stable being in the comparative failure of the two-year-olds by Commando, of which Kuroki was the only one to come anywhere near his Spring promise. Mohawk II., which only rsced at one meeting, that at Saratoga, before being crippled beyond the chance of racing again before next season, won two of the rich stakes, in the Saratoga Special and the Hopeful, his career for the season then closing.

The other big stnkes of the year were distributed one to a horse, beginning with Rapid Water, which came to a sudden stop in his winning after the National Stallion Race at the Belmont Park Spring meeting, Vendor, winner of the Eclipse; Sue Smith, of the Astoria; George C. Bennett of the first part of the Double Event; Security, of the Great Trial; Ormondale, of the Futurity; Yankee Consul, of the Flatbush; Running Water of the Great Filly; Accountant of the Brighton Junior; Edna Jackson, of the Spinaway; Tiptoe, of the filly part of the Brighton Produce, and Lotus Eater, of the Triumph Stakes, were the horses that gathered the best of the other stakes of the year, in such a splitting up of the spoils as has not been experienced in many seasons.

Vogel Brothers Cravenette Overcoats

Let us set you straight on the matter of Cravenette overcoats.

The most successful process for waterproofing a garment is that of Priestley's, and every Cravenette treated to their process bears their name.

And when in addition to the Priestley Cravenette stamp an overcoat is identified with the label of Vogel Brothers, the combination is one that insures not only a waterproof overcoat, but also an overcoat of fine fabric with all the knacks of fashion and style that distinguish a Vogel Brothers Cravenette from the ordinary sort.

At $20—Cravenettes in Scotch plaid fabrics, fancy cheviots and oxford gray worsteds in great coat and belted back models.

At $25—The fashionable gray tones, light and dark shades of worsted in long overcoats and the swagger paddock and paletot models. A custom tailor could not promise as much for $40.

AUTO TRIP, TWO DIVORCES.

Chicago Lawyer Sues His Wife—Another Wife Was Beaten.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Oct. 15.—Frank E. Encell, a lawyer, has filed a suit for divorce, making the second suit growing out of an automobile trip last July from Washington to New York. He charges that Mrs. Encell received attentions from a friend at the Astor House, in New York, at the end of it.

Mr. and Mrs. Encell, Mrs. Oliver B. Main, and David Beaton, Jr., were on the trip. Mrs. Main got a divorce from Mr. Main, who is Vice President of the Borden-Sellick Scale Company, charging that he beat her on her return.

THAT VIVISECTION CLASS.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The article on the front page of to-day's paper will doubtless shock many readers. I refer to the opening of a vivisection class, under doctors A. J. Carlton and Albert Woelfel, at the Rush Medical School, Chicago. Is it not glorious to find that science has overcome all opposition from humane societies, (those weak-minded institutions,) and is going to open a school for the prolonged and scientific torturing of dumb animals? Any one even remotely acquainted with the unspeakable horrors connected with this practice cannot but think of the recently organized class without an involuntary shudder. May the women connected with it win unenviable fame.

Ardent worshippers at the shrine of surgery claim that science gains infinitely more, in proportion, than the animal concerned suffers by these diabolical operations. If such is really the case, why does not some ardent professor offer himself as a subject for the knives of his curious brethren? We might then manage to believe a small part of what is argued in its favor.

In the name of God's creations, both human and animal, let us oppose strenuously such brutality by every means in our power.

Pets and Microbes.

In commenting on the fact that the Tuberculosis Congress in Paris repudiated Dr. Koch's theory that bacilli are not interchangeable between man and beast, The London Pall Mall Gazette calls attention to the resolution passed "that it is desirable to be on our guard against all forms of animal tuberculosis." This must reinforce the vigilance with which supervision is exercised over our supplies of meat and milk, but it is also a reminder against the dangers which repose in a too sentimental familiarity with household pets. The dog and cat, it was pointed out, which live with their heads close to the ground, inhale almost all kinds of noxious microbes, and are thus ideal instruments of family infection. Young ladies who are in the habit of "wasting Christian kisses" upon their favorits animals could not have a more useful present just now than a full report of this portion of the congress proceedings.

BRICK WRECKS A STREET CAR.

Thirteen Persons Injured in Peculiar Accident in Detroit.

DETROIT, Oct. 15.—Thirteen persons were injured this evening when a Trumbull Avenue car, running west on Fort Street, struck a brick on the rails and jumped the track. It ran a hundred feet on the pavement and then crashed into a tree.

The passengers inside were thrown into a heap by the collision with the tree, while those on the rear platform were hurled to the pavement.

A GARRISON CELEBRATION.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The one hundredth anniversary of the birth of William Lloyd Garrison, which occurs on Dec. 10, it seems to me, is an event which should not only deeply stir and interest the colored people throughout the country, but one which should not pass without proper recognition on the part of the white people.

Steps are being taken by the colored people to have the event celebrated by members of their race throughout the country, but all of us now recognize more and more the fact that the work of Mr. Garrison and his co-laborers not only freed the black race, but was equally important in emancipating a large part of the white people of the United States. It is also true, it will be conceded, that to Mr. Garrison and his co-workers we owe, in large part, the fact that we now have a united country.

As the National, and even the international character and value of Mr. Garrison's services are now so widely recognized, I cannot, as a member of the race which he most served, refrain from urging upon the public the importance of seeing that the celebration of his one hundredth anniversary shall be of such a character as to do credit to our entire country. More and more, as the years pass by, all of us are enjoying the fruits of Garrison's work, and we should not fail to keep before this and coming generations the heroic and far-reaching nature of his services to mankind and the Republic.

EIGHTEEN PAGES

MR. JEROME AND THE PEOPLE.

It will undoubtedly be a pity and a shame if Mr. JEROME shall not be re-elected to the District Attorney's office. It will be a pity because his services are sure to be incalculably more valuable and more faithful than those of any other candidate, and it will be a shame because, if he be defeated, it will be on account of the hatred and the fear aroused by his past among the sordid politicians controlling the regular party machinery.

We are not, as our readers are aware, blind admirers of Mr. JEROME. We have found occasion to criticise his conduct in the past, and the qualities to which he owes much of his popularity—his fondness for sweeping denunciation, his tendency to extremes in talk and in action upon matters about which the public mind is excited, together with an occasional lack of true perspective in dealing with public questions—have sometimes seriously moderated the confidence his other qualities have justified. But we have been entirely convinced of his sincerity, of his fidelity to a high standard of official obligation, of his unselfishness, courage, and essential independence. He is a brave, straight, honest man who has done very much to make the County of New York a good place for good citizens and not an easy place for rascals to live in. It is safe to say that if all men in public place had the same aims and pursued them with like directness, energy, persistence, and disinterestedness, it would be an immense gain to the community. No one—not even the bitterest of all the enemies for whose enmity his decent fellow-citizens honor and love him—ever ventured to link his name with corruption, to intimate even that he could be bribed or scared to do what he believed to be a public wrong or to withhold his hand from what he believed to be a public duty. And it is the unquestioning belief of all who know him personally that his heart—as true as steel and stout in all moments of trial or danger—is as warm and tender as it is manly. As one of the opposition Senators said of Mr. ROOSEVELT last Winter: "If you want to fight him, you must keep away from him."

We do not suppose that any one really expected that Tammany would nominate Mr. JEROME. That could have happened only if an opposition fight had been put up which gave reasonable alarm to Mr. MURPHY, and Mr. ODELL, with Mr. HALPIN, took care that this was not done. After rendering the Republican nomination for Mayor contemptible by hawking it about among men either wholly unfitted for it or sure to reject it, it was finally given to a man in many ways qualified for it, who never would have been thought of had Mr. ODELL imagined there was the ghost of a chance that he could be elected. And on the morrow of the nomination the candidate was openly insulted, first by the rejection of his advice to name Mr. JEROME, and then by the selection of Mr. ABE GRUBER'S nominee, a selection equivalent to the indorsement of the Tammany candidate. If any one infers from these obvious facts that there has been a corrupt bargain the main object of which was to get Mr. JEROME out of the District Attorney's office, it would not be easy to refute the inference. That object would be, on the face of the situation, gratifying to Tammany and to Mr. ODELL. The means adopted to achieve it are consistent with the purpose. If it is logical to assume that men intend the reasonable consequences of their acts, it is equally logical that means leading inevitably to certain ends are intended to secure them.

The situation is very serious. There has been a good deal of evil-doing exposed in many directions during the past year. As to some of it, it is highly probable that sufficient proof can be got to bring the evil-doers within the reach of the criminal law. It is of the utmost importance that the work of prosecution should be in the hands of a vigorous, honest, independent District Attorney. Apart from extraordinary requirements it is always important that the administration of the criminal law should be in the hands of such a man. The influence which criminals—especially successful criminals and those whose violation of trusts has brought them wealth and a certain social standing—can bring to bear to delay, obstruct, or defeat the law are many, subtle, powerful. They are particularly effective where they can be exerted upon and through a political organization, the working of which goes on in secrecy, is aided by party discipline, and largely depends upon the division of spoils. There are signs that such influences have been exerted already. They can be exerted in the future with cynical certainty and security if Mr. JEROME is driven from office. What do the sober, honest, decent voters of the county propose to do about it? Mr. JEROME is fairly before them, duly and legally nominated by petition. His name will be on every ballot put in the hands of a voter in New York County on election day. No other name submitted for the same office has the slightest claim upon any but blind partisans. His has the claim of high character and marked ability, amply tested by long and conspicuous service. Is there not enough good sense, civic virtue, self-respect in this community to bring that name out at the head of the poll?

WHEN TO REVISE THE TARIFF.

"You don't give a well man medicine. If times get dull and tariff revision would make them better, then we can doctor the sick." Thus says Senator ELKINS. But everybody knows that if ever times get dull, it is only the tariff which prevents their becoming duller, and the argument against revision is stronger than ever. The Chinese way is only to pay doctors while their patients are well. If they become sick the doctor is discharged. That is a good rule for stand-patters. If they are endured in prosperity, we really ought to be rid of them in reaction, but we have had too many experiences that in dull times their activity is more pernicious than ever.

Tariff reform is neither poison nor medicine. It is mere hygiene, and is equally good for both sick and well, for the preservation of health and for the avoidance of disease. Instead of there never being a time for wise economic legislation, there is always a time for it. Some times are better than others, but no times are bad. Those who agree with Senator ELKINS think some times are worse than others for stopping tariff graft, but that no times are good for doing so. Elections are for the purpose of settling such differences of opinion, but the people's opinion has never been taken upon that pure issue. It is the politicians' business to see that they are kept from thinking about it, and made to vote upon something else.

THE PENDING GARBAGE CONTRACT.

The advertisement now appearing in The City Record for bids to be opened Nov. 6 for the five-year contract for receiving and disposing of the garbage of Manhattan and the Bronx has been the subject of much comment and not a little adverse criticism. The charge was openly made and generally believed that the contract of 1891, now in force with the Sanitary Utilization Company, was procured by fraud and collusion. Commissioner NAGLE of the Street Cleaning Department delayed advertising it until the time had long passed when any responsible contractor could be found who would give a bond and undertake to build a plant to handle the city's garbage output. This delay was believed to have been deliberate, and for the purpose of making competition impossible. Commissioner WOODBURY appears to have made the same mistake, though we believe from very different motives. Between the time fixed for the opening of the bids and the first of August next, it would be practically impossible to build a plant capable of disposing by any method of the six hundred to seven hundred tons of garbage daily collected in and shipped from the two boroughs. Heavy bonds are required for the protection of the city against the inconvenience and danger of unreadiness on the part of the contractor, and for faithful performance of the terms of his contract after he gets to work. The only concern in a position to give such bond with safety is the company which now has the contract. For this reason it looks very much as if there would be but one bidder, and that the bid would be raised to "the limit." It now costs New York about $1.25 per ton to dispose of its garbage under the utilization contract. What it will cost if the contract is renewed for another period of five years without competition is wholly conjectural. Doubtless there is a surprise in store for the Board of Estimate and Apportionment when the bid is opened.

Another difficulty in the way of open competition for the contract is that it relates to garbage alone. So far as we are able to learn, there is not and has never been a successful and profitable reduction plant for garbage built anywhere. Those operated have depended upon the payments made them by the cities they served. Of those started, a large proportion have been destroyed by fire and not rebuilt. Most of the others have been or will be abandoned. The only inducement to capital to seek investment in a plant of this character would be the payment by New York of enough money per ton to pay operating expenses and dividends. Even with this promised the shrewd investor would want a contract longer than five years. If the material offered was the entire mixed refuse of the city, a dozen eager competitors would bid for it at what for any concern maintaining the fiction of "utilization" would be an impossibly low price. These competitors are identified with one or another system of incineration. But garbage cannot be burned alone. It needs the fuel of the general rubbish collection. If coal or petroleum had to be used the cost would place incineration out of the question. By the best types of incinerating furnaces in use in this country mixed refuse without other fuel is reduced to innocuous ash, valuable for filling, at less than 20 cents a ton, everything included. Col. WARING started the idea of separation and separate collection in New York. He acted according to his light, but he was mistaken, and if now living would be the first to admit it. The sanest thing New York could do would be to abandon separation, collect its refuse mixed, and burn everything except steam ashes.

But for such a change, however desirable or economical, the time between Nov. 6, 1905, and Aug. 1, 1906, is wholly insufficient. Indeed, it is insufficient for any change, and it looks as if Commissioner WOODBURY had inadvertently fallen into the same pitfall which swallowed up Commissioner NAGLE. All that remains, unless the present contract is to be extended another five years on the contractor's terms, with the evil of garbage flotation and the unspeakable nuisance of Barren Island, is for the Board of Estimate and Apportionment to reject any bid or bids it is likely to receive between this and Nov. 6 and look the problem of final disposition squarely in the face as a municipal duty. At present it is wholly unsolved. New York is far behind other cities of less importance in this detail of its sanitary administration.

ADVICE FOR THE PRESIDENT.

The rate regulation clause of the President's message is completed and lies in the bottom of the bottom drawer of the Presidential desk, just as it was drafted before the welcome advice was tendered, and not to be disturbed until the time comes to send it to Congress. We are told semi-officially that the President has "not abated one jot in his determination to induce Congress, if possible, to enact legislation along the lines of his recommendations."

Those recommendations were made in the words "the most important legislative act now needed as regards the regulation of corporations is this act to confer on the Inter-State Commerce Commission the power to revise rates and regulations. * * *" Since that message was sent the report of the Inter-State Commerce Commission has appeared, and we are supplied with the latest and most authoritative measure of the grievance which is the greatest now existing. During the year 487 complaints were filed in a volume of business affecting the carriage of 1,300,000,000 tons of freight. These complaints were too many for perfection, but their inadequacy as a basis of disturbing legislation does not rest alone upon the proportion of complaints to volume of business done. It rests as well upon the opinions of those better informed upon the issues involved than even the President, however defective their judgment of political issues may be. Thus our Chamber of Commerce unanimously disapproved the President's recommendation, adopting the report prepared by Mr. HEPBURN. The Produce Exchange registered its unqualified opposition to any disturbance of present methods of making rates. The New York Board of Trade and Transportation disapproved the bill which it is proposed to revive, refused to rescind its action, and proposed the appointment of a commission to consider the subject, which it thought inadequately understood in all its bearings upon commerce, no action being taken meanwhile. Twenty-one leading firms first registered their approval of the Presidential suggestion, and then formally withdrew their action, for the reason as assigned in Washington telegrams "there is no real public sentiment in favor of the measures." The Millers' National Federation, representing 1,300 mills, took the same action as the Ohio Republican Convention—that is to say, both approved the prohibition of rebates, but neither uttered a word of approval of the rate-making innovation which is the gist of Mr. ROOSEVELT'S idea.

Nor is disapproval limited to domestic authorities. Mr. ACWORTH put into testimony his opinion as an English expert that Governmental regulation of rates was injurious to the public, and sustained rates rather than reduced them. Sir CHARLES J. OWENS gave his opinion that even the enactment of maximum rates was objectionable, the only effect being "to deprive railway companies of that commercial elasticity which is a fundamental necessity in the management of any business." Mountain might be piled upon mountain of adverse opinion elicited regarding the Presidential project, which we are told is unaltered. In no quarter is there any defense of whatever irregularities and abuses have been uncovered; in no well-informed quarter is there any disagreement that there exists law enough, and that there is a defective enforcement of such remedies as exist. For example, the Inter-State Commerce Commission report itself declares that there is law enough to prevent and punish rebates. Can it be supposed that if the proposed legislation be enacted there will be an end of troubling? Is it not apparent that, this concession being made, others will be demanded? Who can doubt that this agitation is now resorted to rather as an escape from a political dilemma than as a measure of undivided solicitude regarding railway abuses? The answer cannot be doubtful so long as the President listens to gentlemen like Mr. RODENBERG rather than to formal action by bodies like those cited above.

SOUTHERN GROWTH.

The report of the Southern Railway Company is an interesting document. Tape readers, of course, will fasten eagerly upon the statement that its net income and surplus over charges each increased about a million dollars. Truly this is an encouraging statement, but interest in it is narrow compared with facts affecting the territory which the railway serves. Thus we learn that "along the lines of the Southern Railway Company during the year ended June 30, 1905, there were completed and put in operation 46 textile mills, 34 furniture factories, 38 iron industries, 6 tanneries, 77 stone quarries and coal mines, 13 cottonseed oil plants, 8 fertilizer works, and more than 500 smaller industries. Over 250 previously existing plants were enlarged during the year and 54 new industries were under construction at the close of the year."

All this along the lines of only 7,000 miles of railway! What must have been the growth along the aggregated 200,000 miles and more in the United States? And what do these dull figures mean in men and money? Every mill required capital and operatives. Captains of industry translate such facts into terms of immigration and investment which spell wealth not for the railway primarily, but for the community. Nor is this the top of the boom in the opinions of the men on the spot. The report continues: "Underlying conditions are favorable to further increase in industrial development along and adjacent to the company's lines." This is what the cotton crop is doing for the South and its railways in a yellow fever year.

The permanence of growth of this sort is its most important characteristic. All wealth comes from the soil, but it does not come equally in all years. In business, too, there are fluctuations, but with a difference. When a mill is built, when an immigrant settles, it is something like insurance of permanent addition to the resources of the district, as well as the railway. Thereafter their interests are indissoluble. The mill may make more or less money, but, like the railway, it cannot be removed. Nor do settlers upon the soil move easily. Their roots are set deeper than the forest king's. They can only prosper by finding a market for their products, and for that they are dependent upon the railways. But they must get a dollar before the railways can get a share of it. It is a maxim of railway administration that no railway can prosper in the adversity of its customers, and that their prosperity must precede the railway's. No money is made upon passengers and freight which are not carried, and no railway traffic moves unless there is profit in it for the shippers as well as for the carrier. Yet there are those in influential places who seek to antagonize these hand-in-hand interests. It is portentous to think of damage to railway investors through damage to railways. It is calamitous to think of the results to communities if railway enterprise is paralyzed by confiscatory or benumbing legislation. The Southern Railway and its tributary region are doing so well together that it is prudence to leave well alone, lest it be worsened by departures from tried and proved policies.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

Affability Gets Appreciation.

No doubt those queer-minded readers of ours who have been reprehending us for our daily "laudations" of Mr. JOHN D. ROCKEFELLER were grieved to find in THE TIMES on Saturday a telegraphed interview with his Cleveland gatekeeper, in which that retainer spoke of him with obvious sincerity as the kindest of men, and a longer account of Mr. ROCKEFELLER'S arrival in Tarrytown and the cordial warmth with which one of the village crossing sweepers grasped his hand as he slighted from the train. It may be well for us to explain for the benefit of the readers just mentioned that our chief reason for printing those dispatches was their effectiveness in bringing to public attention Mr. PATRICK LYNCH, the gatekeeper, and Mr. JAMES BURNS, who sweeps the streets of Tarrytown. Both are evidently estimable citizens, intelligently forming their own opinions of a man from what they see and know of him, instead of from what they hear and do not very well understand. They stand like rocks in the current of public clamor. Mr. LYNCH tells boldly of the children whom Mr. ROCKEFELLER takes to ride, and indulges in no futile theorizing as to whether or not these children might have been cleaner and better dressed if Mr. ROCKEFELLER'S business methods had been a little different and his business success had been a little less extensive. And take the case of Mr. BURNS! Does he hesitate to shake the hand of a man with whom the ten-cent magazines have been busy? Not a bit of it. Mr. BURNS is affability itself with Mr. ROCKEFELLER—greets him in the public street on the grand old assumption, all too often forgot, that every man is innocent until he gets into jail, and he lets everybody who sees the nobly reckless action interpret it as he will. Mr. LYNCH is all right, and Mr. LYNCH can get a good fit with no name less than that of Moral Hero. We are glad to recognize their merits and not discontented that the recognition reflects a rosy light upon Mr. ROCKEFELLER.

Once More the "Giant Wave."

When a steamer as large as the Campania is boarded, in weather not for her to be called severe, by a wave that sweeps from reasonably assumed security some passengers to death and others to injury, the episode necessitates a new examination of the question whether in any given "sea" there is sometimes one billow many times greater than any of its millions of fellows. Belief in the existence of such waves is almost universal on land and not uncommon afloat. For many ships have been swept as was the Campania, and not a few of them have been overwhelmed, on days when there seemed nothing to be feared. This is adequate excuse for the existence of the "giant wave" assumption, and yet we do not find, even in the experience of the colossal Cunarder, proof that it is founded on fact—proof that the sizes of the waves raised by one wind differ enormously among themselves. Differ they do to some extent, beyond any question, and when any sequence of waves is made up of waves larger and smaller, one of them must be the biggest of all. But it will be noticed that of the Campania it is said, probably without any thought of this problem, that "suddenly the big ship lurched to port and scooped up an enormous wave." Why so enormous? Any stalwart wave, on a day when, to quote again, "a heavy quartering sea was running," would be quite big enough to do all that this wave did, if "scooped up" by a ship moving at the Campania's speed, especially when the motion of the ship is opposite to that of the wave itself and must be added to it in explaining the consequences. We remain convinced that on that disastrous Wednesday the Campania safely rode hundreds of waves nearly or quite as big as was the one that ravaged her steerage deck and drenched deep the deck above. Not impossibly bigger ones were passed without attracting any attention from her passengers. The "scooping up" is the heart of the myth, and the "giant wave" is a wave that comes just when the ship is in a position to take it aboard.

Problems of the Automobile.

Anybody who observed Saturday's automobile races from the standpoint of the philosopher—which, in this case, as in most others, means the standpoint of the outsider who would be an insider if he could and finds consolation in the pretense that he wouldn't—must have wondered, as he saw miles and miles of country road lined with expensive machines, whether they were an evidence that the country is enormously prosperous or whether they indicated a dangerously prevalent tendency to sacrifice some things for things generally held to be less important. Of these thousands and thousands of automobiles, practically none represented a first cost of less than $1,000 and a large majority of them cost two or three times as much. All except a negligible minority were demanding and receiving a monthly expenditure for chauffeurs, maintenance, and repairs that would be the interest on invested capital in such amount that its computation would be an extremely painful task to the student of economics who also knows something about social conditions. As soon as one begins to think, however, the evidence-of-prosperity theory begins to leak fast enough to threaten collapse if not explosion. The costly machines were there to the number of several thousands, but the number of men who paid the bills for them was small, even as compared with that of the assorted people—let us be charitable and call them "commensals" instead of by an older name—that are habituated to contentment in getting rather more fun out of them than the owners do, and how pathetically small is the number of both in comparison with that of all the people in the country who never have known and never will know anything more about an automobile than the necessity for dodging it on a crosswalk! And while following out this slightly gloomy line of thought one arrives sooner or later at this question: How many times on Saturday, when the owners of two automobiles came near enough to identify each other, did one or both of them (first) express astonishment how "that fellow" manages to indulge in an amusement so expensive, and (second) how long he will be able to keep it up without coming to financial smash almost as painful as the physical smash that the future apparently has in store for most of this generation's automobilists? And innumerable people besides automobilists are asking that most impertinent question about their neighbors all over the country. Still—and still—and still—well, the joys of automobiling, even for a "commensal," are incomparable in their way, and its uses are not few. Moreover, there are vague rumors that it has its economies, but of course none of us who is a philosopher believes that.

CHARACTER OF THE JAPANESE.

From The London Times.

To the Editor of The Times: Sir: In last Monday's issue of The Times there was a long letter from the Right Rev. William Awdry, Bishop of South Tokio, Japan, in which he says that "In general a Japanese would value the promise of an Englishman more than the bond of a Japanese," and that the Japanese are deficient in a certain group of qualities, including honesty in trade. It seems to me that it would be unfair for The Times to allow such a charge against Japanese integrity, indorsed by a Bishop, to go unchallenged, when The Times has, in its own office, records that prove a promise made by a Japanese to be at least as trustworthy as a promise made by an Englishman. During the past eight years The Times has sold, in almost every country in the world, sets of "Encyclopaedia Britannica" on the installment plan, giving credit for periods of two, three, and four years. The regularity with which such payments are made is certainly a fair test of the average honesty of any nation, and a much more severe test in the case of Japan than in the case of England, because it is more difficult there than here to enforce payment by legal proceedings.

Ninety-five per cent. of the "Encyclopaedias" sold in Japan were sold to Japanese, not to foreign residents, and the statements I am about to make refer exclusively to purchases made by the Japanese themselves. In Japan, as elsewhere, each purchaser, when he signs his "order form," promises to pay, on certain dates, certain sums of money. In Japan the monthly payment was 10 yen, equal to about a sovereign, while in this country the amount was a guinea. In Great Britain less than half the payments arrived on the day promised. In Japan less than 1 per cent. of the payments were even one day late, and more than one-half of the payments were made the day before they were due, because the Japanese did not like to run the risk of any accidental delay that might make them even one day late. The cost of collecting these installment payments in Japan is less than half as much as in England simply because the Japanese are so punctilious that clerical labor and postage are not expended in reminding them that their payments are overdue. They seem to look upon every debt as a debt of honor, which must not be forgotten for even a day. There is certainly no such delicacy of feeling in this country about commercial transactions.

I may add that the Japanese bought five times as many "Encyclopaedias" as were sold in France and Germany combined, fifty times as many as in Russia, more than in any other country except India, Austria, and the United States. When young men, who have bought the "Encyclopaedia," abandoned their employment to go to the front, their families promptly paid the installments due under circumstances of the utmost difficulty.

THE MANAGER OF YOUR PUBLICATION DEPARTMENT.

New Experience in Oregon.

From The San Francisco Chronicle.

Senator Mitchell of Oregon has been convicted by a jury of his own State of selling his Senatorial influence to Oregon land grabbers, and now Congressman Williamson of the same State has been convicted of conspiracy to suborn perjury by locators of public lands in the expectation of himself thus acquiring the lands fraudulently located. The jury is said to have appeared very much "embarrassed" at being compelled to render a verdict which would send a Congressman to State's prison, and the presumption must be that guilt was proved beyond a doubt when a jury convicts so prominent an official.

WHO OWNS THE STREETS?

Contest Over Unused Car Tracks Likely to Decide the Question.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

For a number of years complaints have been made by business men and residents of this city of the occupation of the streets by railroad tracks abandoned by the various railroads over which no cars have been run for years. Whenever a demand was made for their removal it was treated with contempt by the officers of the company and resisted in every way in the courts, as in the case of the Forty-second Street and Manhattanville Railroad, in which the company claims that running one car every twenty-four hours over the line is sufficient to keep alive its charter and discharge its duty to the citizens of New York, whose property it occupies.

This was the condition of the unused track question on Oct. 1, 1905. This was changed when, on Monday morning, Oct. 2, a gang of men from the Department of Highways appeared in Vesey Street and commenced tearing up the tracks. This was done by order of John F. Ahearn, President of the Borough, who had decided to pave the street and those adjacent to it with wood. He realized that laying a wooden pavement in the street at a great expense would be useless while the unused tracks were kept there. Giving the company timely notice, the company paying no attention to it, he proceeded to have the tracks taken up. One track was taken up in Vesey Street on that day. On Monday night, about 12 o'clock, he was served with an injunction restraining him from finishing the work in Vesey Street.

President Ahearn's energetic action in taking up the tracks has cleared the atmosphere and put the matter up to the courts to decide whether the Interurban Railroad owns the streets of New York or whether they belong to the citizens for their use and benefit.

This is the condition as it stands today. The question now is: Are the citizens who have been annoyed in the transaction of their business by the nuisance created by unused tracks in front of their places of business, preventing the free and unobstructed use of the streets to which they are entitled, as well as many of the residents of the streets of this city who are annoyed by unused tracks in front of their homes, ready to support President Ahearn, whose energetic action has brought this matter squarely home to them as well as to the courts? Is there public spirit enough in New York to support him in his efforts to clear the streets of unused tracks?

This is the test case which will decide whether the citizens have any rights in the streets. If the decision is in his favor every foot of unused tracks in this city will come up. Can he rely on the citizens of New York for their support in his fight for their rights?

If you are in favor of his action send your name and address to John F. Ahearn, President of the Borough, City Hall, or to me, at 41 and 43 Vesey Street. You will be kept advised of the progress of the movement. There will be no expense attached to it.

HUNGARY'S DEMANDS.

Simply That Equal Rights Be Preserved in the Dual Kingdom.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In an editorial in THE NEW YORK TIMES in regard to the present crisis in Austria-Hungary, the writer seemed to view the situation from an Austrian standpoint, which left him little consideration for the rights of the Magyars.

Austria-Hungary is a dual monarchy by mutual agreement of the two nations, and Hungary is not a subordinate country or colony of Austria by any means. While this is not exactly stated in your editorial, it seems to be implied therein.

During his half century of sovereignty his Majesty has reigned over Hungary more as Emperor of Austria than King of Hungary, and in spite of all this the Hungarians have proved their magnificent loyalty numberless times, and yielded to the brusque Austrian commands of the "amiable, long-suffering disposition of poor old Francis Joseph," as he is called in the editorial in question.

When United Hungary realizes the dangerous undermining scheme of their Austrian neighbors in regard to their national rights, they must endeavor to preserve their constitutional rights and nationality in a situation like this, and in this connection why should they not command their own blood, sons of their own nation in their own language?

In Hungary there is but one political party of any importance in existence today, representing the majority of the nation, headed by men such as Count Albert Apponyi, Franz Kossuth, Count Andrassy, Count Zichy, and Baron Banffy. When these gentlemen conveyed the desire of the nation to his Majesty, they had to go to Austria, and there they were not even given the proper chance to interpret the desires of the nation, and the King of Hungary himself has refused to consent that in his own kingdom the Hungarian soldiers should be commanded in the Hungarian language.

Control of Insurance.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Recent revelations having disclosed the existence of a regular system of legislative bribery in the various States by certain big corporations, it is easy to comprehend why Senator Dryden wishes to do away with the necessity of attending to so many details by having the Government supervise. But if the United States Senate can be controlled by our high financiers as it is, what would they do with a single newly created insurance department?

A POLICY HOLDER.

New York, Oct. 13, 1905.

Who Was the First "Cad"?

From The London Chronicle.

When did the word "cad" come to have its present odious meaning? In 1837 it was applied to an omnibus conductor without the slightest disrespect. In a letter from Carlyle to Abraham Hayward in that year occurs this passage: "When you have time to write answer, pray pack up the Quarterlies along with it; send your famulus into Fleet Street, and he will see a Chelsea omnibus; the cad will bring it ms for sixpence within an hour." Evidently Carlyle was not pouring contemptuous scorn on the omnibus conductor. But if you hailed that functionary as "cad" to-day he would be justly indignant. How, then, has a perfectly harmless title become the most opprobrious epithet in the language? I will not say offhand that you cannot find the word in Dickens and Thackeray, but it is very doubtful whether they were alive to its present significance.

New Type of Street Car.

From The Toronto Mail and Empire.

Montreal has a new type of railway car. The passenger enters at the rear end and passes through a doorway, where the conductor, in a species of ticket office, collects the fare. It is stated that the company gathers in 25 per cent. more fares in this car than it did in the old type. This is one of those reforms that street railway companies find out for themselves.

Rigorous Winter in the Vosges.

From The London Telegraph.

PARIS, Oct. 4.—People living in the Vosgian districts east of France are now talking of the probability of a rigorous Winter, as wolves are beginning to show themselves. Numbers of these wild animals have been prowling recently around Mirecourt, in the Vosges, twenty-seven miles south of Nancy. Hunts have been organized, but no wolves were shot.

AS TO IRISH ANCESTRY.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

As another Irishman—also from Dublin, and a descendant of the famous Irish family whose war cry I sign below—I should like very much to tender my sympathy and advice to "Erle of Dublin," whose letter appears in your columns today.

I came to New York in 1898, and about the time that "Erle" arrived (1900) I had made up my mind that it was extremely injudicious to confess an Irish origin while sojourning in this State, unless one were prepared to indorse the whole programme of the Clan-na-Gael and kindred organizations. Some people to whom I was introduced as an Irishman elevated their eyebrows in surprise, while others boisterously greeted me as "one of the right sort." All immediately assumed that my training had been, and that my opinions and habits were, those of a certain class of Irishmen; and this was perfectly natural, as Americans who have not lived abroad know of that class only. That there are other classes in Ireland is proved by an occasional utterance like that of your correspondent, but Irishmen of his kind are so rare in this country that they almost count for nothing. Those who exist here are silent for a reason which will appear later in this letter.

So much for my sympathy. Now for my advice. Let "Erle" drop his Irish birth and pose as an American citizen of American, or, if he prefer it, of English or Scottish birth. It will involve an occasional fib; but fibs must be told in business, and this is business. Without professing the orthodox principles he will not be popular among Irish-Americans; and, confessing Irish birth, among all other Americans he will be misunderstood, as he tells us he has been.

Personally, for several years, I have adopted the course which I advise, and I find that it works well. And I am not alone in my deception, for more than once, in my rôle of Englishman, I have conversed with another soi-distant Englishman whose accent and local knowledge proclaimed him as having come from my own native City of Dublin.

CROM-A-BOO.

Rome, N. Y., Oct. 12, 1905.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

"Erle of Dublin" writes you to say that he was born in Ireland, has Irish blood in his veins in plenty, but is English in heart and "English in religion." He asks what he was before he endeavored to become an American. The answer is easy. He was "Scotch-Irish."

I. RISCH.

New York, Oct. 13, 1905.

SUBWAY'S BELATED 8 O'CLOCK.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I have tried to patronize the Subway system in preference to the elevated or surface cars, but I must say that the trial has proved so unsatisfactory that hereafter I will have to give my preference to a fourth, and, for the time being, most reliable, system of locomotion, viz., my legs.

There is a Subway local train supposed to leave the Brooklyn Bridge station at 8 A. M. This train never shows up before 8:10, and most times it is 8:15 before it leaves the station. To make up for lost time the management has invented a great scheme. The train stops at Worth Street and then goes direct to Astor Place, skipping the Canal, Spring, and Bleecker Street stations. The passengers bound to these intermediate stations are left behind at Worth Street to wait for the next local train, which is usually late also, and stops at Worth Street only to do the same as the train ahead, that is, leave behind passengers bound to the above-named stations, and proceed direct to Astor Place. Thus the passengers of the first train have to wait ten or fifteen minutes for a third local, and add ten minutes, at least, lost waiting at the Brooklyn Bridge station, and you will see that a man who enters the bridge station at 8 A. M. can swear that he will be at Canal Street at 8:28. Fine time!

But I think it is all the fault of the New York people who crowd this new line. Keep away from the Subway, ye inhabitants of New York, if you want to see its trains run on schedule time.

R. L. SCHROEDER.

Brooklyn, Oct. 13, 1905.

SIR HENRY IRVING.

Obiit Oct. 13, 1905.

Much was it once to move o'er-wearied life
To wholesome laughter; much it was to lure
From withered hearts the enriching tears of grief!
Much was it once, in motley and in mask,
To lead this cynic and too saddened age
Far out to life's lost Islands of Romance!
Much was it, in the midst of emptier fires,
Of transient moods, and momentary ways,
To guard with jealous hands the Calmer Light!
Much was it, when the years all arid seemed,
To freshen, as at cooling founts, our souls,
Whereon obliterating dust and hate
Too heavy lay!

Oh, much indeed it was
To charm Earth's fretting children to forget!
But, more than all Art's dream and anodyne
For languid sorrows, was the clash and war
The tangled years made lucid to the eye,
The mimic hopes and loves that chasten men,
The broken threads of life caught up and held
One whole again, the Good made Beautiful!

All this was much, and with it brought its bay!
All this is old, and earned long since its crown,
Its thundered thanks, its impassioned quick applause!
But, oh! how loftier than fame is love,
In this great heart that warmed to little things!
The hand not once withheld, the valiant will
Made quick with stooping kindliness of soul,
The mind austere and calm that mourned amid Illusions lost, ye laughed, and lived, and loved!

This, this it is that still makes silence best,
This weaves its aureole of softer lights
About the honored brow, and stands enough!
Yet we, one hour inadequate, must turn
With a fond and broken words for memory,
And now the final curtain drops about
That thrice-crowned head, in pride and silence lay
Love's unreluctant tribute at the feet
Of him who under cloak and domino
Let flash of nimble wit, forever held
That Love was best, and for the elusive Dream
Gave youth and age, and left more rich the world!

EVILS TYPICAL OF BUSINESS

The Rev. Dr. Charles H. Parkhurst preached at the Madison Square Presbyterian Church yesterday morning on the results of the insurance investigation. Strictly speaking his theme was broader, and might be said to be righteousness in business methods.

Dr. Parkhurst began by saying that one great duty of the pulpit was to keep sharply drawn the line of demarcation between right and wrong. He also said that the prime purpose of telling the truth was not to fit men to die but to fit them to live. The Church ought, he said, to be a transparent embodiment of the principles underlying the Ten Commandments, especially at the present time.

"A man," he said, "does not know really what honesty is till he sees it incarnated in some human life. Virtue, as we see it, is usually an attempt to be virtuous, but that is satisfied even if it does not succeed in being perfectly virtuous. The wicked gutter people downtown gamble coarsely; good avenue people uptown gamble refinedly; and then nobody knows what gambling is or whether it is a vice or a virtue. Wicked people, very wicked people, practice licentiousness in the 'Tenderloin,' while others, men and women who wouldn't be seen in the 'Tenderloin,' summon the divorce courts and other appliances to their relief, operate what is in God's sight a 'tenderloin' of their own, without forfeiting the friendship and confidence of churchy people in our 'best society.'"

"And knowing something, as the most of us do, about the composition of the boards of directors that are in control, or at least supposed to be in control, of certain of our corporations, it is matter of continued amazement, not to say of disheartenment, that, with the sympathy which, as individuals they are known to have with what is just, clean, and of good report, they in their corporate capacity resign all such sympathy, sink themselves and their integrity in the corporation, and as members of a board will do what in their individual capacity it would not even occur to them to think of doing.

Had Inside Information.

"In this I am not extemporizing, but giving to you knowledge that I have gained from the inside. When a member of this congregation was once criticised for some act which he had committed and which was inconsistent with his professed Christian character as a religious man, he explained himself by saying that he was very careful not to let his religion interfere with his secular life. Such things as have been occurring in this city would have been impossible if all the parties connected with existing corporations had been willing to let their personal integrity introduce itself into their directorial responsibilities, and if they had been as unwilling to see their corporations steal as they doubtless are to steal themselves."

Speaking of Directors who don't direct, Dr. Parkhurst said:

"I remember that one of these, an elegant, versatile gentleman, whose name has been badly besmudged by Mr. Hughes's investigation, was recorded as a Director in something more than fifty boards. Now, of course, he is not in any practical sense of the term a Director to any such extent. His name standing in such a connection is a lie.

"A well-known capitalist in his testimony, exculpatory testimony, before the legislative committee now in session, said: 'The system of Directorship in great corporations of the City of New York is such that a Director has practically no power.' That is to say, that a Director is not a Director—that he had better live up to the ethical level of the situation, and get out of the board and not act a lie. There is a good deal more moral ozone in the statement recently made by the Chairman of the Board of the United States Steel Corporation when in his remarks at the annual meeting of the American Steel Foundries Company, of which he is a Director, he said: 'We have no right to neglect our duties as Directors, and I for one intend to give more attention to the affairs of this company in the future than I have in the past.' Such searchings of the heart are encouraging."

Dr. Parkhurst said that something has been wrong in the insurance companies for a long time.

Had Evidence Ten Years Ago.

"Ten years ago," he said, "a friend of mine employed in an insurance office in this city, and in a position that enabled him to get on to the system of finance that was already in vogue there, placed in my hands a large amount of material which he wished might be used as a starting point of an investigation. But place it as we were, it was too much like trying to plant a dynamite bomb under the Throne of Satan to undertake to combat in the courts an institution that has so much ready money that it can deal out whole scoopfuls of gold without caring for an accounting, that can put a million and a half into salaries and lawyers' fees, and pay out $72,861.19 in a year on what am I to call it.

"This reference to dormatory information brought to me so long ago reminds me of a conversation that I had about that time with a member of this church, now dead, but who was possessed, I suppose, of a property about as large as any of our members, and who was therefore in a situation to know what was going on in the business world and among large corporations, especially as he was himself a member of a very considerable number of Boards of Directors.

"Considerable was being said at the time in vituperation of a member of this community who exercised large political control, who seemed to have the very generous support of the corporate interests in this city, and who also appeared to stand in the attitude of a daysman between the corporations here and the legislative body at Albany. 'Now,' said he to me, 'you have had something to say about this gentleman, and I would like to know what conception you have of him and what is the particular feature of his character and behavior that leads you to feel yourself warranted in criticising him?'

"My reply was to this effect: 'You know, Sir, that it has been demonstrated in the course of the police investigation, that one of the recognized functions of a wardman is to collect money from the criminals, and pay it over into the hands of the police.

"Now, my conception of this gentleman is that he played an analogous rôle between the corporations and the Legislature; that when there is any particular legislative statute that it would be to the interest of such corporation to have enacted, or any legislation proposed that it would be to their advantage not to have enacted, he levies on the corporations, the sum levied being, charged up under the head of legal expenses, carries up the result of such levy to Albany, immediately discovers that the legislative mind inclines to the desired measure with a pleasant cordiality that is sufficiently unanimous for purposes in view, and the thing is done. That is my conception of the man and of the delicate function which he makes it a part of his missionary life to discharge.

"His reply to me was brief, and was to this effect: 'You are absolutely right.' Let me add that the gentleman with whom I was conversing was a person of universally recognized truthfulness and never known to lie.

"Now, I have two or three reasons for referring to this incident. It indicates that the atrocious corruption which is now being ventilated is not the product of the moment, and does not owe its existence to any sudden depravation of the financial mind.

A General Disease.

"That is the serious feature of the situation, not that any one or any number of insurance companies have been trying to shatter the decalogue, knock out of place the foundations of a safe civilization, and run riot in the funds of dependent widows and orphans, but that all of this which by a mere accident came to the light in the instance of a single corporation has to be interpreted as symptomatic of a general disease that is gnawing into the vitals of the body politic and the body financial.

"The incident described has also been referred to because it compromises the Legislature and reminds us of the defense recently put up by an insurance officer that 'bills are usually pending in a number of States providing for taxation and other things hostile to insurance companies.' Now, that is at once an accusation and a confession."

The political contributions recently admitted Dr. Parkhurst called "graft." He said they were to "produce results."

Dr. Parkhurst praised Charles E. Hughes, without mentioning his name, for sticking to his post as counsel for the investigating committee instead of entering another field on invitation that came "from a failure to understand, or for more questionable motives." Dr. Parkhurst mentioned Queen Victoria and President Roosevelt as leaders who had counted for uprightedusness. He added:

"It is well always to remember that some people steal more than others, not because they are worse stealers, but because they have more chances to steal, and that virtues may be simply lack of opportunity to be vicious. I do not know how many of us could afford to run the risk of being the President of an insurance company, or the son, nephew, cousin, or brother-in-law of the President."

The way to treat a man who isn't virtuous in his private life or who gambled in stocks, Dr. Parkhurst said, is to deny him social recognition. He concluded his sermon by expessing the hope that "present events" would teach a good lesson.

THE FALL OF WALL STREET.

Before a large congregation the Rev. A. Edwin Keigwin, pastor of the West End Presbyterian Church, in West One Hundred and Fifth Street, near Amsterdam Avenue, devoted his sermon last night to the topic "Wall Street and Sinai," taking for his text the Commandment, "Thou shalt not steal."

Dr. Keigwin began by saying that Wall Street had taken its name from a wall of defense put up to protect the early settlers against the savages, and that near it many great preachers in Colonial days had been heard. The Street stood as "a symbol of defense to the patriot and a menacing reproof to the enemies of liberty and religion."

"Two hundred and twenty years have passed," he continued, "and behold the transformation! The wall has gone, the cannon no longer frown their admonition. But the Street remains. That Street, which to the early settlers suggested protection, to-day has become the hot-bed of intrigue, piracy—shall I say it?—theft.

"The Government to-day fears Wall Street more than the armaments of the world. The Street which formerly stood for the defense of right has now become the hulwark of corruption.

"There came the period of investigation. Most untoward conditions were unfolded. And what does this mean? There has been a distinct decline in the moral sense of the business world in recent years. The moral sense has gone to sleep, and in his sleep there have appeared visions of gains that are unnatural, of profits that are impossible, of success that is unreal, of a reward that shall elude his grasp, as the man awakes to find himself standing in the midst of the inevitable Sinai and the eternal law of right.

"You have doubtless perceived that the men who figured most conspicuously in recent revelations quite generally express surprise that their transactions are looked upon with disapproval. Many pose as martyrs. Some of them go so far as to avail themselves of every opportunity for the public expression of their belief in the highest ideals of ethical truth.

"My own impression is that they have been no more conscious of the wrong which they have committed than is the inmate of an insane asylum conscious of the false life of which he considers himself so important a part. The whole moral sense of the business world has suffered a sag, and these men have come under the same law of degeneracy. These men, whose regrets are, doubtless, as keen as our own, are not the cause of the present conditions, but they are the results. The revelations which are being made are only the symptoms of a disease with which the whole commercial world is afflicted.

"The Republic is passing through a transition period. But what this country needs, and what the busy world needs is not more legislative enactment, but a revival of the moral conscience. In our enthusiasm for Freedom, we have allowed Liberty to degenerate into license. A correction of this evil is by dealing in an uncompromising way with those who have committed a wrong. What does a great corporation care for a paltry fine?"

MEETING ONE'S SOUL.

Realization of Dishonesty a Terrible Thing, Dr. Johnston Says.

"It is a dreadful thing," the preacher said, "when a man stands face to face with himself, and realizes that he is a sham, that he is dishonest—without character. It is a horrible thing for a man thus to read his own soul, meet his soul face to face, and realize that he is a rogue. A man can get away from his wife; he can leave his children and friends, his home; he can leave his own country, but go where he will, in the furthest corner of God's earth he will stand face to face with himself, robbed of his honesty, his integrity, his character."

"THE CLANSMAN" HISSED.

South Carolina Audience Disapproves Mr. Dixon's Play.

Special to The New York Times.

COLUMBIA, S. C., Oct. 15.—A large audience was present at the performance of "The Clansman," by Thomas Dixon, Jr., here last night. There was considerable hissing during the performance.

After the third act, in response to numerous calls, the author appeared before the curtain. For several minutes he stood facing the audience, unable to speak because of the hissing, which was more marked than at any other time. Then, in the course of a short speech, he said:

"God ordained the Southern white man to teach the lessons of Aryan supremacy." He added that he had always observed that there were two divisions in the South—those who would hiss and those who would applaud men who were trying to portray the true ideals of the South. "There were scalawags before and there are scalawags now," he remarked.

After the performance a party of young men called at Mr. Dixon's hotel and asked to see him. He declined their request. A note was then drawn up, in which the young men expressed their opinion of the play, and they sent it to the author's rooms.

"Peter Pan" Production Delayed.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 15.—The initial performance of Maude Adams in "Peter Pan," which was to have been given here to-morrow night at the new National Theatre, has been postponed until Tuesday night in order to further rehearse the mechanical side of the play.

PETERS GLAD M'CURDY HAS NO MORE CHILDREN

MENTIONS A SENATOR, TOO

The second of the series of "People's Meetings," held yesterday afternoon in the Harlem Opera House under the leadership of the Rev. Madison C. Peters and the Rev. Dr. Robert S. MacArthur, had for its topic the insurance situation, with especial reference to the skeletons unearthed by the legislative investigators.

The two preachers told what they thought of the life insurance question in the abstract, and then, particularizing, invoked the wrath of the public upon the men who, according to their emphatic verdict, are "mismanaging the great companies."

The Rev. Madison C. Peters tendered thanks that the McCurdy family is no larger.

"Widespread apprehension has been created by the talk of race suicide," he said. "Those who have studied the question, including our beloved President, announce that American families are growing smaller every day.

"Every cloud has its silver lining. Let us all, including policy holders in the Mutual, be grateful that there are no more McCurdys. The father, son, and son-in-law have taken $5,000,000 from their company's coffers. Think how much the tribe would have annexed if Mr. McCurdy had had a dozen children to provide for. There wouldn't have been enough to go round."

There were several hundred present when the meeting wss called to order, and before the insurance question was threshed out a whack had been taken at almost every head which has shown itself since Mr. Hughes and his associates began their explorations. Discussion was invited when Drs. Peters and MacArthur had had their say, and some spirited comments were made.

"The insurance investigation," said Dr. Peters in taking the chair, "has revealed, to my mind, the most shameless fraud of the century. A few men are rolling in wealth, while the policy holders, thousands and thousands of them, are denying themselves almost the necessities of life to pay premiums.

"It has brought before our eyes men drawing salaries three times the size of that of the Chief Executive of these United States—men who live in palaces.

"I had hoped, when the investigation was still young, that one of our Senators would explain why he was drawing $20,000 a year from the company which came first into the limelight. He was in Europe, and hastened home to do so, it was said. When he got home he not only didn't explain, but admitted that he didn't even have a policy in the company that paid him $20,000 annually. He reminded me of a sober saloonkeeper—who won't drink his own poison because he knows its ingredients.

"The young men of the country are being demoralized by the scandals in insurance circles. The shameless officials are giving them an object lesson of how safe it is to be a big thief. You can steal a million dollars, and the whole world will be honored if you kick it.

"I hope that the insurance evils will be thoroughly uncovered and avenged, and that insurance will be made what it should be. Restoration of stolen moneys should be forced. Insurance affairs should be managed by Directors who direct, not decoy ducks. We should see to it that real men and not broken-down politicians are put at the head of our State Insurance Department."

"I believe in life insurance," said the Rev. Dr. MacArthur. "I am not like the distinguished Senator to whom reference has been made—I carry just as much insurance as I can afford to pay for. Neither Dr. Peters nor myself would he understood as opposing insurance. What we do oppose is the administration of the men who are mismanaging the great companies.

"I agree with Mr. McCurdy that the life insurance business should be run on the missionary plan. The objection I have to make is the McCurdy adaptation of the idea. He has an idea that he is the chief missionary, and that the beneficiaries of the mission funds should be members of his own family. He is unquestionably a believer in the doctrine of home missions and the declaration that charity begins at home. If some of the missionary organizations with which I am identified were run on the same plan as he runs his society not a cent would ever reach the heathens."

"The move proves to me," he said, "that the people are waking up—that they mean to find out the wrong and remove it—to find out the good and endorse it."

When discussion was invited Dr. Peters constituted himself timekeeper, limiting speakers to five minutes.

"What is the lesson of these scandals?" fiercely demanded the first man to speak. "Why, that the big thieves must be punished just the same as the little ones. I thank God that I had a good mother when I was a boy. She taught me if the street car conductor didn't come around for my fare, to look him up and hand it to him. I have handled millions of dollars of other people's money—trust money—since I grew up, and never a cent of it stuck to my fingers."

An earnest brother, who also had a good mother, said he was something of a politician, and withheld his name. He told the story of the first political convention he ever attended.

"I was a boy," he said, "and a great temptation came to me. We balloted all one day and all one night and all the next day and all the next night. I was offered a sum of money for my vote—not enough to tempt an insurance magnate, but enough to look to me like a fortune. Praise God, I remembered that good mother of mine and her teachings and withstood the tempter. Since that day I have been repaid a thousandfold—not in money, but with a pearl of great price, Jesus's love."

The discussion took on the tone of an experience meeting. A high-browed young man with wavy hair attempted to attribute the insurance mix-up to the centralization of wealth, but Dr. Peters, pulling out his watch, announced that that subject was barred.

A portly gentleman who seemed overcome by emotion declared that he would never support Senator Depew for any office as long as the Senator continued to live.

"When I learned that the Senator, whom I had always revered," he declared with pathos, "was taking something for nothing my better instincts revolted."

It was suggested by a white-haired man with a pure white beard that the proper way to regulate insurance companies was by putting honest men in office. To get honest men in office it was necessary for all good men to vote at the primaries.

"I, too, am a politician," he announced, "but only in the sense that I deem it the duty of every citizen to help uplift his country by seeing that it is well governed."

Several shots were aimed at James Hazen Hyde, Mr. McCall, and Mr. Perkins. The acceptance of campaign contributions from corporations by political parties was roundly denounced. Then Dr. McArthur said that there were several men in the audience who to his knowledge were identified with the life insurance business. He asked if they cared to undertake a defense of insurance methods. Not a voice responded.

The insurance phase of the meeting was at last shelved for a song service. There were no resolutions. Next Sunday, it was announced, the meeting will consider municipal ownership.

PREFERS WAR TO WEDLOCK.

Comment of an ex-British Captain When Assessed for Allmony.

After being separated from her husband for a year, Mrs. Jeannette Newton of 54 West Forty-fourth Street, who says she is a sister-in-law of Robert P. McDougall, former President of the Cotton Exchange, caused the appearance of Capt. Montague Newton of 12 East Twenty-ninth Street yesterday before Magistrate Walsh in the Yorkville Court on a charge of abandonment.

For five yeare he was a Captain in the British Imperial Yeomanry, and fought in two campaigns in South Africa, where he received two medals for bravery. Capt. Newton said he was a friend of Lord Lonsdale and Lord Churchill, having been secretary at one time to Lord Churchill.

Mrs. Newton obtained a warrant for his arrest on Saturday afternoon, but Detective Carew was unable to find Capt. Newton until yesterday morning, when he went to his boarding house, accompanied by Mrs. Newton. Three colored men servants, when they heard Capt. Newton parleying with the detective, went to the Captain's assistance and tried to put Carew out of the house. Several guests also appeared and said they would aid the servants in preventing Capt. Newton from being taken away. Detective Carew announced for the first time that he was an officer and would arrest any person who interfered with him. Then he took the prisoner away without trouble.

In court Mrs. Newton said that she did not want to see her husband sent to prison, but she would insist that he pay her something every week for her support. The defendant declared that he had not paid his board bill for the last ten weeks. He said he was engaged in the insurance business, but all the money was going to his agents, and he was receiving nothing.

Magistrate Walsh decided that Capt. Newton should contribute $5 a week to his wife's support, and this he agreed to do.

"I married in a hurry," said Capt. Newton, "and now I'm paying for it. I would rather fight on the battle field than go through it again."

ANTI-ENGLISH LEAGUE OF 3

Resolves That the Fleet's Visit Should Be Welcomed Only Officially.

The Anti-Anglo Alliance League, consisting of several persons, held a meeting yesterday afternoon in the Hoffman House and declared itself about the approaching arrival of the British warships which are coming here under command of Prince Louis of Battenberg. These resolutions were adopted as representing the sentiments of the league:

Whereas, A great British fleet will assemble in these waters next month as a courtesy in return for a visit paid by our American fleet to British waters last year; and

Whereas, National etiquette requires of nations that each pays proper official respect to the visiting fleets of other nations. With this we are not concerned; and

Whereas, It is publicly known that the sailors of the American receiving squadron have been practically forced to pay each a sum of some $6 to help defray the expenses;

Therefore, be it resolved, That we protest against this compulsion as uncalled for and strictly un-American.

Resolved, further, That we, the Anti-Anglo-Alliance League, mindful of our declaration of principles, Washington's Farewell Address, and representing all shades of political opinion, maintain that any unofficial receptions are entirely out of place at this time, owing to an objectionable arbitration treaty with Great Britain pending in the United States Senate. And be it further

Resolved, That we protest and must consider any and all demonstrations of an unofficial character by the sailors of the North Atlantic fleet, or any individuals or bodies, as detrimental to our friendly relations with other powers. And be it further

Resolved, That a copy of these resolutions be spread upon the minutes, a copy sent to the Secretary of the Navy, and copies given the press of this city.

The Committee on Resolutions which produced these consisted of Judge John Henry McCarthy, Col. J. Y. F. Blake, and John J. Leech.

COL. "BILL" PHELPS WEDS.

Missouri Railroad Agent Marris His Secretary.

Special to The New York Times.

CARTHAGE, Mo., Oct. 15.—Col. "Bill" Phelps, the well known railroad agent and politician of Missouri, to-day announced that he had married his private secretary, Miss Katherine O'Leary, in Chicago on last Wednesday.

"The rumor that Miss O'Leary had become my wife while we were in Paris several weeks ago, was false," said the Colonel to-night. "On my return from abroad I was unable to affirm the report, because it was untrue, and I could not deny it, because there was a probability that a denial might be misconstrued. Now I am happy to say that Miss O'Leary and I were married last Wednesday at the home of her sister in Chicago."

NEW HOSPITAL DEDICATED.

Edward Lauterbach Speaks at Washington Heights Institution.

The new Washington Heights Hospital, in the old Hosea B. Perkins mansion, at 179th Street and Broadway, was dedicated yesterday with appropriate exercises.

Music was furnished by the Hebrew Orphan Asylum Band, and after prayer by the Rev. M. H. Gates, Edward Lauterbach was introduced as the speaker of the day by Harrison B. Meyer, President of the Board of Trustees. Mr. Lauterbach spoke of the needs of a public hospital on Washington Heights, and urged the audience, which numbered about five hundred, to give the institution its hearty support.

The Rev. Joseph Silverman offered the closing prayer, after which the building was thrown open for inspection. Many improvements have been made in the old building, which for years has been a landmark in the vicinity of Fort Washington. There are accommodations for thirty patients and a staff of nine physicians. The new hospital will greatly relieve the J. Hood Wright Hospital in West 131st Street, which formerly covered the entire district on the west side north of 110th Street.

SOCIETY IN WASHINGTON.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 15.—Justice John M. Harlan and Mrs. Harlan have returned to their home in Washington after a prolonged abeence.

Jerome Bonaparte, son of the late Col. Jerome Bonaparte, and nephew of the Secretary of the Navy, who spent his Summer and early Spring abroad, has returned to his home in this city.

Señor Don Manuel Torres y Sagasata, former Second Secretary of the Mexican Embassy, and Señora Torres, who have been for some time in Mexico, are now in Washington for an indefinite stay before departing for Mr. Torrea's new post in Japan.

Señor Don Carlos E. Saviller, First Secretary of the Argentine Legation, who spent his vacation in East Gloucester, Mass., has returned to Washington for the season.

Ex-Gov. Hogg Seriously Ill.

Special to The New York Times.

DALLAS, Texas, Oct. 15.—Ex-Gov. James S. Hogg spent last night and to-day in Fort Worth under the care of physicians, on his way from his home in Houston to Mineral Wells. He is suffering from dropsy. He cannot sleep in bed, and gets only about one hour or so of sleep during twenty-four hours sitting in a chair.

Gorham Sterling Silverware

THE new Gorham Building is exclusively devoted to the display and sale of the varied products of an organization, which numbers over twenty-two hundred skilled workmen.

During the past year, three million three hundred and fifty thousand nine hundred and eight ounces of silver bullion were melted by the Gorham Company and wrought by its craftsmen into the various forms of art and utility shown in this building.

Now for the first time in the half century of its existence the Gorham Company is enabled to display this noteworthy collection of sterling silverware under conditions commensurate with its unrivalled facilities.

EPISCOPAL SERVICES FOR ARMITAGE MATHEWS

Ritualistic Ceremony Accepted as Proof of Accidental Death.

MANY POLITICIANS ATTEND

The Funeral Held at St. Agnes's Chapel—The Burial Was in Woodlawn Cemetery.

Funeral services were held yesterday afternoon in St. Agnes's Chapel, in West Ninety-second Street, over the body of Armitage Mathews, the Vicar, the Rev. William T. Manning, and the curate, the Rev. Richard M. Shepard, officiating. Many of the political associates of Mr. Mathews were present, including a delegation from the Tammany organization in the Twenty-first District, the Namoaka Club, and most of the Judges and Magistrates of the city. The church was crowded.

The arrangements for the funeral were made by Mr. Mathews's college friends and members of the Zeta Psi Fraternity, who were represented by James Boyd and J. C. Hoe. Mr. Mathews died practically penniless, and these friends bought the lot in Woodlawn Cemetery where the body was buried. His father and mother are buried in Greenwood Cemetery, but there was not room there for the grave of the son.

As the Protestant Episcopal Church does not permit the burial services in its churches and chapels of those who have "laid violent hands on themselves," the friends of the dead man regarded the services in St. Agnes's Chapel as the last proof that he had not killed himself. It is the custom of the church to accept the conclusions of the authorities, and Coroner Brown had decided that Armitage Mathews had met his death by accident.

There were so many flowers sent to the church that it was thought advisable to send many of them to the hospitals. As it was, the altar was banked with wreaths and floral pieces. Before the funeral the body lay in state at the entrance to the church. As the delegations from the Riverside Republican Club, 600 of them, and the 60 from the Tammany Club, filed into the church each man looked for an instant on the face of the dead.

There were no official or honorary pall bearers, the coffin being carried to the altar by the sexton's assistants. At the conclusion of the services the coffin was carried to the hearse and followed by many carriages containing the relatives and representatives of the political organizations of the district to Woodlawn Cemetery. The members of the family were Mrs. Armitage, Mr. Mathews's aunt, and Mrs. Nellie Herring, a sister. They were accompanied by Margaret Kane, the housekeeper at 335 Central Park West.

At the services the Rev. William T. Manning made no reference in any way to the death of Armitage Mathews. Dr. Manning took as his text, "We are his witnesses." In the course of his remarks he referred to "the low and wicked standards that prevail in the business world.

"The corruption that surrounds us," said the vicar, "is a National disgrace. Men bewail the shortcomings of the Church and its mistakes, not realizing that they are bewailing their own shortcomings."

In closing he urged that all Christian people carry into business, into their homes, and into their social lives, "true witness for God and for the standards of Christianity on which the Church is founded."

Among those who attended the funsral were Abraham Gruber, ex-District Attorney Olcott, Congressman William S. Bennet, Charles E. Lansing, ex-Senator Slater, ex-Gov. Black, Lieut. Gov. Bruce, Attorney General Mayer, Job E. Hedges, Henry Burrick, John E. Reisenweber, ex-Judge Palmieri, Judge Worcester, ex-Judge Alfred Steckler, Charles Steckler, Frank J. Martin, Abraham Gilbert, John Newstead, ex-Magistrate Ommen, Judge Deuel, Port Wardsn Charles Sadler, Senator Page, Assemblyman William Young, Congressman J. Van Vechten Olcott, Robert W. Bonynge, and Judge Charles H. Murray.

Progress of the Printers' Strike.

INDIANAPOLIS, Oct. 15.—A bulletin issued by the officers ow the International Typographical Union yesterday evening says that agreements have been reached between 240 local unions and employers, whereby an eight-hour day has been, or is to be, established on Jan. 1. At the close of the fifth week of the strike men are still out in 53 cities, although it is said that only a few men are out in most places.

NAVY VETERAN A SUICIDE.

Chase's Only Possession a Knife Thirty Years Old.

The only apparent asset of Ira B. Chase, a veteran of the civil war, who committed suicide at Smith & McNell's Hotel in Washington Street last night, was an old penknife, which he had carried since the war.

Chase, who was about 68 years old, had been an inmate of Sailors' Snug Harbor for years. Whenever he came to the city to see his old shipmates he made his headquarters at the hotel. For the last two days he has been staying there. When he went to his room last night Manager Grant Waddell thought he looked dejected.

About 10 o'clock Mr. Waddell, in passing the room, smelled gas. He burst in the door and found the old veteran lying dead on the bed, fully dressed except for his coat, in the lapel of which was a Grand Army button. Papers in his pockets showed that Chase had enlisted in the navy from Pembroke, Mass., in 1862, and was discharged on Sept. 30, 1865. They also showed that he served on the men-of-war Ohio, Proteus, Hendrik Hudson, and Princeton.

On the dresser in the room was a large piece of wrapping paper, on which was written in pencil a long list of names. Figures opposite the names footed up to $560.80. Whether they represented debts or possible assets was not clear.

HONOR L. G. BLOOMINGDALE.

Many Attend Funeral Services for Him at Temple Beth-El.

One of the most largely attended funeral services ever held in the city was held at Temple Beth-El yesterday morning for Lyman G. Bloomingdale, who died at his home, Elberon, N. J., last Friday. The pall bearers were members of the Board of Trustees of the temple, of which Mr. Bloomingdale was Treasurer.

Dr. Herman Silverman, cantor, in beginning the services read from the Old Testament. Then Rabbi Schulman paid a warm tribute to Mr. Bloomingdale. He said that he had been a whole-souled American patriot and a fine type of American Jew. Dr. Schulman also praised him highly for his philanthropy.

Among those who attended the services were Jacob H. Schiff, Nathan Straus, Justice Leventritt, Henry Herman, Joseph Fox, Leo Schleainger, Isaac Wallach, President of Mount Sinai Hospital; David Wile, Henry Rice, President of the United Hebrew Charities; Daniel Hayes, Mr. Poppel and all the Directors of the Montefiore Home. The employes of Bloomingdale Brothers were present in full force, and many veterans of Lafayette Post, No. 140, G. A. R., attended the funeral of their comrade.

The body was taken to Linden Hill Cemetery for interment.

Obituary Notes.

JAMES VAN OSTRAND, an actor who for two seasons had been a member of Mrs. Leslie Carter's Company, died in the Hahnemann Hospital last night of typhoid fever. He was 35 years old, and came of a well-known family in Pittsburg. Mr. Van Ostrand's last part was Cracius, in "Adrea," at the Belasco Theatre.

THE WEATHER.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 15.—The Western disturbance has moved northward beyond Lake Superior. It has caused since Saturday night general rains in the Missouri, Ohio, and upper Mississippi Valleys, the upper lake, and western lower lake regions, with high winds except in the Ohio Valley. There were also showers in the South and rain in the North Pacific States. Temparatures have risen in the Atlantic States and are four to fifteen degrees above the seasonal average, but have fallen considerably in the upper Mississippi Valley and upper lake region, and are somewhat below the seasonal average.

It is considerably warmer in the central Rocky Mountain region. There will be rain Monday in the northeast upper lake region, followed by clearing weather and showers in Northern New York, extending into New England.

Showers are probable along the South Atlantic Coast. Elsewhere the weather will be generally fair. It will be cooler in the Ohio Valley and lower lake region, in the Middle Atlantic States, and New England. It will be warmer in the Southwest.

Winds along the New England Coast will be fresh south to southwest; on the Middle Atlantic Coast fresh southwest, on the South Atlantic Coast light to fresh and mostly east to southeast; on the Gulf Coast light and mostly east; on the lower lakes brisk southwest to west; on the upper lakes west to northwest and diminishing.

FORECAST FOR TO-DAY AND TUESDAY.

Eastern New York—Partly cloudy Monday; probably showers in north portion, cooler in west portion; Tuesday fair, cooler; fresh southwest to west winds.

New England—Partly cloudy Monday; showers at night or Tuesday in north portion, fair in south; cooler Tuesday; fresh to brisk southwest to west winds.

Eastern Pennsylvania—Partly cloudy, cooler in northern and western portions; Tuesday fair, cooler in east portion; fresh southwest to west winds.

8 A. M.	47	59	4 P. M.	57	68
6 A. M.	42	57	6 P. M.	54	66
9 A. M.	47	61	9 P. M.	56	62
12 M.	58	71	12 P. M.	46	60

The thermometer is 108 feet above the street level. The average temperature yesterday was 64; for the corresponding date last year it was 50; average for the corresponding date for the last twenty-five years, 55.

The temperature at 8 A. M. yesterday was 57; at 8 P. M. it was 64. Maximum temperature, 73 degrees at 1 P. M.; minimum, 56 degrees at 7 A. M. Humidity, 66 per cent. at 8 A. M.; 74 per cent. at 8 P. M.

HARPER'S BOOK NEWS.

With Flashlight and Rifle

This book, now creating a sensation in Germany, is the most remarkable study of wild animals that has ever been made. It is illustrated with over one hundred startling photographs, many of them taken at night by flashlight, showing wild beasts in their native haunts in the African wilds. True aspects of their jungle life are now revealed for the first time to the human eye. Mr. C. G. Schilling's adventures while taking the pictures are of graphic interest and read like fairy tales.

London Films

Mr. Howells carried an appreciative metal kodak with him during his recent London sojourn, and his delightful talk about sights and people in the English metropolis is most engaging. He draws apt and humorous contrasts between New York and London, chatting about the weather, street sights and noises, rambles about town, and his adventures with English lodgings and hansoms. Every page offers charm and entertainment.

PRAISE FOR FOOTBALL BY GEORGETOWN'S HEAD

Game Is Admirable If Properly Played by Gentlemen.

"ELIMINATE UNFAIR TACTICS"

Big Teams Pass Preliminary Stage and Begin Preparations for Crucial Test Matches.

The hearty approbation with which the expressed desire to rid football of all cause of criticism on the score of brutality has been received by all the leading institutions playing the game finds its echo from another distinguished source in the open letter addressed to the Alumni of Georgetown University by the Rev. D. J. Buell, President of the Catholic University. He adds his denunciation of the unsportsmanlike spirit manifested by some players and coachers in "putting opponents out of the game," and speaks for the new administration at the Washington institution in the interests of honest sport in no uncertain terms.

"The American college game of football is," he says, "when played strictly according to the rules, an admirable, though a strenuous and rough contest. Bones may be broken, serious strains sustained, and the bodily stamina severely taxed. But in addition to this there is a system of football tactics in vogue among some universities which can only excite horror and reprobation among honorable gentlemen.

"Some football coaches instruct their teams to injure the most capable players on the opposing teams, so that they cannot continue to play; to strike in the most vulnerable parts of the body; to use as many men as possible to strike the man singled out for injury; to strike and foully injure the man when he is down and pinioned to the earth by those who have thrown themselves on him. Only young men of brutal instincts can force themselves to such conduct.

"It is the purpose of Georgetown to eliminate from the game all whose influence tends to any such practice and to subordinate victory to the proper observance of honorable means of attaining it. We shall be particularly strict in excluding from athletics those who have no right to compete, and we believe that all will be done that can be to reduce injury when the rules that ordinarily govern the conduct of gentlemen are observed.

"The present administration is not opposed to athletics, but on the contrary judges them, when properly conducted, a useful means in the moral and physical well-being of the students. It is striving to encourage their reasonable development along natural lines, when it insists that only bona-fide students shall take part, whose primary object in coming to Georgetown is to acquire intellectual training, and who shall subordinate victory to the sportsmanlike conduct of the games.

"That the continuance of football and its popularity depend upon its proper conduct is becoming more and more evident, and the spirit of reformation that has taken so strong a hold is bound to do more to remedy evils of which just complaint has been made than all the rule changes that could possibly be enacted."

The past week among the larger colleges has marked the ending of what may be called the preliminary season of play. From this time on the elementary practice will be largely dropped and the introduction of the more intricate systems of play be taken up. The development of team play will follow and bring the elevens finally up to the actual critical contests.

On Saturday of this week Harvard plays West Point in what was expected to be the first important match of the season. The injury of so many of the army players and their defeat by Virginia Polytechnic School in consequence has taken a bit of the edge off the interest in that match. Princeton plays Lafayette and Pennsylvania meets Brown, which will have the centre of the stage in consequence. Yale engages State College, and probably will have little trouble with the usually strong minor team, while Columbia has a bit of a task ahead in the game with Amherst. It is the last of the Columbia games prior to the Princeton game, and Coach Morley has his last chance to show his possibilities before they are tested in a crucial match.

The personnel of the teams that have occupied the main attention of the coachers heretofore have been largely determined upon. Yale and Princeton express satisfaction with the showing of their candidates and find only cause for complaint in the lack of substitutes. This was to be expected. Yale lacks a satisfactory quarter back and a mate for Shevlin at end. Her back field, aside from this, is very strong, and her line from tackle to tackle as good as could be expected. Princeton's back field has shown itself to be first class, as predicted by those who regarded the Tigers' lament as a grand stand play, and her line of forwards has been working smoothly.

Harvard is still burdened with an excess of candidates between whom she finds it difficult to choose, but there is nothing in the Crimson's play that need be particularly discouraging to her supporters in spite of the criticisms which her small score of Saturday against the Springfield team called forth. The Pennsylvania eleven with its succession of injuries is in a mere unsettled state than her advocates hoped would be the case at this season, but she, too, has no serious difficulty at present that may not be overcome. She has a punter to take Reynolds's place, though not so good as he, to be sure, and she may find acceptable ends in spite of her ill-luck with injuries.

Columbia has lost much and found Brown. The losses were bound to unsettle her, and she may yet get all that her followers were justly entitled to expect. Any great success was impossible from the start. Cornell having no game since that with Bucknell, is shrouded a bit in uncertainty.

Yale believes she has the fastest eleven for nearly a decade. Whether this advantage is to be offset by lack of the traditional Yale weight in the big games is the question. She must use her heavy mass formations less and depend on speed more. The Yale back field is made up of heavy and fast men, and their line plunges will be effective, but they will lack the relief and support of Kinney, Hogan, and Bloomer. She is using fast line plunges by the back field, criss cross dashes for tackle and end openings, and fast tackle back rushes, mixed in with a good deal of kicking and many quarter-back runs.

The weakest spot in the line is probably at left guard, where Erwin is unsteady. Flanders is developing into a crack snap back. The two tackles, Forbes and Bigelow, are full of ginger. Forbes is already playing the most brilliant game of any of the Yale forwards. Tripp and Shevlin are the veterans of the line. The left end place is still to be filled.

Neither Hutchinson nor T. Jones, the freshman, is as yet up to quarterback. Of the two Jones is the more dashing and brilliant. There are at least ten half backs and full backs from whom a choice of any three would be satisfactory. Hoyt, Veeder, Wylie, and Roome are brilliant lefts; Morse, Stevenson, and Quill equally fast right half backs. Flinn is now first full back, with Levine pressing hard, as well as Zimowski of Brown University.

Princeton is pleased with the Bucknell game. The team played in lightning form under the hard driving of Dillon and Tenney, and put up the cleanest exhibition of football yet seen. The Tigers simply stunned their opponents by the rapidity of their attack.

McCormick, Daub, and Bard form one of the heaviest, surest back fields the Tigers have had for years, while the line is satisfactory. The greatest handicap to the Princeton eleven this year consists in a weak scrub and the absence of substitutes.

The Navy's defeat of Dickerson, together with the surprising victory of Virginia Polytechnic Institute over West Point, has encouraged Annapolis to believe that this year the chances of winning from the Army are good. The eleven of Virginia Polytechnic Institute plays the Middies on Nov. 25, one week before the West Point game, and is looked forward to almost as keenly as the final match itself. This is the only team that plays both during the season.

FOOTBALL FOR PRESIDENT.

Capt. Milnes of British Team Offers to Give Exhibition at Washington.

The Pilgrim Association football team will return to New York from Boston to-morrow to prepare for the match with All New York, which will be played on the Polo Grounds next Saturday. Yesterday the English footballers were the guests of President Eliot of Harvard University, to whom they explained the advantages of the Association game as they view it. To-day they will line up against a team selected from the Boston clubs and leave for this city directly after the game.

In view of the efforts of President Roosevelt to eliminate brutality from the college game, Capt. Milnes expressed his willingness to take his team to Washington and demonstrate to the President how the game is played. The Britishers hope to interest Mr. Roosevelt and his Cabinet in the sport, as a means of introducing it to colleges, so that it will be more generally played in America. If the offer is accepted by President Roosevelt the exhibition will take place on next Monday or Tuesday, as the team is booked to sail on the Wednesday following. Before the visitors leave an effort will be made to arrange international matches between England, America, and Canada for the trophy offered by Sir Ernest Cecil Cochrane Bart.

A special meeting of the Metropolitan Football League will be held to-night to select a team to play against the Englishmen on Saturday.

SOLDIERS WON AT FOOTBALL.

Soldier football players from Fort Hancock scored an easy victory yesterday over the Knickerbocker Football Club. The game was played before a big crowd on Ontario Field, and the visitors sustained their reputation of being the strongest military football aggregation outside of West Point by defeating the local team by the score of 26 to 0. In anticipation of a hard game, the Knickerbocker Club strengthened its team by the addition of several ex-college stars, who in addition to being out of condition lacked familiarity with the signals, and proved a drawback to the other members of the team.

Uncle Sam's players outclassed their opponents in all departments of the game. They rushed the ball down the field almost at will. During the latter part of the game they contented themselves with holding the Knickerbocker's line and punting the ball down the field when they secured possession of it. They started off with a touch-down after five minutes' playing, and opened up big holes in the Knickerbocker's line. The playing was in the local club's territory nearly the entire game, the visitors' goal line being safe from danger.

FOOTBALL PLAYER HURT.

During a football game between the Imperial Athletic Club of Brooklyn and St. Anthony's Roman Catholic Church, Greenpoint, yesterday afternoon, Sinclair Possey, 19 years old, of 186 Garfield Place, was seriously injured. The game was played on the fields at Meserole Avenue and Guernsey Street, and was witnessed by several hundred persons, including many women.

The accident occurred in the second half. Possey was in the thick of every play, and his friends yelled with delight when by a series of steady plunges he carried the ball on the St. Anthony's five-yard line.

Possey made a desperate plunge into the line of men in front of him, when he became tangled in the gathering and fell with the others, receiving a concussion of the brain and internal injuries, which necessitated his removal to the Williamsburg Hospital. When picked up he had the ball clutched behind the goal line. The accident stopped further playing.

The score during the first half was a tie, and, although both sides engaged in spirited play that was characterized by rough work, none of the players was forced to leave the line.

WILL REPORT NEXT SUNDAY.

Committees on Pelham Bay Regatta Course Secure Information.

The committees appointed by President Pilkington at the first meeting of the local oarsmen to construct a new regatta course at Pelham Bay will report next Sunday. R. H. Bethel of the Harlem Rowing Club has been in communication with the Government officials regarding the navigation rights. While no opinion has been given, it is thought that no special bill will be necessary to secure Government permission. The contemplated course is somewhat obstructed by rocks, and as it is removed from the main channel legislation may not be necessary. Should any question arise as to the right of the Park Commissioners to control the waterway, it will be shown that the proposed course not only will not interfere in any way with navigation, but will materially improve it by making the channel ham Baay district contiguous to the regatta course, and was made after a special survey.

The blue prints of the proposed course and the surroundings will be ready for distribution this week. They will not only show the actual course, but also the proposed driveway from the dike to a point near Travers Island. This plan embraces Mr. Pilkington's general scheme for the improvement of Pelham Bay district contingent to the regatta course, and was made after a special survey.

The committee to secure the information from the Park Commission and city authorities will also be ready to report next Sunday. Messrs. Kharfka and Mulcahy of the Atalanta Boat Club spent considerable time last week collecting data to be used at the next meeting of the oarsmen.

Since the publication of the plans of the Pelham Bay course Mr. Pilkington has received many offers of support from prominent organizations outside of rowing clubs. As it is his intention that the project be a general one instead of confining it to oarsmen exclusively, he will send out invitations for a meeting of those interested as soon as the final details have been approved by the rowing clubs. The meeting will include Park Commissioners, Aldermen representing the districts of Pelham Bay and Harlem River, Taxpayers' Association, New York Central Railroad officials, and representatives of the various rowing, canoeing, yachting, and athletic clubs.

EASY VICTORY FOR LEWIS.

Defeated Big Field in Individual Handicap Record Century Run.

A. Lewis of the Century Road Club Association won the individual handicap record century run yesterday on Eastern Parkway, Brooklyn. It was the first open cycle race permitted on the Parkway this season. Lewis started with the limit riders, and had a handicap of 2:30, which gave him a ten-minute start over the second section of riders. He made a runaway race, and finished fifteen seconds ahead of J. F. Paulson, his clubmate, who was one second in front of F. Larsen. Peter Wallenschlager, who finished fourth, made the best gain during the race, and received a time prize, together with F. W. Eifler, J. M. Eifler, F. Graf, and G. Duester.

The start was from Bedford Rest, and the course to Jerico and return by way of Glenmore Avenue, Merrick Road, and Massepequa. The winners of the twenty place and five time prizes follow:

NEW DISCUS RECORD FOR MARTIN SHERIDAN

ENGLISH SPRINTER IN FORM

Morton Runs 120 Yards from Scratch in 0:12—Sterling Performances at Irish-American A. C. Games.

The annual Fall games of the Irish-American Athletic Club, which were held yesterday at Celtic Park, Long Island City, and sanctioned by the Amateur Athletic Union, were productive of several remarkable performances. Martin J. Sheridan, the all-around champion of America, created a new world's record for throwing the discus, clipping 4 feet 4 inches off the best previous figures, which were also made by Sheridan. The day was an ideal one for record breaking, and more than 5,000 persons applauded the champion when the record was announced.

All the best weight-throwers in the metropolitan district were entered in the event. Sheridan was the only scratch man, with handicap allowances of from 8 to 25 feet for the other competitors. Sheridan's first throw was 137 feet 5 inches, but as he stepped outside of the ring on his recovery the throw was not allowed. His next attempt netted 135 feet 1 inch, which was fourteen inches better than the record. Two more trials were non-productive, but on the fifth he hurled the discus 138 feet 3 inches. The distance was measured three times, and pronounced accurate.

T. W. Morton, the English champion sprinter, running under the colors of the South London Harriers, won the special 120-yard handicap in 0:12, which is but one-fifth of a second less than the record made by B. J. Wefers at Travers Island Sept. 26, 1896. With the limit placed at five feet, only the best sprinters took part in the race. The men got away to a good start, and at the fifty-yard mark Lawson Robertson was leading by a couple of yards. Morton then overhauled the handicap men, and twenty yards from home passed Robertson and breasted the tape an easy winner by three yards. Had he been pushed he would at least have equaled the record.

Both of the weight events went to John Flanagan of the Irish-Americans. He threw the fifty-six-pound weight 38 feet 1 inch, and afterward captured the hammer throw with 169 feet 10 inches. There were forty-one starters in the 1,000-yard handicap. Harry Davenport of the Trinity Athletic Club, with a handicap of sixty yards, led the big field up to within a few feet of the tape, when Harry Christoffers, New York A. C., runner, who had worked his way through the bunch, challenged him, and, after an exciting finish, won by inches.

Fourteen trial heats were necessary in the 100-yard dash, a handicap. Morton, the English champion, finished third in his heat, being beaten by J. F. Kear of the Xavier Athletic Club. Morton was the only scratch man in the race, and was unable to get through owing to the number of starters. The final heat was won by W. Frankle, who ran unattached, with a handicap of six and a half yards.

Owing to the poor banking of the turns the bicycle race was far from satisfactory. L. J. Wentz won the final heat by ten yards from J. T. Hallihan.

Summaries:

100-Yard Dash, Handicap.—Won by W. Frankle, unattached, (6½ yards;) A. Gennerich, Pastime Athletic Club, (9 yards,) second; W. J. Keating, Irish-American Athletic Club, (4 yards,) third. Time—0:10 3-5.

440-Yard Run, Novice.—Won by John Andrews, New West Side Athletic Club; W. E. Booth, Magnolia Athletic Club, second; U. B. Beaudine, unattached, third. Time—0:55 3-5.

Two-mile Bicycle Race, Handicap.—Won by L. J. Wentz, New York, (90 yards;) J. T. Hallihan, New York, (210 yards,) second; M. Kessler, Brooklyn, (180 yards,) third. Time—5:21.

120-Yard Dash, Handicap, (5 feet limit.)—Won by T. W. Morton, South London Harriers, (scratch;) Lawson Robertson, Irish-American Athletic Association, (3 feet,) second; F. W. Groene, Irish-American Athletic Association, (3 feet,) third. Time—0:12.

220-Yard Dash, Handicap.—Won by H. C. de Loiselle, unattached, (17 yards;) Max Block, New West Side Athletic Club, (18 yards,) second; P. L. Waters, Irish-American Athletic Club, (11 yards,) third. Time—0:22 1-5.

1,000-Yard Run, Handicap.—Won by H. Christoffers, New York Athletic Club, (22 yards;) Harry Davenport, Trinity Athletic Club, (60 yards,) second; L. Katzenstein, Mohawk Athletic Club, (60 yards,) third. Time—2:19 3-5.

Throwing the Discus, Handicap.—Won by Martin J. Sheridan, Irish-American Athletic Club, (scratch,) actual throw 138 feet 3 inches; R. J. Cotter, Irish-American Athletic Club, (20 feet,) actual throw 115 feet 3 inches, second; John Flanagan, Irish-American Athletic Club, (8 feet,) actual throw 123 feet 9 inches, third.

Four-mile Relay.—Won by Xavier Athletic Club team, composed of W. Van Thrum, E. P. Carr, H. Coates, and B. Freeman; Irish-American Athletic Club team, composed of Harvey Cohn, Joseph Bromilow, Charles Bacon, and J. P. Sullivan, second; Pastime Athletic Club team, composed of Thomas O'Connor, E. J. Sweeney, P. Smallwood, and Joseph Ledwock, third. Time—19:36.

Throwing 16-Pound Hammer, Handicap.—Won by John Flanagan, Irish-American Athletic Club, (scratch,) actual throw 169 feet 10 inches; R. J. Sheridan, Irish-American Athletic Club, (15 feet,) actual throw 149 feet, second; J. McCarthy, Irish-American Athletic Club, (20 feet,) actual throw 120 feet 6 inches, third.

Throwing 56-Pound Shot, Handicap.—Won by John Flanagan, Irish-American Athletic Club, (scratch,) actual throw 38 feet 1 inch; R. J. Sheridan, Irish-American Athletic Club, (4 feet,) actual throw 31 feet 10 inches, second; E. N. Payne, Mott Haven Athletic Club, (6 feet,) actual throw 20 feet 6 inches, third.

CHAMPIONS BEATEN BY THE RIDGEWOODS

Athletics Also Lose to a Team of Minor Calibre.

NEW YORK'S POOR BATTING

Lindemann Allows Winners of World's Series Only Three Hits—Paterson Surprises Quakers.

Yesterday was a disastrous day for baseball champions and a successful one for teams of a minor calibre. The spectacle was witnessed at the famous old park at Ridgewood, Long Island, of the New Yorks, the new world's champions and the champions of the National League, being outplayed and beaten by the semi-professional Ridgewood team by 5 to 2, while at Paterson, N. J., the Athletics of Philadelphia, runners-up for the world's championship and champions of the American League, were obliged to succumb to the Paterson team of the Hudson River League by 2 to 1.

Both of the big league teams were short handed, and coming a day after the world's championship was decided, when the players were petted and feted, it could hardly be expected that they would show their best form, but the fact remains that with at least two-thirds of the regulars in the field they were defeated by supposedly inferior teams. Both the Ridgewoods and Patersons, however, rank high in their class, and may be considered dangerous in any kind of company. Only a week ago the Ridgewoods gave the Greater New Yorks a beating, even after the latter had scored six runs in the first inning, through the excellent pitching of Lindemann.

Yesterday this same young man had the New York champions at his mercy and there were seven of them who participated in the five games for the world's championship. On the other hand the New Yorks presented Ames and Bowerman as a battery, and the semi-professionals had no difficulty in hitting the man who is generally considered to be one of the cleverest pitchers on the National League. With the score standing four to two in favor of the Ridgewoods at the end of the fifth inning, Ames was supplanted by Elliott, and Clarke took the place of Bowerman.

That the games between major league teams and semi-professionals are remunerative is shown by the fact that since the days of the memorable Sunday contests at Ridgewood between the Brooklyn and St. Louis teams some fifteen years ago, what was known then as Wallace's Ridgewood Park never has contained such crowds as attended the games of the Greater New Yorks and and the New York team of the National League. Next Sunday the Philadelphia Athletics are scheduled to play the Ridgewoods, and Hussey's team promises to give the Quakers a warm reception.

McGRAW'S MEN LOST.

Seven players of the New York National League team who participated in the world's championship series, reinforced by Wiltse, Bowerman, Ames, and Clark, were outplayed by the Ridgewoods at Ridgewood Park, Long Island, yesterday, and after the New Yorks had finished their part of the ninth inning, at least 10,000 enthusiastic "rooters" whooped and yelled in honor of the local players, who had won a cleverly played game by a score of 5 to 2.

The crowd was the largest that the old baseball park had held for many a long day, and while the members of the new world's championship team received a rousing reception when they appeared upon the field, the excellent playing of the Ridgewoods created the greatest amount of enthusiasm. Of course the New Yorks missed Donlin, Dahlen, and Bresnahan, for their batting especially, but it is very questionable, even with the presence of these good batsmen, whether the team could have made a much better impression against pitcher Lindemann than it did. As a sample of the Ridgewood man's effectiveness he allowed only three hits, gave one base on balls, and struck out nine men—Strang, McGann, and Mertes twice. He was finely supported, particularly by Farmer behind the bat. Furthermore, Lindemann hit safely three out of four times at bat.

Ames held the Ridgewoods in check until the third inning, when he was hit for three singles and a triple, which netted three runs. A base on balls, an out, and Lindemann's double produced another run in the fourth, and after another inning Ames and Bowerman were succeeded by Elliott and Clarke.

Lindemann had only one bad inning, the third. He gave Ames a base on balls, and Browne's triple to the crowd at left field sent him across the plate. After Strang had struck out McGann hit safely, scoring Browne. A double play prevented scoring in the fourth, and in every inning afterward the New Yorks were put out in one-two-three order.

PATERSON, 2; ATHLETICS, 1.

Special to The New York Times.

PATERSON, N. J., Oct. 15.—A crowd of more than 3,500 persons saw the local Hudson River League team defeat the Philadelphia Athletics here to-day by a score of 2 to 1. The visitors, outside of Hartsel and Murphy, could do nothing with the pitching of Gerber, a local boy, and only in one inning were they able to connect with his delivery for more than one hit, and that was in the fifth inning, when they secured their only tally on Hartsel's double and Murphy's single.

Paterson's runs came in the fourth inning, on a single by Cogan, Murphy's error of Westlake's grounder, Kelly's out at first, and a wild pitch by Dygert. Plank relieved Dygert in the sixth, and Paterson only secured one hit off his delivery. The score by innings:

BURKE'S TROTTERS BEATEN.

J. J. Timmans's Birnie Wins Two Brushes from Team on Speedway.

There was one of those treats upon the Speedway yesterday that enlivens the sport of the horsemen and brings out more than the usual amount of discussion. It was occasioned by the appearance of Luke A. Burke's great pair of blacks, West Wilkes and El Mora, driven to pole and sent along with the idea of challenging any of the fast trotters that cared to go the half mile of the upper stretch of the famous driveway against them. There was no other team out in their class, so finally, by mutual consent, Birnie, the double-gaited horse with a trotting mark of 2:13½, driven by J. J. Timmans, Jr., tried out the Burke team.

On the first time down West Wilkes and El Mora bravely stepped out in front, but near the finish Birnie managed to take the lead and beat West Wilkes and El Mora to the finish post. Burke again sent his team against Birnie, who this time was gaited at a trot. The pair of blacks came down the stretch with Birnie at the rear wheel of Burke's wagon until they were within a rod of the finish. Then Burke's anxiety to win caused the blacks to lost their gait for a moment, and before Burke could get them smoothed out Birnie had forged ahead and won the second heat.

While the brushing was at its height yesterday morning Miss Giulia Morosini, the donor of the valuable silver cup for which the horsemen are striving, twice drove the length of the Speedway behind her high-acting pair, Glory and Glorious. Her father was seated beside her in the fashionable phaeton, and a diminutive footman was perched upon the rumble. From one end of the drive to the other Miss Morosini was kept busy saluting the horsemen.

Mona Wilkes was on hand early to have a try with her rival, Ida Highwood, but the great mare of Nathan Straus did not appear, so Ackley C. Schuyler just warmed Mona Wilkes up. The only brush in which Mona Wilkes figured was against William Scott's Kitty Wilkes, carrying the latter to a bad break at the finish, and winning by a length.

Star Pugh, the big chestnut gelding that led in the point scoring at Empire City track and at the Speedway Spring matinees, proved rather alone in the winning of some of the best pacing brushes of the morning. C. S. Rice first put the pacer against James Murphy's Don Derby and beat him down the stretch twice in succession. Then Dr. Madara, Andrew Crawford's good pacer, was beaten in a close finish with Star Pugh, and last of all the big chestnut defeated J. J. Foody's Mush in another close race.

Arthur Lape's veteran trotter Dan, which performed so well at the Empire City track when driven by Albert De Cernea, trotted a fast and exciting brush with Rita E., driven by Patrick Ryan. Nearly up to the end the two horses appeared as if harnessed together. Then Lape got a little more speed out of Dan and came in first. Dan repeated his victory over Rita E., winning at a great gait, and then the pair were joined by Andrew Phillips's Hilgar. The latter proved a trifle too good for both Dan and Rita E., and they finished in the order as named.

One of the brushes in which the horses were particularly well matched was that in which Charles W. Straus's Belton, Jr., defeated Little Mike, driven by Alexander Westervelt. Both got away on even terms, and they brought the wagons down hub to hub, with both drivers trying to coax their horses to a little faster gait. Belton, Jr., finished strong and won by a flash at the finish.

WANT SPEEDWAY PRESERVED.

Brooklyn Horsemen Protest Against Macadamizing Course on Boulevard.

About 200 trotting horsemen attended a meeting at the Parkway Driving Club, Brooklyn, yesterday to protest against the proposed macadamizing of the Brooklyn Speedway. The meeting was held under the auspices of the Parkway Driving Club, Pleasure Drivers' Association, Road Drivers' Association, and the Bay Ridge Driving Club. Frank Jacobus, President of the Parkway Club, presided. After much discussion it was decided to appoint a committee to confer with the city authorities. This committee is to be composed of 100 members, 25 from each of the four organizations named. It will ask for a hearing before the Park Commissioner, and probably the Mayor.

When Ocean Parkway was macadamized a stretch of it about one and a quarter miles long, from Twenty-second Avenue to King's Highway, was left as a speedway. This stretch has long been a favorite rendezvous with local horsemen, and every day it is the scene of lively brushing.

POST-SEASON BASEBALL.

National and American Leagues Quit Even on Series of Games.

The post-season series of baseball games between National and American League teams was finished in the West yesterday, with the result that each league quit even. The Nationals, however, have to their credit the world's championship, while the other successful team in that league was the Chicago, which yesterday won the fourth game out of five played from their American rivals. The Boston Americans won four games out of five from the Nationals, and yesterday the St. Louis Americans won both games of a double-header from the Nationals, making the series stand four games to three in favor of the former.

Griffith's Team Stopped by Police.

Clark Griffith's New York American League team was stopped yesterday by the police from playing a game on the Bronx Oval with the Cedars. Both teams were disappointed as well as the big crowd that gathered to witness the first appearance of the New York Americans in the Bronx.

Jersey Cyclists on Invitation Run.

The invitation pleasure trip of the New Jersey Division of the Century Road Club of America was held yesterday. Two hundred and seventy-one riders left the City Hall, Jersey City, under the command of William Davis. The cyclists rode to Tuxedo, a distance of seventy-five miles, where a stop was made for dinner. On the return journey a five-mile race was held near Suffern, in which fifteen riders took part. Chester Graham finished first, B. Evesson second, F. McMillan third, Frank Montville fourth, and Arthur Prohl fifth. The winner's time was 14:18 3-5. The return journey was accomplished without any incident.

SUICIDE'S APOLOGY.

Was Sorry He Had to End His Life in His Landlady's House.

Domestic trouble caused the suicide of Sidney V. Thompson, 38, who died by inhaling gas at his boarding house, 494 Washington Street, Newark, N. J., early yesterday. Thompson left three letters, addressed to Mrs. J. H. O. Clark, with whom he boarded at the Washington Street address, and another to the police. The third letter was addressed to his wife, who lived apart from her husband.

In his letter to the police Thompson said:

I have taken my life because I cannot stand any more disgrace. For anything further I refer you to Mrs. J. H. O. Clark, for whom I have the greatest respect. Also to Mrs. Boyden, who has been as a second mother to me. This is all I can say, except that I made a serious mistake in marrying. She is welcome to the fool that she made of me at times.

Yours now in Eternity,
S. A. THOMPSON.

In the letter to Mrs. Clark, Thompson apologized for ending his life in her home.

In addition to the hotel there are to be twenty cottages, a garage, and a stable with a large riding ring.

A New Complaint at Panama.

PANAMA, Oct. 15.—On account of big shipments of lumber for the Canal Commission the piers at La Boca are again being used for discharging cargoes. The steamship agents complain of this, because it compels them to unload by means of lighters, which they say causes much inconvenience and many losses.

Fire in Grain Steamer's Cargo.

THE SPECULATIVE SITUATION.

The sensitiveness of the bull element in Wall Street to any adverse criticism of the stock market's speculative position is an interesting phase of the present situation. The sensation produced by Mr. Vanderlip's speech at Washington on Wednesday was bewildering to sober observers of the market. In this speech Mr. Vanderlip said no more nor less than other prominentn banking authorities bad been saying in Wall Street for several weeks, but his public and terse assertion of the obvious truth that to start a stock market speculation from the present level of prices, in the face of other extraordinary demands for money, would be to invite temporary disaster, was immediately responded to with a selling movement which carried prices off 2 to 3 points throughout the active list before it was checked. Wall Street treated that part of Mr. Vanderlip's speech as if it were distinctly surprising, and throughout the remainder of that day and all of the next self-constituted apologists occupied themselves in explaining what Mr. Vanderlip meant, what he probably would have said instead if he had known that the market would make such a to-do about it, &c. Brokerage houses telegraphed to their Washington correspondents for special information, and duly displayed the opinions of such correspondents, together with their interpretations of the speech. Hundreds of messages were sent out over Wall Street's private wire system to reassure the public and offset the effect which might be produced upon outside sentiment, and then, finally, those who had been most hysterical calmed down and said that Mr. Vanderlip, of course, was right. He had merely stated a truth which everybody ought to recognize. It was time to be conservative in speculation.

The fact is, no doubt, that conservatism at the present time is distasteful to a large body of speculators already committed heavily to the bull side of the stock market. They are restive under the limitations of the money market, and are face to face with the choice of carrying high-priced stocks through a longer period of 5 and 6 per cent. call money than they expected, with interest charges running against them, or selling out on a narrow market. For them it is a question not of starting a bull speculation from this level of prices, but of continuing a speculation which was begun with call money at 2 per cent. Wednesday's selling movement disclosed the narrowness of the market and showed how hard it might be to sell stocks if five or six of the big holders of speculative lines of high-priced issues should begin to unload at the same time. The movement did not go far, and prices recovered slowly afterward, but the market then became more narrow and dull than it was before, owing, no doubt, to an access of conservatism among speculators who had been operating somewhat aggressively on the long side of the high-priced stocks.

Wednesday's decline was the only pronounced general movement that occurred during all of last week, and the losses resulting therefrom were largely recovered on Thursday and Friday. The net price changes for the week were very irregular, with advances and declines about equally distributed. There was, in fact, no pronounced advantage on either side of the market. The net results of the week's speculation were about as negative as could be imagined.

There is now a very evident disposition on the part of active speculative interests to let the high-priced stocks rest for a while and turn their attention to low-priced issues. It is in the low-priced stocks, if at all, that the bull crowd can make headway while money rules between 5 and 6 per cent., according to experienced operators who have seen many situations like this, and there is evidence almost everywhere that brokers would willingly encourage speculation in securities of that class. They do not want to load themselves up with high-priced stocks. It takes too much capital to carry them over and above the margins supplied by clients. A much larger volume of business can be transacted with less capital in the low-priced stocks. It is believed, too, that the commission house following would respond to the right kind of leadership in low-priced stocks where it has been totally indifferent to operations in high-priced securities.

A good deal of attention has lately been attracted to cheap industrial stocks, in many of which pools are now active, but so far the commission house element has remained distrustful of the manipulation. There is not the market in cheap industrials that there is in the low-priced railroad stocks, and the public evidently prefers to trade in the latter, if it trades in any. A good deal of the recent manipulation in industrial stocks has been of a character little calculated to inspire general confidence.

The most prominent stock in the industrial list last week was American Locomotive common, and its activity was accompanied by so much tipping and puffing of the stock as to lay the whole campaign under suspicion. The stock sold at 61, the highest price so far reached on this rise, but it had closed the week before at 59½, so that its advance to 61 was a further gain of only 1½ per cent., and it closed Saturday at a net advance for the week of but ⅞ per cent. The transactions for the week amounted to as much as the entire issue of common stock, or, in other words, the equivalent of the company's entire common capital stock was traded in, most of it between 60 and 61. The inference would be that the bull crowd had been distributing stock.

The market has now been dull for several weeks on what is the highest average level of prices ever reached. Previously to last week the activity had been all on the bull side, such as there was, the market invariably becoming dull on price recessions. On Wednesday's break the volume of transactions increased heavily. The activity, for the first time in several weeks, was then on declining prices. On the rally which followed the volume of trading fell off again and the market was dull and extremely narrow at the close of the week. There is nothing apparently to sell stocks on. That is what everybody says. The chief danger is that first one and then another large holder of speculative stocks, becoming wearied as the period of 5 and 6 per cent. money is prolonged, will lose patience and sell out. This applies particularly to those who are carrying large lines of high-priced stocks, yielding less than 4 per cent. on their market valuations, with money worth 5 to 6 per cent. in the open market.

BUSINESS IN ENGLAND.

Improvement Continues and It Is Believed to be Thoroughly Sound.

LONDON, Oct. 15.—The Times in its financial supplement to-morrow will say:

"Favorable reports continue to be received from the manufacturing districts with few exceptions, and although in some quarters fears are expressed that a speculative boom has set in, there seems no reason to doubt that the trade improvement is thoroughly sound.

"The grain markets have ruled stronger, owing to a shortage of supplies. Seeds and seed oils were firm, with advancing prices.

"Spot cotton was in better demand by spinners and a fair business was done, with slowly declining prices. Futures fluctuated moderately on the weather news from America.

"Fair business has been done in yarns at unchanged rates, while goods had a good trade at steady rates.

"Wool continues firm. At the last sales rates were fully maintained. The worsted and woolen trades continue to improve.

"Trade in the iron and steel manufacturing districts continues to show a satisfactory improvement; further rises in raw and finished material having been decided upon on account of the enormous mass of business offering. Some producers have had to raise prices to a prohibitive figure in order to avoid increasing engagements."

IMPORTED AUTOS CROWD THE CUSTOMS WAREHOUSE

Fully 1,500 Cars Will Be Entered at the Port This Year.

SPECIAL EXAMINERS NEEDED

Officials Say If the Rush Keeps Up the Government Must Soon Build an Automobile Warehouse.

The importation of foreign-built automobiles at New York has assumed such proportions that it is only a matter of a short time before the Government will be obliged to set aside a special building for the reception of the machines pending their examination and appraisement by the customs authorities.

The latest official returns compiled by George W. Whitehead, the Appraiser of the Port, shows that 119 automobiles were imported at New York last month, as against 72 in the same month a year ago. From January to September 772 cars, valued at $3,000,000, have been imported at this port, while in the same period of 1904 only 435 machines were brought in. The customs authorities believe that fully 1,500 cars will have been entered this year at the local Custom House.

The machines represent all of the leading makes, and include racing, touring, and business cars, although as a rule the number of foreign autos brought to this country for strictly commercial purposes is very small. Practically all the foreign racers used in the United States come through the New York Custom House.

At least one Customs Examiner devotes all his time to estimating values and fixing the amount of duties to be paid on automobiles. As a rule, persons buying foreign machines are in a hurry to get possession of their property, and great pressure is exerted on the Custom House people to rush the cars through the maze of red tape incident to any transaction involving the payment of duties.

A representative of the Custom House said yesterday: "These automobiles cause us more trouble than any other line of imports. Usually the machines are bought outright by wealthy Americans, or else by New York agents of the European manufacturers. In either case, no sooner has the steamer bearing the machine been sighted than we begin to receive personal calls or messages urging us to rush the car through the Custom House.

"Of course, Collector Stranahan is anxious to gratify the wishes of importers, but there are details of entry which are invariably overlooked by those entering cars. They seem to think that all we have to do is to run the machines off the ship and turn them over to the owners. Instead, we must receive the proper entry papers and then proceed with the examination and appraisement of the car. Naturally, if the invoice correctly states foreign market values, and is right in other respects, the importer is likely to get his car much sooner than if the contrary is the case."

"It is no small task to examine the high-grade machines received daily at the Custom House, and it has become necessary for the official charged with the appraisements to acquire expert knowledge. As a rule, the autos are assessed for duty under the provision in the Dingley tariff for 'manufactures of metal,' although the tires come in for their share of duty as manufactures of rubber at the rate of 30 per cent. The autos themselves pay 45 per cent.

"The machines are of all classes. They vary in value from $4,000 to $12,000, although occasionally an exceptional car comes in worth perhaps $20,000. Frequently there are a score or more of machines on the floors of the Appraiser's Warehouse. In fact, the automobiles actually crowd out other merchandise entitled to as much consideration at our hands as the cars. The subject of providing more room for the cars at the Federal Warehouse has frequently come up, and the Treasury Department will be obliged in the near future to provide a special building for the examination and storage of the machines."

It was pointed out yesterday by the same officer that the importation of automobiles has become a source of great revenue to the Government, as they are never admitted into this country at less than 45 per cent. ad valorem. When the present tariff act was drawn up in 1897 the automobile was so little known that it was not mentioned at all by name in the law. The general provision "manufactures of metal" is as near as the law gets to motor vehicles.

TWO DEAD IN CARRIAGE.

Man Kills His Daughter-in-Law and Himself.

SIOUX CITY, Iowa, Oct. 15.—While driving in a carriage from a hotel to a railroad station this afternoon E. H. Darrow, 60 years old, shot and killed his son's wife, Lillian Darrow, and then shot himself dead in the same place, the right temple.

The driver, without stopping to investigate, drove to a police station. Both occupants of the carriage were found sitting upright on opposite seats, dead.

The cause of the murder and suicide has not developed. E. H. Darrow and his daughter-in-law came to the Arcade Hotel on Oct. 10. They went away, but returned again Saturday, and this afternoon started for the railroad station, ostensibly to take a train for Sioux Falls, the home of Mr. Darrow's son.

Letters were found on the woman's body, unsigned, but apparently from her husband, indicating that they had had trouble. The writer of the letters protested undying love for the woman, and said that he was dying of a broken heart.

AUGUSTA GAMBLERS RAIDED.

One Place Had Been Running Thirty Years Without Trouble.

AUGUSTA, Ga., Oct. 15.—The police last night made a raid on every gambling room in Augusta. At every place a game was found in progress. The proprietors and players were taken to Headquarters. The rooms were stripped of the paraphernalia, at one place property valued at $7,000 being taken. One of the places raided had been operated continuously for the last thirty years, and this is the first time in its history that the authorities have ever raided it.

Dr. S. R. Belk, pastor of the largest Methodist Church in the city, to-night publicly commended the action of the Chief of Police, and said he was glad to see that there was one man here who had the courage to put down the lawlessness which prevailed.

Footpad Corner in Weehawken.

Within a short distance of a spot where there were three hold-ups within two hours ten days ago, there was another late on Saturday night in Weehawken. Myles Brennan of 104 Fourth Street, Union Hill, and Bridget Burns of Forty-fifth Street, Manhattan, were stopped by two men in River Road, within 100 feet of the Hudson Boulevard loop. From Brennan a watch and chain and $4.60 were taken, and from Miss Burns a gold watch and chain and $10. The footpads escaped.

Schmittberger Raids in the Tenderloin

Police Inspector Schmittberger, who had been quiet since the Bon Ton raid, suddenly became very active yesterday morning. His men made seven or eight raids on resorts in the lower Tenderloin, and the station was alternately full of prisoners coming in with detectives and prisoners going out with bondsmen. The campaign against the bondsmen is dead.

SAW A MAN SHOT.

While Policemen Pinkerton and Meehan of the Bedford Avenue Police Station were sleuthing last night at Driggs and North Eighth Streets, Williamsburg, looking for the murderer of a man who was killed there last Saturday night, they saw a man shoot down another at exactly the same spot. They started for the man, and he turned on them and threatened them with a revolver. While he aimed at Pinkerton Meehan dropped him with a kick.

The prisoner said he was Ambroso Alphonso, 25 years old, of 255 North Eighth Street. His victim is likely to die. He is Petro Carbo of 244 North Ninth Street.

The two are partners, and had met to settle a dispute over money.

BACK IN THE HOSPITAL.

Dollard, who was discharged from the same hospital only a few days ago, after having undergone an operation for appendicitis, went out driving yesterday afternoon with his father-in-law, Thomas D. Frick, a shoe merchant at 917 Manhattan Avenue.

At Bedford and Myrtle Avenues their horse was frightened by an elevated train and bolted. The carriage hit a post and Dollard was thrown out. Mr. Frick was spilled, too, but he received only slight injuries.

AUTO SPILLS A GIRL.

Went Into a Trench and Tossed Her 15 Feet—Another Girl Jumped.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Oct. 15.—Speeding down Atlantic Avenue at a twenty-mile rate, the forty-horse-power automobile of "Thomas Grant of New York" was sent by his chauffeur into a trench which had been dug for a gas main.

The shock hurled out of the machine Miss Mary Avery of New York and Miss Dorothy Mauer of Pittsburg. The owner was not in the machine. Miss Mauer was thrown ten or fifteen feet. She was bruised and stunned. Miss Avery jumped and saved herself.

The chauffeur, who clung to his wheel, went into the ditch with the automobile. He escaped with a few scratches.

DROVE MAN INTO A RIVER.

PROVIDENCE, Oct. 15.—Capt. Robert J. Lanier of the coal barge Hamilton Fish of New York, now in the Providence River, is detained by the police here pending an investigation of the disappearance of John Rose, a Cape de Verde deckhand.

According to Capt. Lanier, Rose refused to obey orders last night, and threatened that Lanier would meet the fate of the Captain of the schooner Harry A. Berwind on board which several murders were committed recently. Lanier and Rose came to blows, and it is alleged that the Captain struck the deckhand with a capstan bar. Rose immediately leaped overboard. When last seen by those on the barge he was swimming strongly.

WOMAN MAY TELL OF MURDER.

Mrs. Ingerick, Badly Beaten by Assassins, Is Rational Again.

MIDDLETOWN, Oct. 15.—Mrs. Ingerick, who was badly beaten on the day that her daughter and her employers, the Olney brothers, were murdered, was able to talk rationally to-day. She has not yet been informed of the death of her daughter and the Olney brothers, and she expressed surprise that the latter had not called to see her, as she said they owed her some money.

The physicians hope that with the full restoration of her mental faculties she will be able to throw light on the identity of her assailant.

AUTOMOBILE, WITH VESTIGES

Picked Up by the Police and Is Waiting an Owner—Left in a Hurry.

From early yesterday morning until late at night a large red touring car stood empty at Ninety-sixth Street and Fifth Avenue, unmolested by hundreds of persons who passed by it and attracting nobody until a policeman took it in charge.

The machine was covered with dust. In it were an expensive cravanette coat, a dozen empty champagne bottles, two pairs of women's gloves, three veils, and the remnants of a luncheon.

The machine is waiting a claimant. It has a seating capacity of ten, and the license numbers on it are 18,747 N. Y. and 10,912 N. J.

EXPLOSIONS HURT FIREMEN.

CHICAGO, Oct. 15.—Five firemen were injured and property valued at $130,000 was destroyed to-day by a fire that demolished the five-story brick building at 75 and 77 Lake Street, occupied by Podrasink, Klapperich & Co., wholesale dealers in paints and wallpaper.

Several explosions of oil and varnish occurred, and the firemen were injured by falling glass and flying splinters.

KILLS TWO ITALIANS.

Drug Clerk Badly Wounds a Third in a Pistol Fight.

CUMBERLAND, Md., Oct. 15.—Two Italians are dead and a third is believed to be dying as the result of a pistol fight here between Italians and John Price, 24 years old, a drug clerk at Paw Paw, West Va., yesterday evening.

Price resented an insult and knocked an Italian down, which started the fight. Price, who is unharmed, is in jail at Berkeley Springs.

JAILS FULL IN KANSAS.

No Room Left for Some of the Convicted Liquor Sellers.

Special to The New York Times.

TOPEKA, Kan., Oct. 15.—Gov. Hoch's crusade against violators of the prohibitory liquor law is bearing fruit. Many county jails are full of convicted liquor sellers. At Independence Judge Flannelly yesterday postponed for one week the sentence of twenty-one men because the county jail is "so congested that violators are hanging out of the windows."

Report of Baltimore Trust Merger.

Special to The New York Times.

BALTIMORE, Oct. 15.—In connection with the reorganization of the Maryland Trust Company, in which James Speyer & Co. of New York are largely interested, there is a well-founded report that the Maryland and Baltimore Trust Companies will merge, and that the Speyers' interest in the Maryland Trust will be transferred to the Baltimore Trust Company.

Gas Kills a Swiss Embroiderer.

Gustave Buhler, 52 years old, a manufacturer of Swiss embroidery at 454 Broadway, was found dead in bed last night in his home at 624 East 162d Street with the gas turned on. His wife and two daughters, who had returned from a visit to friends in New Jersey, found him. Mrs. Buhler said her husband had no reason to commit suicide.

Wolfe, Grace H. Harrington, Mary (otherwise Minnie) Matthews, Julia A. Deese, Claude R. C. Berard, Walter M. Berard, John H. Berard, the heirs and next of kin of EUPHILIA BERARD, deceased, and said Katharine G. Swartwout, being executrix named in the will of said deceased, send greeting:

Whereas Eugene M. Berard of Hackensack, New Jersey, has lately applied to the Surrogates' Court of our County of New York to have a certain instrument in writing, relating to both real and personal property, duly proved as the last will and testament of Euphilia Berard, late of the County of Columbia, State of Pennsylvania, deceased, therefore you and each of you are cited to appear before the Surrogate of our County of New York, at his office in the County of New York, on the 1st day of December, one thousand nine hundred and five, at half-past ten o'clock in the forenoon of that day, then and there to attend the probate of the said last will and testament.

And such of you as are hereby cited as are under the age of twenty-one years are required to appear by your guardian, if you have one, or if you have none, to appear and apply for one to be appointed, or in the event of your neglect or failure to do so, a guardian will be appointed by the Surrogate to represent and act for you in the proceeding.

In testimony whereof we have caused the seal of the Surrogates' Court of the said County of New York to be hereunto affixed. Witness, Hon. Abner C. Thomas, a Surrogate of our said County of New York, at said county, the 6th day of October, in the year of our Lord one thousand nine hundred and five. [L. S.]

If you use three different lines in a five mile journey, it costs you 13 cents. If you make an equal journey on one direct line, it costs you but 5 cents.

If your cigars are passed from manufacturer to jobber, and jobber to retailer, and retailer to you, each transfer adds cost—you are using three lines.

If you buy your cigars direct from me, you save all the cost of transferring—you are using the direct line.

Shivers' Panatela at $5.00 per 100 is equal to cigars retailed at 10c. each. It is the ideal business and between-times smoke, and good at all times for those who never want a really heavy cigar. The filler is all clean, long, clear selected Havana and the wrapper genuine selected Sumatra. Strictly hand made. Full 5 in. long.

Shivers' Panatela

Exact size and Shape

MY OFFER IS: I will, upon request, send one hundred Shivers' Panatela Cigars on approval to a reader of The Times, express prepaid. He may smoke ten cigars and return the remaining ninety at my expense if he is not pleased with them; if he is pleased, and keeps them, he agrees to remit the price, $5.00, within ten days.

Enclose business card or give personal references, and state whether mild, medium, or strong cigars are wanted.

EXILED INDIANS TO RETURN.

OTTAWA, Canada, Oct. 15.—Because of the great mortality among their children and horses and their inability to obtain food, Chief Little Bear and his band of 300 Indians, who fled from Canada at the close of the Riel rebellion, twenty years ago, are making preparations to return to their old homes.

Little Bear is the son of Big Bear, the famous chief who was one of the ringleaders of the rebellion. When it became evident to the insurgents that their cause was lost, Little Bear called his faithful followers together, and that night the long journey to Montana was begun. The survivors of this exiled party are now assembling at Havre, Mon.

The Dominion Government, through David Laird, Indian Commissioner, has notified Chief Bear that he may return to his former reservation without fear of punishment, provided he and his followers do not disturb settlers.

A SCHOOLBOY NEWSPAPER.

If Unions Will Permit a Plan of the Orange Board of Education.

The Orange Board of Education has under consideration a plan to establish a printing plant in connection with the high school in order that the students may publish a newspaper. The intention is to have the boys gather the news, set the type, and print the paper.

It is not likely, however, that the labor unions will permit the carrying out of the scheme without a fight, and already Typographical Union No. 103 of Newark has denounced it as a blow at the rights of the laboring man. A union committee has been appointed to wait on the Orange Board of Education.

Edward H. Ashton, President of the union, declares that Isaac H. Blanchard, a former member of the Board of Education and a New York printer, is behind the proposition, and that it is a scheme to fill the place made vacant by strikers among union compositors.

Colored Methodists Get a New Church.

The congregation of the Fleet Street African Methodist Episcopal Zion Church of Brooklyn, whose house of worship in Fleet Street, in that borough, collapsed last February, resulting in the loss of a score or more of lives, began yesterday to worship in their new meeting place, in Bridge Street, near Myrtle Avenue. Bishop James Walker Hood and more than fifty colored clergymen took part in the dedication, which was attended by several thousand Afro-Americans.

PRISONERS HELP FIGHT CASTLE WILLIAMS FIRE

CANNON CALL THE FIREBOATS

The fourth fire in the last few weeks that has got under way in the military posts in and around New York started just before 11 o'clock yesterday morning in Castle Williams, the prison on Governors Island. This fire, however, wasn't incendiary, as some of the others probably were. An overheated flue leading from the kitchen in the prison was responsible for it.

Pilots and passengers on harbor craft and those on the Battery sea wall first knew that something unusual was up on the island when they saw two puffs of smoke shoot out from the northeast end of the island, and then heard the boom of two cannon shots.

A moment later it looked as if all the soldiers on Governors Island had suddenly surrounded the prison. Everybody thought at first that a wholesale jail delivery had taken place in the famous old circular prison and that the soldiers were out to recapture the runaways. As a matter of fact, the 350 prisoners, instead of taking advantage of the excitement to make a dash for freedom, responded to the alarm and fought like veterans until the blaze was extinguished.

The two guns were to call the city's fireboats, an understanding having been reached that in case of fire on the reservation two cannon shots should be fired. When the firemen in the fireboat headquarters, near Pier A, heard the reports they knew that something was wrong on the island and prepared to start out.

The firemen were just casting off when the telephone rang in the firehouse, and a moment later a fireman rushed to the dock and told the waiting fire fighters that it was all over. Capt. Miller, the Adjutant of the Eighth Infantry, had telephoned that the garrison fire fighters could handle the blaze.

The fire was discovered by one of the prisoners who assists the bakers in the kitchen, underneath Cell 14, on the south side of the prison. He immediately notified Sergt. Way, who is in command of the prison, and he ordered the cannon signal fired. Sergt. Way knows how long old Castle Williams has been one of the landmarks of New York Harbor, and he remembered that, with the exception of its outer walls, it would make mighty fine fuel for a blaze. Meanwhile the prisoners who were not attending religious services in the chapel or were at work around the reservation had been formed into a bucket brigade and were flooding Cell 14, under which the fire was.

The regular organized fire department of the Eighth Infantry was at the prison in a jiffy. Under command of Capt. Miller, the Adjutant; Capt. Johnson of Company G, and Lieut. Halpin of Company E, the soldiers made quick work of the flames.

When the fire was discovered none of the prisoners was locked in a cell, and those that were within the prison inclosure were in the quadrangle having a good time.

SUPER CAPTAIN HELD.

Chased Boys from Stage Door and One Was Mortally Hurt.

Albert C. Rosenthal of 678 East 128th Street, who was in charge of the supers in a production at the Thalia Theatre last week, was held by Coroner Scholer yesterday to await an inquiry into the death of Joseph Volensky, who died on Saturday after a fall from the stage stairs at that theatre.

Rosenthal had advertised for twenty-five boys to take part in the show, and about ten times that number applied for the jobs. Volensky was among the applicants. When they were told there was nothing for them the boys hung about the stage entrance, at 16 Elizabeth Street, until they disturbed the evening performance. Rosenthal drove them away, and in his flight Volensky fell about six feet to the bottom of the stairs. Two companions picked him up and carried him home. Dr. Cherry was called from the Hudson Street Hospital, and said the boy was suffering from cerebral hemorrhage. The lad died about an hour after Dr. Cherry's visit.

STUDENT RIOTERS FREED.

The Court Merciful Because They Were Just Beginning College.

"You don't want to begin your college career with a conviction in a criminal court, so I will let you off with a reprimand," said Magistrate Walsh in the Yorkville Court yesterday as he dismissed the complaint against Max Siegiestein, Arthur Stearn, and Henry Pranze, students at Bellevue Medical College, who had been arrested charged with taking part in the riot Saturday afternoon. The riot was between the freshmen and sophomores, and started with the annual "rush."

The freshmen, according to the story told by Roundsman Quinn of the East Twenty-second Street Station, were more to blame than the sophomores for the trouble. They started in to do some hazing, and a general fight resulted; in which several students had their heads battered. In the fight stones and bottles were hurled and pails of water thrown on the sophomores. The prisoners were sophomores.

Seigiestein, who is a brother of Assemblyman Seigiestein, said he lived at 182 East Thirteenth Street; Stearn at 375 Lockwood Avenue, and Pranze at Twenty-sixth Street and First Avenue.

DROPS DEAD AT CHRISTENING.

Services Continued When the Godfather's Body Had Been Removed.

Standing sponsor for a baby that had been brought to St. Rita's Church, Long Island City, yesterday afternoon Nicholas Valorosa, an Italian, of 348 East Seventy-sixth Street, Manhattan, dropped dead. The christening was delayed until Valorosa's body was removed, and then proceeded without a godfather. The godmother acted in his place.

The Rev. Father James J. Higgins is pastor of St. Rita's Church. On Sunday afternoons there are many christenings in the church, and Valorosa and his christening party had to wait until their turn came. The baptism had begun when Valorosa put his hand to his head and fell dead.

Tenant Arraigned for Arson.

Charles Clarke, 35 years old, who lives at 531 West Thirty-fifth Street, was arraigned in the West Side Court yesterday charged with setting fire to the building where he lives. John P. Prial, a Deputy Fire Marshal, was the complainant. The blaze, which caused little damage, occurred on Saturday. Clarke was held for further examination.

FOUGHT FIRE HIGH IN AIR.

Firemen fighting a blaze high up in a skyscraper attracted a large crowd in front of 594 Broadway at 2 o'clock yesterday afternoon. The fire was on the tenth floor of the twelve-story building.

The floor on which the blaze occurred is occupied by Ritter Brothers, manufacturers of leather goods. The fire evidently had smoldered for a long time before it was discovered.

Although the firemen had great difficulty in getting their hose up, they managed to confine the flames to the one floor. The hose was hoisted to the tenth floor by means of ropes, which were let down on the Crosby Street side. The standpipes in the building were used to good effect.

The damage to the stock and fixtures was $1,500.

KICKED HIS HORSE.

A Woman Saw the Iceman Do It and Had Him Arrested.

Emil Shafrick of 101 Amsterdam Avenue, a driver of an ice wagon, was arraigned in the West Side Court yesterday charged with cruelty to one of his horses. Miss Rose Case of 347 West Fifty-eighth Street was the complainant. She said that Shafrick kicked one of the horses several times while the team was standing in Columbus Avenue.

Patrolman Hopkins, who arrested Shafrick, told the Magistrate that the driver did not hurt the horse much.

"The fact that he didn't succeed in breaking the horse's ribs," said Magistrate Wahle, "in no way lightens the offense. I will hold him for trial."

COMMISSIONER PALLAS DIES IN FRIEND'S HOME

ILL, HE TRIED TO REGISTER

Exertion Was Too Much for Him—Died While a Priest Was Praying—Ailing for Weeks.

John J. Pallas, President of the Park Commission for the Boroughs of Manhattan and Richmond, died at 6.30 o'clock last evening at the residence of Miss Bertha Lalor, a crayon sketch artist, 581 Lexington Avenue. Commissioner Pallas's death was directly due to cardiac dilation. Kidney disease, from which he had been a chronic sufferer, hastened his end.

Commissioner Pallas had been warned for three weeks that his condition was serious and that death was imminent. Notwithstanding the admonitions of his physician, Dr. Thomas Quinlan of 221 East Thirty-ninth Street, however, he persisted in attempting to perform his daily work as Park Commissioner. Yesterday he insisted upon registering for the forthcoming election. The exertion caused by preparations for his trip to the registration booth led to his death.

Commissioner Pallas had suffered from kidney trouble for more than two years. Three weeks ago it assumed an aggravated form, and when the Jefferson Park playgrounds were opened the disease asserted itself in a manner which caused his physician to warn him against all hard work and to rest as much as possible. This advice the Commissioner refused to accept, and the hard part that he took in the opening exercises greatly weakened him.

As a result of his fatigue Mr. Pallas was unable to appear at his office at the Central Park Arsenal on the following Monday. He remained in his rooms at the Le Barton, 308 West Fifty-eighth Street, for several days, and it was not until the next Saturday that he returned to his work. Even then he was cautioned by his physician that to exert himself in the discharge of his duties would be dangerous.

Last Friday afternoon he went to his home, feeling very ill. He did not return to work on Saturday, and was constantly attended by a physician. Yesterday morning he again insisted on leaving his rooms and, notwithstanding the advice of Dr. Quinlan, ordered a Park carriage to be ready for him at 8 o'clock. The doctor told him he should remain indoors, and that a trip abroad might prove fatal.

"Oh, I guess I can stand it," he said to his physician. "I'm all right now."

Commissioner Pallas rode from his apartments to the headquarters of Mayor McClellan, at the Bartholdi Hotel. There he saw John H. O'Brien, the Mayor's manager. Mr. O'Brien and Commissioner Pallas talked together for half an hour.

On leaving the Mayor's headquarters Mr Pallas was driven to Miss Lalor's home. Miss Lalor has been a friend of the Pallas family for ten years.

It was about 9:30 A. M. when the Commissioner greeted Miss Lalor. He took a seat in the parlor and began to talk. Suddenly he pressed his hand to his heart and complained of feeling ill.

"Send for Dr. Quinlan," he said to Miss Lalor, who ran toward him with an anxious inquiry. "I'm ill, and need attention."

Mr. Pallas's face grew pale and his speech was faint. Miss Lalor ran to the telephone and summoned Dr. Quinlan. In the meantime the servants were called, and Commissioner Pallas was removed to a lounge. When Dr. Quinlan arrived he pronounced the case to be a dangerous one. He ordered Mr. Pallas to lie still, but as soon as the doctor left the house Mr. Pallas started to arise.

"I don't care what the doctor says," he remarked; "I'm going out to register. I don't intend to lose my vote in this campaign."

Mr. Pallas called for his overcoat. He got into it and started from the room to the hallway leading to the front door. His walk was painful and weak. Just as he reached the middle of the parlor he gasped and, leaning back, fell to the floor. He had suffered another stroke and was almost unconscious.

Miss Lalor ran to the telephone and called up Dr. Quinlan. The physician returned, examined the Commissioner, and then told him that he was about to die.

Father Hughes was summoned from St. Patrick's Cathedral and administered the last rites of the Church. Commissioner Pallas and Father Hughes then began to pray, and it was while in the midst of prayer that Mr. Pallas died. His last words were in supplication.

Mrs. Corcoran, his sister, arrived ten minutes after Mr. Pallas's death. She took charge of the body and telegraphed to another sister, Mrs. Marie F. Grogan of 1,203 Sanderson Avenue, Scranton, Penn. Mrs. Grogan had intended to be in New York to-day on a visit to her brother. She will arrive here this morning. The only other living relative of Mr. Pallas's, Miss Jean Flannigan of 39 Seventh Avenue, also was notified.

Mr. Pallas was President of the Workingmen's Federation of the State and Vice President of the Eastern District League of Pattern Makers of America. He was popularly known as the "Father of Pattern Makers of America" by reason of his work in getting the present rate of wages drawn by those workers.

He was born in Ireland about fifty years ago. He came to this country when very young and began work as a breaker boy in the mines at Scranton, Penn. Since then he had been before the public as an actor and a leader among union men. The Park Commissionership was the only public office that he ever held.

Immediately after his appointment as Park Commissioner he let out an advertising contract for the fences surrounding the new Public Library and brought down on his head a storm of indignation. The matter was taken to the courts, which decided against him, and his appeal was blocked by Mayor McClellan ordering him to comply with the court's decision at once.

As an actor Mr. Pallas played many parts, and he had a very extensive acquaintance among actors. Among the plays in which he took part were "Rip Van Winkle," the late Joseph Jefferson's production; "The Lights o' London," and "The Still Alarm."

Always a believer in unionism, he helped to form the Actors' Protective Union, and at one time he was its President. He left the stage, however, about twelve or fourteen years ago, although he had always kept up his membership in the Actors' Union.

OIL DIVIDENDS 300 PER CENT.

Standard Company Got Two-thirds of Waters-Pierce Profits.

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 16.—Charles M. Adams, Secretary of the Waters-Pierce Oil Company, was declared in contempt of court this afternoon for refusing to answer questions put by Attorney General Hadley in the inquiry to determine whether there is a community of interests between the Waters-Pierce Company, the Republic Oil Company, and the Standard Oil Company. Adams refused to give the names of stockholders of the Waters-Pierce Company, or answer the question whether two-thirds of the profits goes to the Standard Oil Company.

In the inquiry under the Attorney General's proceedings to annul the charters of the Standard Oil and the Waters-Pierce Companies in Missouri, and injunction proceedings in the Kansas City Circuit Court to prevent them from combining, it was brought out to-day that two-thirds the profits of the Waters-Pierce Company, which amounted annually to 300 per cent. of the $400,000 capital stock, was paid to the Standard Oil Company.

Charles B. Collins, formerly financial secretary to Pierce, who was until recently President of the Waters-Pierce Oil Company, testified that from 1901 to September, 1904, when he severed his connection with the corporation, the Waters-Pierce Company paid dividends to H. Clay Pierce on 3,996 shares of stock, all but four shares of the entire capital. Those dividends, he said, amounted to 25 per cent.—sometimes 50 per cent.—a month, and the average annual dividends never fell below 300 per cent.

A sum equal to two-thirds of Mr. Pierce's dividend, Collins testified, was sent by Mr. Pierce, through Collins, to a "Mr. Tilford, at 26 Broadway, New York." This is the office of the Standard Oil Company. In two instances, Collins said, he visited the Standard Oil office himself, carrying the dividend to Mr. Tilford.

Collins kept two sets of books, he declared, one showing President Pierce's income, the other the large dividend sent to the Standard Oil Company. In Pierce's income account there was no debit column, and in the books containing a record of the Standard Oil contributions there was no credit account.

HOBOKEN PIERS IN PERIL.

Water Front Fire Was Subdued After Two Hours' Fight.

Another Hoboken pier fire was subdued last night by a narrow margin. The blaze was in the dry dock yards of Tietjen & Lang, a mile or so north of the Lackawanna docks, and a little less from the Hamburg and Bremen docks. It is situated in the cove between Hoboken and Weehawken, at about Seventeenth Street.

The fire started in the blacksmith shop, which was destroyed, and spread to the machine and pattern buildings, which were badly damaged. The firemen first on the scene were from Weehawken, a company of volunteers, and they grabbed the available hydrants. When the regular fire fighters of Hoboken arrived there was a disposition on the part of the volunteers to hold the plugs, but the Hoboken men would stand no nonsense and took possession of all they wanted.

In the docks at the time were but two boats, the Erie ferryboat Paterson and the Central Railroad of New Jersey's Easton. The firemen beat back the flames and extinguished them before they reached the docks. Meanwhile tugs fitted with fire pumps had made fast and run out lines, but there was no need for pumping. A couple of hours' fighting beat out the flames and the danger was past. The loss will not be heavy.

WOMAN SHOT AND DYING.

Police Seek Man Whose Card Was In Her Pocket.

A woman was found dying in the runway used for storing trucks at night alongside Eichler's brewery at 169th Street and Fulton Avenue, just before 9 o'clock last night. She had two bullet wounds in the right side, and one in the left side of her neck. A revolver with three chambers empty and a flask containing two ounces of carbolic acid were found beside her.

She was unconscious and remained so after she was taken to the Lebanon Hospital.

The woman was neatly dressed in a black waist and skirt and a white hat. She appears to be something over 30 years old, is 5 feet 7 inches in height, and weighs 130 pounds.

In the woman's pocketbook was $5.15, together with a letter written in German and a man's calling card bearing an address. The letter translated read:

I wish you to have your rights. May God forgive me and punish you. Bury me in the poor cemetery. I have no relatives.
ANNIE LANOGUE.

Policemen are searching for the man whose name and address appear on the card.

KILLS TO SAVE HIS MOTHER.

Boy Shoots Down His Father, Who Had Attacked Her.

Special to The New York Times.

TRENTON, Oct. 16.—While protecting his mother from the assault of his father, who was armed with a knife to-night, William T. Bevins, Jr., shot and killed his father on a houseboat in the Delaware River. The son was about to give himself up to the police when he was arrested and held without bail for the Grand Jury.

According to the story told by the mother, she and her husband had a quarrel this afternoon, and about supper time he threatened to kill her. He was armed with a knife and pursued her around the house. She finally escaped from the house, and before the husband could find her she had rowed out to the houseboat of her son.

The husband rowed out to the houseboat, and when he came aboard young Bevins refused to let him see his mother. The father grabbed a hatchet and was striking at his son's head when the son fired and killed him.

GOING TO EUROPE TO STUDY

Financially Independent, He Starts Now to Carry Out the Plans He Has Cherished for Years.

After this week Charles Dana Gibson will draw no more in black and white. The originator of "the Gibson Girl" wants to enter a new field, and in November he will sail for Europe to study art. As a friend expresses it, "he has bought his freedom," and, realizing "that he has reached his limit in black and white" he has decided upon this step. The cost of Mr. Gibson's freedom will be about $65,000 a year, the amount of income that he will sacrifice.

"My mind is made up," Mr. Gibson said yesterday afternoon, as he stood at the door of his Carnegie Hall studio. "I have done what I set out to do in my chosen sphere, and now I am free to do the work I want to do. When I sail in November with my wife and children I will be virtually on vacation. I do not mean by this that I shall be idle. On the contrary, I will be very busy, but I will be following my own ideals, and not working to order.

"For six months I have been working in colors, and I find that I cannot continue to draw in line and give the time I want to give to painting. In that I am able to do as I please I esteem myself most fortunate. I may be abroad a year. I may remain two years, or three. I do not know. I have not mapped out the minor details of the move I have decided upon. I will stay just as long as I feel that I am approaching more nearly to the ideals I have set up in my heart. I want to reach the limit of my possibilities in color.

"First, I will go to Spain. After a time in that country I will visit Italy, and from Italy I will go to France. I know that I will not return to America before next Summer, but I will certainly visit my home then, and if I continue my studies abroad I will get back once a year at least."

"Have you chosen the masters under whom you will study?" Mr. Gibson was asked.

"I have not. There is plenty of time for that."

That Mr. Gibson is thoroughly in earnest and that the step he has taken in refusing to renew the contracts that bring him in anywhere from $65,000 to $75,000 a year is the result of no sudden whim, but the offspring of desires long cherished, was proved by his every word and gesture.

"There's nothing more for me to tell you," he said, when he had made the bare announcement that he meant to go abroad to study art. "I've simply come to a point where I have enough to take care of my family and educate my children, and I feel that if I can do better work in broader fields by giving a few years to study I can do so."

"Will your friends see nothing of your work while you are abroad?" he was asked.

"That depends," he replied. "As I told you, I am not to be idle, but am going to do the work I want to do. If anybody wants the work I want to do, I assure you I will be very glad of it. If nobody wants it, then I am afraid there won't be much of it seen for a while."

Mr. Gibson talked with the unaffected happiness of the schoolboy who has passed his "exams" in the preparatory school and is about to enter college. It is said that he has been drawing $25,000 a year from Collier's, $20,000 from Life, and that the royalties from the book of sketches that he published every year were at least $20,000.

It seems almost incredible that we should be bidding Mr. Gibson farewell; it seems unbelievable that this, his tenth, should be his last book of sketches, and that the present issue should be the last "Gibson number" that we may promise to our readers. Yet it is all true. Mr. Gibson is going abroad. He is going to study art. The master goes to the Old World to learn from other masters. It was three years ago that Collier's made a four-year contract with Mr. Gibson. His drawings have been appearing in these pages regularly ever since. We believed they would continue to appear for a long time, for another year at least. But Mr. Gibson has become convinced that he has done all that lies within him in the sphere that has made him famous.

In the same issue will be an article by Robert W. Chambers, entitled "Ave Atque Vale, Gibson." The article quotes a letter from a friend of Mr. Gibson, regarding his decision, which says:

A little over a week ago, on Gibson's return from Dark Harbor, I had luncheon with him, and, although I have known him fairly well for five or six years, and have always liked him, I never before had such an opportunity of seeing his real self.

For twenty years, he said, he has been working to get in the position in which he finds himself to-day. During that time he may have appeared to many of his friends to have been working with money as too immediate a master, but he has now bought his freedom, has put aside enough to take care of his family and educate his children, and now has determined to burn all his bridges and set out with his schoolbooks under his arm to study art in Europe. He is filled with the freshness and enthusiasm of a boy about it, and plans a year in Spain, a year in France, and a year in Italy; as he describes it, to let every influence play upon him. He does not know what his medium will be or how long he will be in the primary class learning the alphabet, but he believes enough in himself, in his capacity for hard work and study, to be willing to make a big bet, as he expresses it, that he will win out. His whole attitude—realization that he has reached his limit in black and white, that while he might continue to make money he would do so at a sacrifice of his artistic self-respect—and the picture it gave me of his manliness and self-restraint during the past twenty years, have increased my respect for him a hundredfold.

It is hard, at this distance, to make clear what a fine thing I think he is doing, or to describe the fine admixture of humility and pride with which he leaves behind what for most men would have been a satisfying success, and starts, when nearly forty, on an absolutely unknown road. Quite independent of what the results may be, I think it is an inspiriting example, and if this hasty note conveys any of the warmth of my appreciation, of it it will not have been altogether useless.

Mr. Gibson was asked if the writer of this letter had sized up his attitude correctly.

"I suppose he has," was the reply, "except that I don't begin to deserve the compliments he pays me."

Mr. Gibson is a native of Roxbury, Mass., where he was born in 1867. The "Gibson Girl" achieved a place for herself as soon as she made her bow to the public. Among his sketches those depicting "The Education of Mr. Pipp," "The Americans," "A Widow and Her Friends," and "The Social Ladder" have been most successful.

TO PROTECT THE PRESIDENT.

Knife to be Used at Once If He Is Bitten by Mosquitos In the South.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 16.—Every effort is to be exerted to protect the President from mosquitos on his journey to the South. Surgeon General Rixey has made all necessary arrangements. The President will leave Washington on Wednesday morning at 8:30 o'clock.

The doors and windows of the car in which the President will travel and remain night and day for the greater part of the trip will be screened, and all the cars will be thoroughly fumigated. The President will not be in New Orleans after dark.

It is believed that there will be little danger while he is driving around the city or speaking in Lafayette Square. Should the President be bitten Surgeon General Rixey at once will cut out the flesh about the spot.

Rear Admiral Brownson telegraphed the Navy Department announcing his departure to-day from Newport with his squadron, the armored cruisers West Virginia, Colorado, and Pennsylvania. He will leave the Colorado and Pennsylvania off Key West and go on with the flagship to South Pass, where he will take the President aboard for the return to Washington from New Orleans. The West Virginia is due at South Pasa not later than the morning of Oct. 26.

FEVER DISAPPEARING.

This Week Expected to Witness the End of the Visitation.

NEW ORLEANS, Oct. 16.—Unless the Federal authorities are greatly disappointed the week beginning to-day will mark practically the end of the yellow fever visitation. One hundred and fifteen inspectors were dropped from the rolls yesterday, and more will be let go to-day. There will then be 400 men at work against 1,276 a short time ago. The report of the Citizens' Committee is expected to show a large surplus from the fund raised to fight fever.

FOUR BITTEN BY A DOG.

A mongrel dog which had been feeding on scraps along Norfolk Street for several days and had become a pet of the boys and girls in the neighborhood developed symptoms of rabies yesterday and attacked several children, biting some of them seriously.

The dog first attacked Lillian Fuchs, a little girl living at 166 Norfolk Street, who was playing with it near her home. It snapped at her hand, inflicting deep tooth marks. Then the animal rushed along Norfolk Street and attacked Carrie Daubschitz, 5 years old, who was playing in front of No. 166. She was bitten in the face. Harry Klones, 6 years old, of 181 Norfolk Street, thinking the dog was at play, ran to meet it and was also bitten severely on the left cheek.

Julius Levine, 3 years old, of 167 Norfolk Street, was also bitten before the tradesmen of the neighborhood began to chase the dog with whatever implements came first to hand. The chase led through Broome Street to Delancey, where a flatiron thrown by a butcher struck the animal. It was bowled over, and before it could get up was surrounded by a crowd which put it to death.

Dr. Gottesman of 150 Stanton Street dressed the wounds of the children who had been bitten. They were all sent home except the Klones boy, whose injury was so severe that he was sent to the Pasteur Institute.

MRS. FLOWER GETS $3,000,000

Lockhart Heirs Settle with Daughter the Oil Man Cut Off.

Special to The New York Times.

PITTSBURG, Oct. 16.—An agreement has been reached between the heirs of Charles Lockhart and Mrs. William S. Flower settling the will contest started by the daughter, who was cut off with the income of $300,000. Mrs. Flower, it is said, will receive $3,000,000. The papers are yet to be signed.

John C. Haymaker, counsel for Mrs. Flower, said to-day:

"Mrs. Flower and the other heirs have reached an agreement whereby my client receives a portion of her father's money not provided for in the will. The agreement has not been signed, but it will be soon. I cannot make the amount public. The arrangement is satisfactory to both Mrs. Flower and the other heirs."

Mrs. Flower incurred the displeasure of her father by marrying Dr. J. O. Flower. Her sisters and brothers shared an estate which is presumed to be worth $75,000,000. Mr. Lockhart was one of the founders of the Standard Oil Company.

DU BOIS WILL BROKEN.

Jury Decides That the School Principal Was Mentally Unsound.

The will of Alpheus Du Bois, old "Pop" Du Bois, as he was called, was broken by the decision of a jury in the Supreme Court yesterday. Mr. Du Bois was a public school Principal for half a century, and on a salary of $3,000 a year made a fortune of half a million dollars. It was believed that he had died in poverty until his will was filed.

His daughter, Mrs. Ivy Blanche McKee, had believed her father dead since the civil war, but learned the facts and contested the will. He had left her $10,000, and the bulk of his estate, according to the terms of the will, was bequeathed to his sisters.

The decision of the jury was that Mr. Du Bois was mentally incompetent to make a will, and that it was therefore invalid.

GRAND DUKE DEGRADED.

Cyril, Who Married Divorced Princess, Punished by Czar.

ST. PETERSBURG, Oct. 16.—The Official Messenger to-day published an imperial ukase, dated Oct. 15, dismissing Grand Duke Cyril from the service in consequence of his recent marriage to the Princess Victoria, the divorced wife of the Grand Duke Hesse.

In addition to the other punishments Cyril is deprived of all his decorations, of the right to bear the title of Imperial Highness, and his entire Russian income, which is derived from the $2,500,000 set aside for each Grand Duke at his birth, and which has since been augmented in various ways. The Grand Duke left Peterhof last night.

Kills Wife; Shoots Himself.

REGISTRATION 20,000 LARGER THAN IN 1903

Total for the City Is 647,089—A Loss in This Borough.

OTHERS SHOW LARGE GAINS

The registration for this year in Greater New York is 647,089. It was 626,581 in 1903. This shows a gain of 20,508 over 1903. The total in 1902 was 593,139.

To this gain Brooklyn contributes 10,508, Queens 4,975, Richmond 553, and the Bronx approximately 5,000. The Manhattan districts show a loss.

Manhattan and the Bronx have a registration of 363,633; Brooklyn, 231,875; Queens, 36,713, and Richmond, 14,868.

The registration yesterday in Manhattan and the Bronx was 83,518; in Brooklyn, 52,874; in Queens, 8,463, and in Richmond, 3,584. The total registration for yesterday, the fourth day, was 148,439.

Eleven out of the thirty-three and one-half districts in Manhattan show gains. All the others are behind from 50 to 700 as compared with 1903. The Eleventh and Twelfth have lost heavily. In both instances, however, the demolishing of whole blocks (in one instance for the erection of the Pennsylvania Railroad terminal and in the other for the western approach to the Williamsburg Bridge) accounts for the loss. Both are Democratic districts.

In the Fifteenth The McManus has achieved his ambition to get out a record registration. The registration there is 8,576. In 1903 the registration was 8,210.

In the Seventeenth the new leader, John F. Curry, was able to report that his district had gained over the figures of 1903.

These Manhattan districts also show gains:

The Fourth, Second, Sixteenth, Third, Twenty-eighth, Nineteenth, and Twenty-first. In the Twenty-third there is a gain of about 2,000—a tremendous achievement by McAvoy and McKee. There is a gain of about 900 in the Thirty-first. The Thirty-fourth District shows a gain of about 1,000.

Charles F. Murphy's district is behind 1903; also Peter J. Dooling's, Joseph F. Predergast's, Patrick H. Keahon's, Francis J. Lantry's, and John T. Oakley's. In the Ninth, where Frank J. Goodwin, Thomas F. Smith, and William Halpin live, the figures are behind 1903. Daniel E. Finn's district is away off. The Battery District has lost much population in the past three or four years.

There is a decided loss in these Republican districts: Elsberg's, the Twenty-ninth; Parsons's, the Twenty-fifth, and Wilson's the Twenty-seventh.

The complete figures follow:

RAIDERS USE LADDERS.

Detectives Scale Walls and Round Up 300 Men In Poolroom.

Scaling ladders, borrowed from a nearby ladder company, were used in a raid on an alleged poolroom yesterday afternoon in Madison Street, near New Bowery, by Capt. Hodgins of the Oak Street Station and several detectives. Detective McGee and two other men climbed the ladders and were inside the room several minutes before Capt. Hodgins and the others had battered their way in through three strong doors.

About 300 men were in the room when the raid was made. Two were arrested. They gave the names of Christopher England, Fifth Avenue, Brooklyn, and John Murphy, 127 Madison Street.

MAYOR REWARDS OLD FRIEND.

Appoints James Clancey, Who Helped Him as a Reporter, to School Board.

James Clancey was appointed to the Board of Education yesterday by Mayor McClellan. Sixteen years ago both Clancey and George B. McClellan were fellow-reporters on The Herald. McClellan was new at the work and Clancey helped him with suggestions, and a warm friendship resulted. When William Lummis resigned from the Board of Education the Mayor remembered that Clancey years ago had expressed an ambition to be a member of the board, so he appointed him. Mr. Clancey is a lawyer as well as a newspaper man, and is about 60 years old. He is still employed by The Herald.

TWO TO ONE ON McCLELLAN.

Bet of $100 Even That Hearst Won't Get More Than 50,000 Votes.

Election betting—or offers to bet—began in earnest yesterday in Wall Street. The odds on McClellan were 2 to 1. A week ago a bet was made on the curb at 8 to 1. The only big bet made yesterday was by E. D. Hutchinson and Allen, McGraw & Co. Hutchinson put up $1,000 on McClellan against $500.

A bet of $100 even that Hearst would not get more than 50,000 votes was made on the curb in the afternoon.

SQUADRON TO AWE CASTRO.

Five French Warships Will Assemble at Martinique Soon.

CHERBOURG, France, Oct. 16.—The armored cruiser Desaix, with Admiral Bevoe de la Peyrere on board, left to-day for Martinique. The second-class cruiser Jurien de la Graviere and the third-class cruisers Lavoisier, Chasseloup-Laubat, and Troude will join her during the voyage.

It is understood that the Admiral will receive further instructions before reaching Martinique.

WENT TO JAIL IN STYLE.

Convicted Banker Drove with Deputy Sheriff in His Barouche.

Special to The New York Times.

DENVER, Oct. 16.—Seated beside a Deputy Sheriff, in his own barouche, with his liveried coachman handling the reins over a pair of pedigreed horses, E. M. Johnson, President of the failed Fidelity Savings and Loan Association, to-day rode to the station to take the train which conveyed him to the door of the penitentiary.

Johnson was sentenced Sept. 2 last to an indeterminate term of two to three years. He donned the stripes and had his head shaved to-night.

ARREST IN THOMPSON CASE.

But This Negro Prisoner in Richmond Is Not Suspected Here.

RICHMOND, Oct. 16.—The police of this city to-day arrested a negro whom they supposed to be connected with the recent murder of Jacob H. Thompson, who was exchange editor of THE NEW YORK TIMES. The prisoner said he was Moses Morton. He will be arraigned to-morrow as a suspicious person.

At Police Headquarters yesterday it was said that the authorities here were not seeking any one in Richmond in connection with the murder of Mr. Thompson, and had made no request for the detention of the negro Morton. Some inquiries had been made in Richmond, but the purpose of these had been accomplished, and nobody in Richmond was suspected of any connection with the case.

How Col. Hepburn Described Congress to the Japanese.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 16.—The views of Col. Hepburn of Iowa concerning the United States Senate seem to coincide with those of his chief, Speaker Cannon. Gen. Grosvenor of Ohio was at the White House to-day, and was telling about the trip of Secretary Taft's party to the Far East.

"When we were in Tokio," he said, "we attended a banquet, at which Representative Hepburn responded to the toast, 'Views of the American Congress on the Philippine Question.' Col. Hepburn said that the American Congress was made up of three hundred and eighty-six human beings and ninety Senators. Consequently no one could foretell what their views would be."

STUDENTS DRAG CARNEGIE.

ST. ANDREWS, Scotland, Oct. 16.—Andrew Carnegie, who will to-morrow again be installed as Lord Rector of the University of St. Andrews, arrived here this evening, accompanied by Charlemagne Tower, American Ambassador at Berlin, and Mrs. Tower, and Bishop Henry C. Potter of New York and Mrs. Potter.

The students, wearing their scarlet gowns, were assembled at the station and detached the horses from Mr. Carnegie's carriage, which they dragged through the streets to the residence of Dr. James Donaldson, Vice Chancellor and Principal of the university. They held a torchlight procession and visited the houses of the professors and of Dr. Donaldson to-night. Mr. Carnegie briefly addressed the students.

ROCKEFELLER WAR ON DOGS.

Offers $2 for Every Mongrel Killed—Owners Threaten Suit.

Special to The New York Times.

TARRYTOWN, Oct. 16.—Since John D. Rockefeller returned from his vacation spent at Cleveland he has introduced a number of reforms on his country estate at Pocantico Hills. In addition to maintaining a special patrol to keep visitors from driving and tramping over his domain and building an iron fence miles in length to inclose Boxwood he now has several of his employes armed with shotguns killing dogs that stray upon his place.

He gives a bounty of $2 for every mongrel killed. The patrolmen, however, have killed several valuable hunting dogs, and now there is trouble brewing. Several men who have lost pointers threaten to sue Mr. Rockefeller. John Egan of Pocantico had two dogs killed.

The hunters used the dogs in trailing foxes that have their haunts on Buttermilk Hill, a mountain on the Rockefeller estate, and running down the fox the dogs generally run through the lands of Mr. Rockefeller.

IVINS DEFIES ODELL AND ALL THE BOSSES

Pledge on City Ownership Stronger Than the Hearst League's.

AGAINST A FOUR-YEAR MAYOR

Says Republicans Also Made a Mistake in Taking Franchise Power from the Board of Aldermen.

In a speech at the Republican Club last night William M. Ivins, the Republican candidate for Mayor, placed himself on a municipal ownership platform as radical, if not more so, than that proclaimed by the followers of William R. Hearst. Mr. Ivins's speech was remarkable in many respects. He characterized Mr. Hearst with biting sarcasm, he defied State Chairman Odell, he denounced the managers of the great insurance companies, and, to cap the climax, he severely criticised the Mayor's four-year-term bill and the bill taking from the Board of Aldermen the franchise-granting power, both of which measures were put through the Legislature by Senator Elsberg, who is Mr. Ivins's campaign manager. The franchise bill was also a pet measure of Senator Platt's.

Mr. Ivins arrived at the Republican Club about 8:30 o'clock in an automobile that he has hired for the campaign. He was accompanied by Senator Elsberg. As he entered the club he was heartily applauded by the 250 Republicans there. The crowd adjourned to the hall on the second floor, and Pratt A. Brown introduced Mr. Ivins.

A Rap at Hearst.

Mr. Ivins began by saying that he had learned from the papers that he was a dead man, and declared that before the campaign was over he would show that he was very much alive. Referring to his challenge to Mayor McClellan and William R. Hearst to meet him in joint debate, he said:

"I had an idea that possibly it might be very gratifying for the other candidates for the Mayoralty to have an opportunity to meet me in a friendly spirit and discuss from a common platform the issues. But I find from one of the evening papers that I was mistaken, and from one of the candidates I learn a charming thing—that my reason for making the suggestion was my search for notoriety. That is the suggestion of Mr. Hearst, modest, delicate, retiring William. [Laughter.]

"He is the gentleman who came here to New York and who has tried to subvert every one of the principles of our Government, has tried to turn to himself every bit of our public life and energy for the aggrandizement of a newspaper purely and simply by way of advertisement, and who is now seeking election as Mayor on the basis of modesty and asks you to put his personal counsel into the District Attorney's office so that he shall own the whole thing. [Laughter.] And this modest flower suggests that my desire for discussion is to gain notoriety!"

Mr. Ivins said that he had noticed a tendency on the part of some newspapers to produce the same feeling among the Republicans to-day that existed in the campaign of 1886, when the candidates were Hewitt, Roosevelt, and George. Mr. Ivins was one of the most ardent advocates of the election of Mr. Hewitt and became City Chamberlain under him. He continued:

"In 1886 President Roosevelt ran for Mayor. Henry George also ran for Mayor and Mr. Hewitt ran for Mayor. Somehow the notion spread through the community that unless the Republicans abandoned Mr. Roosevelt and voted for Mr. Hewitt, Mr. George would certainly be elected. This was the result: Mr. Hewitt was elected, and after the election it was demonstrated that if the Republicans who voted for Hewitt had voted for Roosevelt, Theodore Roosevelt would have been the Mayor of the city."

"Now, it is being said that in order to guarantee success against Mr. Hearst it is necessary to vote for Mr. McClellan. Believe nothing of that kind. I tell you that if Mr. Hearst only runs fast enough and strong enough, Mr. Hearst is going to elect me. [Applause.]

Says He Is Not Odell's Man.

In asserting his intention to be absolutely free of any boss, Mr. Ivins said:

"I hope that my fellow-citizens everywhere will not let themselves be led into the notion that I am going to be any man's man, and I am not going to hesitate to name the man, because it can do him no harm, and it can do me no harm. I am not going to be Gov. Odell's man. I am not going to be Gov. Higgins's man, and I am going to be no man's man."

Mr. Ivins said that the greatest of the issues now before the people of New York was what should be done with the franchise wealth that belongs to the commonalty.

"It is impossible to tell how great that particular form of wealth is that has been created by the community as a whole, and which has passed out of the property of the community into the proprietorship of individuals," said Mr. Ivins. "But I will give you an illustration. We to-day need the light of gas practically as we need the light of day. It is an absolute necessity to our daily lives. The plants which supply us with that gas have cost, as I understand it, according to the report of the late committee, about $35,000,000; but the values of the franchises, the values of the property, and the value of the unearned increment in that situation is about $350,000,000, according to to-day's quotations, and these $350,000,000 ought to have belonged to the City of New York, and ought not to have belonged to the Gas Trust. [Applause.]

Municipal Ownership Views.

"Now, I propose first of all, if elected Mayor, to do all that lies in my power to remedy that wrong, so far as it is the subject of remedy. Leaving aside the ques-paid for these franchises, I should insist that the city at once enter into the possession of those plants, and it can be done very readily and very easily, and it can be done in time and not in eternity. [Applause.]

The conservatism of the present administration with respect to public utility corporations guilty of wrongdoing, Mr. Ivins said, was one of the incomprehensible things to him.

"It can only be accounted for in one way," he said, "and that is that there is some kind of a Siamese ligament between the wrongdoer and the agent of the law. What I propose is to find the means of cutting that ligament—of ending that relation.

"Now, so far as franchises being granted in the future is concerned, it is needless for me to say that I should oppose all perpetual franchises, because perpetual franchises are no longer possible under the law.

"The result of my programme, therefore, would be the ultimate municipalization of all of the great public utility franchises, and I should have the public, as the best and the most trustworthy corporation, manage the business of that corporation itself.

"Now, as nearly as I can figure, and, of course, my figure is very largely a guess, the thirteen or fourteen franchises which are going to be subject to lease during the next four years, are of a value of at least $500,000,000, and the question that presents itself therefore is whether or not you and your fellow-citizens are willing to permit the disposal of that $500,000,000, which means in effect a blanket mortgage on this great city, to be disposed of by Tammany Hall. And I say Tammany Hall, and I don't say Mayor McClellan, because Mayor McClellan in that situation is a purely negligible quantity.

Four-Year Term a Mistake, He Says.

"But what I consider to have been a grave mistake on the part of the Republican Party, and without what I concede to be any justifiable reason at the time, the term of the Mayor's office was increased from two years to four, and simultaneously a very remarkable change took place, namely, that the power of the control of franchises was taken out of the Board of Aldermen and placed in the Board of Estimate and Apportionment. When that was done, New York City was deprived of the opportunity for the expression of opposition to anything that might be done with regard to the franchises, because if there were only one lonesome Republican Aldermen left that board, he nevertheless would have had the power and the opportunity of calling the attention of the public to what was going on. To-day there is no such opportunity for a voice.

"But you have got a Mayor and a Controller and a President of the Board of Aldermen and several Borough Presidents, and, as our charter now states, a majority is sufficient in the Board of Estimate and Apportionment. And if this very remarkable band of men who have been nominated by Tammany Hall for these very municipal offices, being gathered in that board, see fit to approve of the request, suggestion, dictation, motion, or whatever it may be of Mr. Murphy, Mr. McClellan can be dispensed with and allowed to remain where he is as a stunning figurehead for future political purposes; for the more he kicks the better a candidate he will be, and they won't object, because they have got away with the spoils."

Mr. Ivins said it was the duty of Mayor McClellan to say to the citizens of New York, as he had said to them, that if he was elected Mayor he would stay "on the job until the job was finished."

After characterizing the present system of accounting in municipal business as the worst in the world, Mr. Ivins closed with this pledge:

"I shall therefore struggle to have such a system of financial accounting that there will be a perfect responsibility, that there will be a way of putting our finger on the weak spots in the municipal business, as we do in private business. I will endeavor to have a balance sheet that he who runs may read and that will be no more like the balance sheet of the city to-day than it would be like a balance sheet of the Equitable Life." [Laughter and applause.]

HEARST REPLIES TO IVINS.

Says He Won't Meet Him Because There Has Been Enough Talk.

William Randolph Hearst, the Municipal Ownership candidate for Mayor, sent this letter to William M. Ivins yesterday in reply to the Republican candidate's challenge for a joint debate:

My Dear Sir: I appreciate fully your high standing as a corporation lawyer and your ability as a speaker.

I have no doubt that in a talking contest such as you propose a great deal of excellent oratory would be displayed. But I do not think that TALK is what the people want at this time.

We have had TALK for years, and nothing but talk.

We have had talk by the Republican Party, with unlimited promises as to what they would do to relieve the gas situation. We have had talk at the investigating committees, and talk from the candidates. And yet, when the time came for the Republican Legislature to act—they declined to reduce the price of gas; the whispers of the Gas Trust lobby proved more effective than the loudest talk of Republican orators.

We have had talk by alleged Democrats; we have had promises by Mayor McClellan as to what he would do for schools, and what he would do for the streets, and what he would do for the police, and what he would do for all the people.

Yet, to-day, 80,000 children lack seats in public schools and the money that could have built the much-needed schools was made a present to the Gas Trust.

And New York streets never have been as dirty as under this McClellan administration, and there never has been seen before such a death-dealing plague of spinal-meningitis—due to those dirty streets. And there never has been a time when business has suffered so much from reckless tearing up of streets by privileged corporations and the Murphy firm of privileged contractors.

As for the police, they have been swindled out of any real benefit from the three-platoon system, which I urged upon the city for years, and which public opinion demanded. They have been compelled to work overtime, harassing drivers, and devoting their energies to interference with the rights of citizens, instead of protecting life and property.

And as for the people as a whole—they are sick of talk and promises.

They are victimized by the Gas Trust, and their talking Mayor signs the Remsen bill.

They are asphyxiated in the Subway, which controls the city government through the Murphy contract firm. They are plagued with impure water in Brooklyn, and threatened with a water famine throughout the great city. They see commerce driven from their port, honest business undertakings blackmailed, their rights laughed at, their protests disregarded.

If you will pardon me for being frank, I think a contest between the candidate of the Republican machine and the candidate of the Democratic machine, as to which could promise the best and perform the least, would be highly edifying and diverting.

But if there is anybody who believes that a corporation lawyer, nominated by a corporation boss in accordance with a corporation compact between the two machines, is going to represent anything but bosses and corporations if elected, such a believer would not be open to any reason or argument that I could submit.

Therefore I must decline your kind invitation. Very sincerely. W. R. HEARST.

McCLELLAN IGNORES IVINS.

Will Not Answer the Joint Debate Challenge—His Campaign Plans.

Mayor McClellan will pay no attention to the challenge of William M. Ivins, the Republican candidate, for a joint debate. Further than this bare announcement, the Mayor would make no comment on Mr. Ivins's letter.

The Mayor will appear on the stump every night, beginning Thursday night at Tammany Hall. He spent two hours at his campaign headquarters, in the Bartholdi Hotel, yesterday, meeting visitors and discussing campaign matters with Manager O'Brien. The Mayor announced that from now until the close of the campaign he would be there every afternoon at 3 o'clock.

Nicholas J. Hayes, the Democratic candidate for Sheriff, also opened his headquarters in the Bartholdi yesterday. His rooms are adjoining the Mayor's. Some time this week Patrick F. McGowan, the candidate for President of the Board of Aldermen, will open headquarters on the same floor, forming a sort of "Candidates' Row."

RAMAPO LIVES, SAYS COLER.

Leaguers Demand Prosecution of the Senator Whom Lawson Accused.

Bird S. Coler was the principal speaker last night at the ratification meeting of the Brooklyn Municipal League, held in Johnson Hall, Sevins Street. Mr. Coler declared that Ramapo was not dead. He also denounced James W. Ridgway, Senator McCarren's candidate for Borough President.

The meeting adopted a set of resolutions presented by ex-Congressman Robert Baker, demanding that the District Attorney prosecute the State Senator accused by Thomas W. Lawson of being employed as a lobbyist at Albany and Brooklyn by the Gas and other trusts.

Dooling Resigns as Senator.

ALBANY, Oct. 16.—Secretary of State O'Brien to-day received the resignation of Peter J. Dooling of New York as State Senator from the Sixteenth District. He has been nominated for County Clerk on the Tammany ticket.

COME TALK WITH ME, SAYS IVINS TO JEROME

I Would Also Like to Speak at Your Meetings.

HAS A PLATFORM OF HIS OWN

Where It Conflicts with the Party Platform Mine Is Good, the Republican Candidate Declares.

William M. Ivins, the Republican candidate for Mayor, announced yesterday that he would be glad to speak at some of Mr. Jerome's meetings, if asked. Also, if Mr. Jerome is willing to speak from the same platform with him he said he would be pleased to extend to the District Attorney an invitation to attend some of his meetings.

The independence that has marked Mr. Ivins's utterances and arrangements for his campaign so far has startled the Republican leaders. They hardly know what to make of him. It is plain to them that he intends to be the whole thing, so far as the Republican campaign is concerned. His announcement that he would like to have Mr. Jerome speak from the same platform with him amazed the district leaders who fought Jerome's indorsement so bitterly in the Republican Convention and carried their point by an overwhelming majority.

There was a report last evening that Charles A. Flammer, the Republican nominee for District Attorney, had made up his mind to decline the nomination. Mr. Flammer denied the report. Nevertheless, he and his friends are disconcerted by the position taken by Mr. Ivins toward the candidacy of Mr. Jerome.

His declaration that he would be pleased to speak from the same platform with Mr. Jerome was not the only interesting announcement made by Mr. Ivins yesterday. When his attention was called to the fact that in his open letter to McClellan and Hearst he went much further than the Republican platform on the subject of municipal ownership he replied:

"I am running on the Republican platform—and my own. Where the two conflict my own is good."

Mr. Ivins opened headquarters in the Hotel Breslin yesterday. Senator Elsberg is in charge and Monte Cutler is looking after the press arrangements. Many leaders droped in to pay their respects to the candidate and to ask him to speak at meetings in their districts. Last night Mr. Ivins and Senator Elsberg were engaged in arranging a schedule for his speaking tour. Mr. Ivins expects to speak in every Assembly district in New York. Moreover, he announced that he would hold a number of afternoon meetings to address the workers in the party. His afternoon meetings with the leaders, Mr. Ivins said, would be held so that he might put heart into them and that they might put heart into him.

"They will be quasi-disciplinary also," he said.

Mr. Ivins was asked what he thought of the refusal of McClellan and Hearst to meet him in a joint debate.

"I regret they have taken that attitude," he said. "I am always willing to stand up and be counted, and I had hoped Mr. McClellan and Mr. Hearst would share that feeling. I expect that they will meet the propositions which I laid down in their own time and in their own way. When they do, I will be heard in rebuttal.

"The propositions which I set forth in my letter to my opponents are the issues of the campaign—they and the record of Mr. McClellan's administration."

Mr. Ivins was informed that there had been much comment upon the fact that in his letter to his opponents he went further on the subject of municipal ownership than the Republican platform. It was then that he made his remark about his own platform superseding the party platform when they conflicted.

"But there is no real conflict between my position and the party platform," he explained. "The Republican platform declares for municipal ownership, and I outline the method by which municipal ownership is to be accomplished. That is what differentiates my campaign from the campaigns of McClellan and Hearst. They are talking in the air about municipal ownership. I point out a way in which it can be made a reality in time rather than in eternity."

"Do you mean that you would have the city acquire unexpired franchises as well as those that are about to expire?"

"Yes, I do. I would condemn them all. That can be done. You will recall that when the city condemned Little Italy Park, it acquired the gas plant on the property. It is merely a question of values. A board could fix the value of the property condemned."

"Would not the debt limit stand in the way of the acquisition by the city of all the existing gas plants and franchises?"

"I think not. If it did we would have to adjust the finances of the city so that the thing would be possible. That, of course, would require action by the Legislature. That is where I have the advantage over McClellan and Hearst. They could not command the instrumentalities to carry out their programme. I think I could. At least, a Republican Legislature would be much more likely to listen to me and do as I wanted than it would be to put into effect any programme advanced by either of my opponents."

When it was suggested to Mr. Ivins that his proposed afternoon meetings for party workers would be an innovation, he said:

"Yes, that will be an innovation, but there will be a good many innovations in this campaign."

"Will you ask Mr. Jerome to speak from the same platform with you?"

"I don't see how I can; but if he asks me to speak from the same platform with him, I shall be glad to accept, and if he expresses a desire to be asked to speak at any of my meetings I will be pleased to extend him an invitation to do so. Mr. Jerome is not precisely like any other man on earth. He probably will want to run his campaign in his own way, and he will be much better satisfied if he does run it that way, and, while I would be pleased to either speak with him or have him speak with me, I cannot say how he will feel about it."

Mr. Ivins was asked if he had heard anything since his nomination that had raised his hopes.

"Yes," he said with animation, "I heard to-day from a man of high standing and influence in Tammany Hall that if Hearst polled 100,000 votes I certainly would be elected."

A CHANCE TO HELP JEROME.

Citizens' Union Issues an Appeal for Campaign Contributions.

The Executive Committee of the Citizens' Union held a meeting yesterday afternoon in the office of R. Fulton Cutting and issued this appeal with reapect to the candidacy of Mr. Jerome for District Attorney:

"The position of Mr. Jerome has thrown into bold relief the fundamental principle of the Citizens' Union—merit and non-partisanship. No decent man will attempt to discredit the District Attorney. No candid one will refuse to acknowledge he is the best prosecuting officer New York County ever had. He is now refused renomination by the bosses because he loves liberty more than office and will know no master but the free people who freely choose him. Placed upon the Fusion ticket in 1901 by the insistence of the Citizens' Union, he has more than justified its judgment in nominating him, and his retention in office must be its primary aim in the County of New York.

"The Union now calls upon every citizen of the county—partisan or independent—to rebuke the party bosses by re-electing a man whose fearless arraignment of their methods has so evidently struck home. He stands before you as the champion of direct nominations, the efficient and incorruptible official, and as the irreconcilable enemy of bossism. In conducting the campaign on its own behalf the Citizens' Union Executive Committee will associate with it a number of well-known citizens who are qualified to render effective service. Robert Grier Monroe, H. De Forest Baldwin, Joseph P. Cotton, William S. Griswell, George B. Hatch, Carl L. Schurz, Elliot H. Goodwin, Jay E. Lawshe, Mark T. Hyman, and Charles J. Fay have already consented to serve.

"For the conduct of campaign meetings, for advertisements, watching the polls, &c., the Union will require a campaign fund, and it appeals to every citizen who in his own business, social, or moral life believes in the reward of merit to contribute to a fund for Mr. Jerome's campaign. The Citizens' Union, by virtue of its permanent local organizations, is well able to render useful service. Fifty thousand dollars is required to make an effective campaign. Contributions may be sent to Isaac N. Seligman, Treasurer, 281 Fourth Avenue."

The Speakers' Committee of the Citizens' Union held a meeting last night at which every Aldermanic District in the city but four was represented. The Mayoralty waa not even referred to. The only matter discussed was how to make the most effective and energetic campaign for Jerome.

The former neighbors of Mr. Jerome on the upper west side have formed an organization named "The Friends of Jerome," and opened headquarters at Amsterdam Avenue and 148th Street. Another Jerome organization opened headquarters last night at 54 East 110th Street under the name of Camp Jerome, while a third waa started at 1,491 Madison Avenue.

A check for $5 accompanied the following letter which was received at Jerome Headquarters yesterday from Boston:

"You are fighting the bosses not alone in New York, but you are making a National fight for effective government against bossism. You are fighting for me and for every good citizen in the land."

Mr. Jerome received yesterday a letter from Secretary Roswell D. Tompkins of the Associated Building Trades, expressing the gratitude and appreciation of that organization for his appearance before their Board of Walking Delegates at Groll's Hall Saturday night.

200 TAMMANY TALKERS.

The "Dough" Question Settled and the Campaign Starts.

Tammany started its active campaign yesterday, and in the evening more than 200 street corner and cart-tail orators were at work in the thirty-five Assembly districts of Manhattan and the Bronx. At the Fourteenth Street Wigwam there were busy times.

There was a meeting of the Campaign Committee late in the afternoon to canvass the estimated expenses of the campaign. James W. Gerard, Jr., is the Chairman of the "dough committee," which always meets behind closed doors and then announces that only "routine business" was transacted.

Leader Murphy was in a cheerful mood yesterday. One of the questions put to him by the reporters was as to the order in which the three Mayoralty candidates would finish.

"Well, I know who will be first," he said, "and I am not doing any speculating as to the other two."

Mr. Murphy said that the organization did not contemplate any action against Mr. Hearst for accepting an anti-Tammany Mayoralty nomination while holding a seat in Congress by grace of Tammany. He refused to discuss Mr. Ivins's challenge to Mayor McClellan for a joint debate.

To all the district leaders word was sent yesterday to make just as energetic a campaign as though the odds were not overwhelmingly in favor of Mayor McClellan's re-election. They were told the organization looked to each leader to increase the McClellan vote over two years ago.

HEARD IN THE CAMPAIGN.

Opposing Candidates Meet — Refreshments for the "D. A."

Thomas C. O'Sullivan, the Tammany candidate for Judge Newburger's place in General Sessions, was about to address Justice Davy in the Criminal Branch of the Supreme Court yesterday morning when he heard a "Hello, Tom!" that made him turn around. Before him stood Otto Rosalsky, his Republican opponent, and John Palmieri, who is on the Hearst ticket for the place. For a couple of minutes the court business was suspended while the candidates wished one another good luck.

***

When Mr. Jerome received the minutes yesterday of the meeting of the Associated Building Trades which he addressed Saturday night, he found the last entry to read as follows:

"The Chair instructed Joe Groll [owner of the hall where the meeting was held] to refresh the D. A. on behalf of the B. B. T."

Teale Notified and Accepts.

Ex-Deputy Charities Commissioner Charles E. Teale, the Republican nominee for Controller, was notified yesterday afternoon of his nomination at the Brooklyn Club. William Halpin of the committee named to fill vacancies on the ticket made the notification speech, and Mr. Teale responded briefly, accepting the nomination.

Metz Opens His Campaign.

Herman A. Metz of Brooklyn, Democratic candidate for Controller, began his Manhattan campaign yesterday by addressing the noonday meeting of the Commercial Travelers' League at 597 Broadway. The other speakers of the meeting were ex-Commissioner Thomas C. T. Crain, M. Warley Platzek, and N. Taylor Phillips, Deputy Controller. Mr. Metz praised McClellan and McGowan.

FIRE CHIEF'S RIG STOLEN.

The police of the entire city are looking for the thief who stole a horse and buggy from Battalion Fire Chief Leonard.

Shortly before noon yesterday Chief Leonard drove up to the house of Engine Company 31 on Elm Street, and tied his horse to a lamp post. He was in the engine house a few minutes, and when he went out the horse and buggy were gone. Hundreds of persona were passing the place when the theft occurred.

The case was immediately reported to the police, but up to a late hour last night no trace of the horse or buggy had been found. The buggy is black, with the words "Repair Shops" and the letters "N. Y. F. D." painted on both sides in small letters. The horse is black.

JEROME FLAYS BOSSES IN IMPROMPTU SPEECH

He Is Against Political Slavery, He Tells Diners.

SOMEBODY HAD TO START

If He Falls It Will Be Blithely, He Declares—The Battle Is Not His.

District Attorney Jerome was a guest last night on very short notice at the dinner given by the New York Shoe Jobbers and Manufacturers' Protective Association at the Café Martin. His arrival in company with two of his assistants was the signal for such an outburst of cheering that numbers of the diners in the public part of the restaurant left their tables and rushed to the hall to find out the cause of the uproar.

For the rest of the dinner the walters had their hands full keeping out outsiders who insisted on getting in "to hear just one word of what Jerome had to say." President Thayer of the association acted as toastmaster and introduced Mr. Jerome as "the man who had taken the bull by the horns and proceeded to fight the bosses single-handed." Mr. Jerome said in part:

"When a man has gone into such a battle as we are now about to enter, and with an equipment so apparently insufficient as mine, his mind and his heart are not much in a mood for after-dinner speeches and jocosity. And I do not like to butt into a social dinner with a political speech. But you have brought it upon yourself by the way your Chairman introduced me.

"In a community where interests, activities, and responsibilities, social and industrial, are so diversified, it is not surprising that we become derelict in our civic duties. But such neglect cannot be continued indefinitely if we are to have a government of the people—a democratic government—and if this community is to be a decent place to live in.

"You are undoubtedly in the habit of dismissing many things you hear of as mere newspaper stories. But a man, who like me has lived in a place where he sees that those things are true, is naturally moved to speak of them bitterly. It has been said of me that I am saying mean things. I have been bitter in my speech. I have said things which some men have thought better unsaid. But nobody has ever heard me say anything which was not practically true.

"I am making this fight for the people, it seems to me, and to get where the voice of the people will have some significance. Now it is without weight. What choice have you in this election! Are you markers in the game? Are you even counters? You go to the polls and you must do just what you are told to do, while some low, foul-minded boss enriches himself at your expense. We call such government free! [Prolonged applause.]

"I am tired of all that. I have tackled it single-handed, but I cannot break it down single-handed. You have to fight for me, not because you approve of me personally, not because you regard me as an infallible District Attorney—no one can be more cognizant than I of how much better the work might have been done—but because this is your fight, and not mine.

"I will not stand for political slavery. I have not stood for it in the past, and I cannot stand for it now. If I go down in fighting against it, I go down blithely, for remember—even if you don't give me your support—I have done my part to the utmost limit of my power.

"And it is up to you to say to your consciences whether you also have done your part. Nor did I seek the leadership in the fight. I would gladly have followed somebody else, whether Republican or Democrat or what not, but somebody had to make the start. If the duty has fallen upon a weak man, do not let him go forward alone, but hold up his hands and strengthen him. And if I go down in spite of your help, I don't go down at the command of any Murphy or Odell, but because the people say I must.

"Once more I say I am fighting the battle of the people, and the people are honest. In spite of all corruption, I believe it impossible that a community can become so debauched that the overwhelming majority of its inhabitants are not honest. But what chance have they? All the machinery of the election is arranged to defeat their will.

"The boss made the ballot and the law, and he made for the defeat of the independent voters and to make independence impossible. He has forged the fetters on you and me, and on the honest men everywhere. The majority is going about its business once a year, but the politicians are going about their business every one of the 365 days, and for their own pockets all the time.

"You awake at times, and then you think it avails you nothing. It might avail if you were sufficiently stirred and if the issue were raised clearly. I give you the issue this time. I give it clean and clear. The bosses have sought it. But I have shaped it so that they could not accept me without accepting their own destruction with me. They were shrewd enough to see that to take me would be to confess defeat and to put it into the power of every self-respecting public servant to take his fate out of their hands and appeal to the people directly.

"Search where you will and how you will, what interest could there be to William Travers Jerome in doing this? When I had done it, the bosses cried: 'We must take this man, who will not come to us with his hat in his hand, and put him where he belongs.' Will they succeed in doing so? I have given you a chance to answer that question on Nov. 7.

"If I go down, I do so with only one regret—that there was no worthier man to press this issue. Maybe I am only a milestone on the road. Maybe I am a marker in the progress of the people toward freedom. At all events, I have done all I can do. I shall go on to the end doing my share. It had to come to this. The issue is now raised.

"I am now fighting alone—sometimes it seems all alone—but whatever the result I shall feel satisfied, knowing that I have done the utmost that lies in me. If you have done so—that is for you to reckon with your own consciences."

Three ringing cheers greeted the speaker when he concluded.

SOCIALIST LABOR PARTY BITTER TOWARD HEARST

One Candidate Says He Represents the Robber Class.

CALLED LABOR'S ENEMY, TOO

Municipal Ownership and Its Champion Are Both Attacked at a Ratification Meeting.

The Socialist-Labor Party, at a meeting held in Palm Garden, in Fifty-eighth Street, last night, to ratifying its city and county ticket, fired some broadsides at municipal ownership and William R. Hearst.

Every reference to Mr. Hearst and municipal ownership was greeted with marked signs of disapproval, and a resolution denouncing capital, Republicans Democrats, and Hearst, was carried with a whoop. John T. Vaughan, who presided, said that the party made no pretensions of representing any one except the laboring men. "Hearst and his orators," said Mr. Vaughan, "will tell you that he and his Municipal Ownership Party represent all the people, but they are only a lot of politicians who are seeking a chance to represent themselves."

John J. Kinneally, the candidate for Mayor, said the great cry of Hearst was that municipal ownership would lower taxes and rents. He said that experience had taught the people that a low tax rate had no effect on rents.

"There is no such thing," said the candidate, "as wages being increased on account of municipal ownership. It may have the result of lowering the tax rate, but the workingman has nothing to do with that. Municipal ownership is the wisp of hay that the Hearst people are holding before our noses to hurry us along to their goal and ride on our backs to their haven of personal benefit.

"We may well believe everything that McClellan says about Hearst and everything that Hearst says about McClellan, and all that both of them say of Ivins.

"Hearst represents the robber class probably in a stronger sense than even the other candidates. He owns an immense fortune that neither he nor his father worked for, and I'll tell you something else that it would be well to remember: Hearst and his newspapers were the strongest opponents that labor had in the strike on the Subway and the elevated roads not long ago.

James Connolly, who was introduced as a close student of the Municipal Ownership question, said:

"Hearst has been telling us through his newspapers that great good has been done in Europe for the workingmen by the adoption of municipal ownership. Then why, I ask him, is it that 100,000 working men are coming here from Europe every year? On the same page of his paper I read an article crying out against the influence of pauper labor into this country.

"They have talked a lot of Glasgow. I believe that Hearst even brought over here one of the city officials to tell Chicago about municipal ownership. I have been in Glasgow, and if that's your conception of Paradise, head me for the other place. In that city there are 30,000 houses of only one room each. There have been more strikes on the municipally owned railroads in Glasgow through the efforts of workers to establish the rights to form trade unions than in any other city in Europe.

"Hearstism is no cure for the ills that we seek to remedy. It is worse than any of the other isms, and it pleases me to see that none of you have been led astray by its fallacious teachings. We may not be able to win in the campaign, but we want our votes recorded for our principles and as we have no traitors, there will be no Socialistic Labor votes for Hearst."

McADOO OUSTS EGGERS.

Costigan Promoted and Put at Head of Vice Squad.

Police Commissioner McAdoo announced yesterday afternoon that Acting Captain Eggers had been relieved of the command of the Headquarters Vice Squad and that Roundsman Daniel E. Costigan, a member of the squad, had been promoted to the rank of Detective Sergeant and put in Eggers's place. Eggers came under the Commissioner's serious displeasure about three weeks ago, when certain raids were made in the Mercer Street Precinct by Secretary Howell and a squad of men from Headquarters over the heads of both Acting Captain Bourke of that station and Eggers.

In a statement he gave to the press last night Commissioner McAdoo said:

"I have determined to reorganize, strengthen, and render more effective the squad hitherto under Acting Captain Eggers. This squad, properly controlled and directed, is, in my judgment, a most powerful engine for the enforcement of the law and for strengthening the hands of the Commissioner in dealing with the forces at large.

"The men on it," continued the Police Commissioner, "are subjected to great temptations and need a vigilant supervision which will be quick to punish and equally willing to reward and encourage. Under reasonable suspicion, a man's usefulness is ended.

"Weak men must be weeded out at once. It is a powerful engine, and needs constant inspection. By unremitting care and elimination we ought to get the best possible parts. There is now a good strong, healthy nucleus, and I am sure it can be improved. To that end I am issuing some carefully considered rules to govern its conduct. Every honest Inspector and Captain will welcome its co-operation, and I look for harmonious action.

"For meritorious work under my personal observation and because I am well satisfied with his capacity, intelligence, integrity, and fidelity, I have this day promoted Roundsman Daniel E. Costigan to be a Detective Sergeant, and placed him in control of the vice squad."

It is understood that the Commissioner was dissatisfied with the inactivity of the ex-chief of the vice squad while Mr. McAdoo was away on his vacation. Acting Captain Eggers was put in command of the squad a year ago, and had between thirty and thirty-five men, selected by himself, at his disposal to send to all parts of the city each day to obtain evidence against poolrooms, policy games, and other kinds of gambling. Eggers will take charge of the Brooklyn Detective Bureau, beginning this morning.

Detective Sergeant Costigan will take charge of the vice squad and select his men this morning.

The new commander joined the force in 1889, and was made a Roundsman by Commissioner Partridge early in 1892. He had always been noted for his fairness, but probably no other Roundsman has made as many complaints and obtained as many convictions on charges against patrolmen as Costigan.

A KEY TO JUDICIOUS INVESTMENT
PALISADE
THE MODEL SUBURB
TEN MINUTES AND TEN CENTS FROM NEW YORK CITY.
Estimating three lots per house, we have room at Palisade for 5,000 homes, no two alike, and each as artistic as we can make it. How long do you think it will take New York with its 4,000,000 people to absorb these 5,000 sites, only one mile away on a beautiful undulating plateau 250 feet in the air, and safeguarded by restrictions such as cannot be found anywhere covering so large an area? Then, and before, to what heights must Palisade prices soar? The profit of the present buyer, guaranteed against assessments, will be great. The profit of the man who buys ten lots will be ten times greater than the profit of the man who buys one lot.
YOU CANNOT MAKE TOO BIG AN INVESTMENT AT PALISADE, AND YOU CANNOT MAKE IT A DAY TOO SOON TO SECURE THE CHOICEST PARCELS IN "SECTION NO. 1."
Prices range from $2,000 up for lots.
Outside capital, backed by the true judgment of perspective, is constantly being invested in New York City, while many of us here utterly fail to see that at our very feet is a source of wealth which, because of the marvelous growth of this greatest city in America, is only limited by our ability to purchase.

WALL STREET REALTY DEAL.

Trust Company of America Gets Metropolitan Trust's Old Building.

The property 37 and 39 Wall Street, between Broad and William Streets, formerly owned by the Metropolitan Trust Company, was transferred yesterday to the Trust Company of America.

The Metropolitan Trust Company sold the building last Spring for about $750,000, the nominal buyer being the Century Realty Company, several of the Directors of which are largely interested in the Trust Company of America. It is understood that a new building may be erected on the site, although nothing definite as to such a project has been determined.

More lace robes at 5.00

PRACTICALLY all of the lace robes offered Monday at these exceptionally low prices were sold, and to-day the sale starts anew with a fresh collection of designs fully up to the Simpson Crawford Co. lace robe standard.

Main Floor.

The robes at $5.00 are the kind for which you would expect to pay 8.00 to 12.00. The rest of the news we repeat from Monday's announcement. $5.00

It's one of those typical Simpson Crawford Co. lace robes sales—an event that gives you a bona fide opportunity to secure the newest and best styles of imported and domestic robes at about half price.

We never hold a great sale of Lace Robes without offering extraordinary values, extraordinary assortments, and that is why New York women attend these great special offerings.

Some are sample robes from our Paris office—others are lace importers' show room sample pieces.

$5.00 for $8 to $12 robes.
$10.00 for $15 to $18 robes.
$15.00 for $25 to $30 robes.
$35.00 for $50 to $60 robes.

WHITE BRUSSELS NET ROBES IN MANY STYLES.
SPANGLE ROBES IN BLACK, WHITE AND OPALESCENT.

Queen Quality

Custom grade, $3.50. Regular grade, $3.00.

ALTHOUGH we have had comparatively little time in which to do so, our sales for this celebrated shoe for women have established daily new records in shoe selling for the house of Simpson Crawford Co. You are fitted to a pair—your favorite style, to-day—we have all the newest and smartest as well as the good old styles—to-morrow you are enthusiastic in your praise.

Your friends are interested—another pair sold, probably several—the price enables one to have footwear for every occasion.

The reasons:—That mute but convincing appeal, comfort, first. Then their grace and lightness, or the smart and durable effect, if you prefer. Finally, the price—$3.50 and $3.00 for shoes that are being worn by carefully gowned women who appreciate a suitable shoe for every demand of Dame Fashion.

QUEEN QUALITY.

The walking or shopping boot—gun metal calf—dull kid top—lace. The smart afternoon or semi-dress patent leather button—Cuban heel. The outing or storm shoe—heavy sole waterproof—kid or calf lace. The house or dress boot—glace kid or patent kid turn sole button, and so on through seventy-five styles "hard to find kinds" at any price.

No larger shoe store offering a diversity of makes at various prices can attempt to show a shoe to fit every foot, suit every taste, in reach of almost every purse limit.

The Queen Quality shoe for women is produced scientifically, sold intelligently and in increasing numbers to women who care for price—economy and a proper shoe for their individual requirements.

MUSEUM'S TRUSTEES OUST CURATOR ELWELL

Abolish His Office and End Dispute with Story.

HE CALLS ACTION COWARDLY

In a Statement Elwell Says His Letters Were Opened and He Received "Insensate Treatment."

At their first meeting since the quarrel became acute between Acting Director and Curator of Paintings George H. Story and Curator of the Department of Ancient and Modern Statuary F. Edwin Elwell the Trustees of the Metropolitan Museum of Art yesterday abolished the department of which Mr. Elwell had charge and notified him that they had no further use for his services.

They informed him, however, that in recognition of his labors his salary is to be continued until the close of the present calendar year. The verdict was reached by the Trustees by a resolution which, according to Robert W. de Forest, the Secretary, was unanimously adopted.

The meeting was well attended, these Trustees being present: J. Pierpont Morgan, Thomas S. Kennedy, Robert W. de Forest, John Crosby Brown, George A. Hearn, W. T. Walters, D. O. Mills, ex-Ambassador Choate, Charles Stewart Smith, Daniel C. French, William M. Laffan, and Fred Dielman. Sir C. Purdon Clarke, the new Director, was not present. He sails for this country on Oct. 25.

Aside from his formal statement of the case Mr. Elwell when seen at his home in Weehawken last night pronounced the action of the Trustees as cowardly, in that they had neither had the courage to discharge him direct nor to re-instate him. He said:

"I expected the Trustees to do just this kind of a cowardly act, but I am grateful to them for returning me to my noble profession, where I properly belong."

The resolution as it was given to the reporters after the meeting of the Trustees at the Museum of Art is as follows:

The Trustees of the Metropolitan Museum of Art have learned with great regret of the personal controversy between Mr. George H. Story, Acting Director and Curator of Paintings, and Mr. F. Edwin Elwell, Curator of Sculpture.

They do not deem it necessary for them to consider this controversy further than to reach the conclusion that both these officers cannot continue to work together for the interests of the museum.

Inasmuch as the plans in contemplation for reorganizing the staff of the Museum involve the early abolition of any separate curatorship of sculpture, they deem it for the interest of all concerned that this plan, so far as it respects the curatorship of sculpture, should become immediately effective, and in such a manner as to involve no judgment on their part as to the issues between these two gentlemen.

Now, therefore, resolved, That the curatorship of the Department of Ancient and Modern Statuary, and such department as a separate department, be abolished from and after this date, and that, in consequence of its abolition, Mr. F. Edwin Elwell shall cease, from this date, to hold office in the museum. It is further resolved, in recognition of the services rendered by Mr. Elwell to the museum, that his salary be continued at the same rate until the close of the present calendar year.

Mr. Elwell Was Led Out.

The quarrel between Acting Director Story and Curator Elwell took place in the museum one day in August last. It is said to have been over the placing of a statue of Caius Vibius Frebonianus Gallus, presented to the museum by Mr. Morgan, although Mr. Elwell says there were other causes. Since that quarrel, which resulted in Mr. Elwell being led out of the museum by a policeman, the story has circulated widely here and abroad.

The clash between the two men was the culmination of a series of disagreements extending over five months. When the final break came the two men had not been on speaking terms for some time.

Mr. Elwell's statement of his side of the case was sent by him to Mr. Morgan on Sept. 28. In it Mr. Elwell tells of the death of Director Di Cesnola in 1904 and the assumption of Gen. Di Cesnola's duties by Mr. Story. He quotes a section of the by-laws, which says:

In case of the absence of the Director, the duties of the Director shall be performed by the senior Curator in office, unless otherwise ordered by the Executive Committee.

"It is not at all clear," says Mr. Elwell, "that such a prolonged absence as that caused by death is contemplated by this language. But, whether it were a usurpation or not, the office of Director, with at least all the privileges and powers associated with it, was assumed in this instance by the senior Curator in office."

As to such an assumption as a general proposition Mr. Elwell remarks:

Generosity Is Needed.

"Considerable qualities of discretion, a generosity of disposition, and largeness of character are required not to use a position of power and authority to settle old quarrels and wreak vengeance for old jealousies. And then, too, sudden elevations produce dizziness to some heads."

Mr. Elwell then reproduces a letter which Mr. Story sent to him on Aug. 5 last, after the two had disagreed. This letter reads:

"Your conduct at the Museum this morning was of so flagrant a character that it leaves no alternative for me but to close the doors of the Museum to you until after the arrival of Sir Purdon Clarke, and you are hereby suspended as Curator of the Department of Ancient and Modern Statuary without pay until after the meeting of the Board of Trustees on Oct. 16, 1905. Very truly yours,

"GEORGE H. STORY,
"Acting Director.

Mr. Elwell says that he questioned Mr. Story's right to suspend him or deprive him of his salary or to shut him out of the Museum, and on Aug. 10 he wrote to Mr. Morgan telling of Mr. Story's letter.

Museum Not Concerned.

"I immediately called upon Mr. Laffan," wrote Mr. Elwell, "with the purpose, if the statement in the letter were true, of pointing out to him that Mr. Story's peremptory action was not warranted in law and that the rehabilitation, for a few weeks, of the injured vanity or self-respect—according to the point of view—of either Mr. Story or myself did not justify dragging the Art Museum into the controversy. Mr. Laffan, however, declined to see me; and on my sending him the letter with a request that he would tell me whether the statement affecting him was true or not, declined to do either or to discuss the matter at all."

Mr. Elwell continues that, with his counsel, he called to see Mr. Story.

"Mr. Story declined to see either my counsel or me, and referred us to the Trustees," he writes. "On my repairing to my office, I found that he had changed the lock so that I could not enter. I solicited an opportunity to enter for the purpose of getting some papers—which was granted, on the implied condition, of course, that my entry should be limited to that express purpose, which condition I felt bound to respect. I therefore had no alternative except to create a disturbance by insisting on what I understood to be my legal rights or to withdraw. I felt that I owed it to the Museum to depart without further trouble.

"If my merely personal privileges and rights were alone concerned, I could safely postpone their pursuit for the present and repose in the sense of justice of the Trustees. My position, however, involves responsibility as well as rights. The fifth article of the by-laws expressly makes me, as Curator, 'responsible for the preservation and safekeeping of the objects and property belonging to my department.'

"As Section 4, Article II, of the Constitution devolves upon the President, the duty to 'exercise a general supervision of the affairs of the corporation, to enforce the provisions of this Constitution and all by-laws, rules, and regulations,' &c., I have felt it to be my duty to lay this matter before you, in its purely legal aspect without the slightest intention of procuring from you a prejudgment of the relative rights and wrongs of Mr. Story and myself in this dispute.

"I trust that this communication will seem to you no unwarrantable intrusion upon your attention. It seemed to me a necessary thing to be done."

To this letter Mr. Elwell says he received the following reply from Mr. Morgan:

"No. 23 Wall Street, Aug. 14, 1905.

"Dear Sir: I have received your letter and note its contents. I have been made aware of the facts from Mr. Story. It is not my intention, nor is it in my power, to dispose of the question at this time. It will be laid before the board at its next meeting, and the relative merits of each party will be determined. Yours very truly, J. PIERPONT MORGAN."

Mr. Elwell says that, following up the notion that he was discharged, in effect, Mr. Story sent this letter to the Postmaster:

METROPOLITAN MUSEUM OF ART.
Office of the Director.
New-York, Aug. 12, 1905.

Postmaster, Station K:

Dear Sir: I take it for granted that letters addressed to F. Edwin Elwell, Curator of Sculptures, Metropolitan Museum of Art, are the property of the Museum to be opened by the officer in charge, and if they are found to contain matter connected with the interest of the Museum they are to be retained by the institution. But if they contain matter of a personal character they are to be sealed and held subject to Elwell's order or sent to him by the Museum. If I am correct in my interpreting of the law kindly indorse this note at the bottom, as I desire to avoid getting into trouble with this man. Very truly yours,

(Signed.) GEORGE H. STORY,
Acting Director.

O. K.
(Signed.) J. M. GINN,
Supt. P. O. Station K.

Of the beginning of his dispute with Mr. Story, Mr. Elwell has this to say:

"Though I was treated with no effusive regard, I do not think that anything like trouble occurred between us until February of this year. In the latter days of that month Mr. Laffan, one of the Trustees, addressed me some inquiries in regard to certain Chinese and Japanese bronzes which Mr. Sessile Okazaki had for sale. At Mr. Laffan's request, I examined and reported to him concerning them; and subsequently at Mr. Story's office, and in Mr. Storey's presence Mr. Laffan expressed a desire to see them, and I told him that I would arrange for them to be sent to the Museum for his inspection.

"Accordingly, on March 7, Mr. Okazaki delivered to the Museum nineteen pieces of the Chinese and Japanese bronze collection. They were stored in Mr. Jackson's storeroom by Mr. Chapman, who signed the receipt for the same, and immediately, before I had an opportunity to present a report, notified Mr. Story of their arrival. Mr. Story called into his office the Japanese gentleman and sent for me. In a loud and insolent manner Mr. Story said: 'Have these bronzes immediately removed from the Museum.' I turned to the Japanese gentlemen and said to them: 'You will be obliged to remove the bronzes from the Museum. I am sorry, but some mistake has been made.' And after they had left I said to Mr. Story: 'Do you not remember that you called me to your office to meet Mr. Laffan and arrange for this matter?' He replied, 'Yes; but I forgot it.' Then I said to him, 'Mr. Story, you have insulted my friends and myself in a most unnecessary manner.' At my home that evening I wrote him a rather sharp private note.

"Thereafterward the Acting Director began to refuse to see me, and on March 24 his secretary, Mr. Parry, addressed a letter to me informing me that in future I must communicate with him by letter. Even this quarantining of himself did not fully meet his view of the situation, and his letters were signed for him or his secretary did the writing.

"On April 28 the marble statue of 'Polyxena,' by W. W. Story, was removed from the north corridor of the new east wing by persons unknown, without the knowledge of the Curator.

"On May 30 the Acting Director informed me that the bust of Franklin was to be copied in plaster. And without my consent being asked or my opinion requested, the marble bust of Franklin, of great value, was removed by Mr. Story for reproduction in plaster by Mr. Ciccogna.

"I looked upon acts like those of Mr. Story's as plain usurpation on his part of another man's duties and privileges.

His Letters Excluded, He Says.

"An important letter having reached me opened, and, presumably, read, I ventured to call Mr. Story's attention to the fact, considering that it ought to be inquired into. He replied by writing a letter to the Postmaster of Station K requesting that all letters addressed to me or to my department be excluded from the private mail bag of the museum. He could not have resented my speaking of this matter more insultingly if I had accused him of personally reading my mail and if it had been true.

"On Aug. 5, 1905," continues Mr. Elwell, "occurred my 'flagrant conduct' referred to in Mr. Story's letter of suspension. I was inspecting the statue of Gallus, and said to Mr. Story, who, with assistants, was in the act of removing the statue from its case, subsequent to placing the same: 'How is this? Is not this is my department?'

"Then I said to him: 'You are an impertinent rascal.'

Story Called a Policeman.

"Mr. Story called a policeman, and when he presented himself, said: 'Take this man out of this room.' The policeman commanded me to accompany him. I offered no forcible resistance. This was Aug. 5, and on Aug. 7 received the letter of suspension."

Mr. Elwell closes by declaring that he does not remember having spoken adversely of the statue of Gallus, but that he was at liberty to say what he thought of any emperor or any statue.

He protests against the "insensate treatment," which, he says, he was compelled to resent in unconventional language.

DOCTORS TO MAKE PEACE.

Two State Medical Societies Likely to End Their Feud.

The New York State Medical Association, which began its twenty-second annual meeting yesterday at the Academy of Medicine in West Forty-third Street, is likely to take steps to-day that will result in its amalgamation with the State Medical Society, with which it has been at odds for twenty years. In 1883 the New York State Medical Society seceded from the American Medical Association over the question of consulting with homoeopathists, and the State Association was formed at that time with those as members who adhered to the original principles of the society.

A resolution was adopted yesterday in favor of one medical examining board for the State instead of three, as now provided by law. This resolution was offered by Dr. E. Elliot Harris, who also offered another declaring that the Coroners' system in this State, and especially in this city, is antiquated and should be replaced. The Committee on Legislation was requested to investigate the questions. A bill will be introduced at the next session of the Legislature embodying the details of a more modern Coroners' system.

The following officers were elected for the ensuing year: Dr. Allan A. Jones of Buffalo, to succeed Dr. J. Riddle Goffe as President; Dr. Ernst H. Smith of White Plains, Vice President; Dr. James G. Le Boutillier of New York, Treasurer, and Dr. Charles Ira Redfield of Middletown, Secretary.

An important matter to be discussed at to-day's session is the question of inter-State registration with New Jersey.

The New York County Medical Association met last night in the Academy. The entire meeting was devoted to the consideration of the dispensary law which was passed in 1899, and its effects. Five papers bearing on the subject were read, and a general discussion followed. The consensus of opinion was that the dispensary service had improved, but that little progress had been made in keeping persons away from the dispensary who were able to pay for medical treatment.

TRAIN ALOFT DERAILED.

Then the Engine's Boiler Bursts—One Excavator Hurt.

While working on the excavations for the new Altman building in Thirty-fourth Street last night a steam train used by the O'Rourke Contracting and Engineering Company nearly turned turtle. It was held on the lofty track only by the strong steel cables attached to it.

The accident loosened a lot of the rails, and one of them fell and struck Thomas O'Rourke, of 411 Smith Street, West Hoboken, a boss blaster, on the head, fracturing his skull. He was taken to the New York Hospital.

The engineer of the train, Charles Pitoon, jumped out of danger. Hardly had he done so when the boiler of the engine exploded with a noise that was heard for blocks. The explosion hurt no one.

SUPPLY DEPARTMENT TEST

80,000 Men Moved About and Supplied as in War—No Snub to King Edward.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 16.—Lieut. Gen. Chaffee, Chief of Staff, and Brig. Gen. Crozier, Chief of Ordnance, reached Washington this morning on return from France, where, with Brig. Gen. J. Franklin Bell, they attended the manoeuvres of the French Army last month. Both are enthusiastic about their reception and entertainment abroad.

The troops engaged in the manoeuvres were the three crack frontier corps, the flower of the French Army, and a provisional corps, divided into two armies of approximately 40,000 men each, including 5,000 cavalry. Preliminary exercises had extended over several months.

"It was all very real," said Gen. Chaffee, "and very thorough and very valuable. The men had fine training in all of the conditions of actual war except that of danger. They made long marches and lived under campaign conditions. The Supply and Transportation Departments were subjected to the test of moving and maintaining large armies in the field, and the general and staff officers gained great experience in handling and manoeuvring large bodies of men. The men were clean and healthy, and there was no sickness that we observed.

"Under the French system the men are not required to carry as much on their backs as under ours. They do not have tents. Their men are billeted upon the country over which they are operating. The result is that they always sleep in barns or houses and not upon the ground. If it rains they have shelter and get up in the morning dry after a good sleep.

"Another thing, they do not get footsore. They wear heavy, clumsy, hob-nailed shoes, but they are required to keep them so filled with grease that the uppers are always soft and pliable and do not hurt the feet. As a result they can and do make long, hard marches without being disabled.

"Such manoeuvres would be worth a great deal to our army, but it is practically impossible to have them. In the first place they cost too much. We could not get the money. And in the next place it is doubtful if the people who own the land over which they would have to take place would consent to its being used for such a purpose."

Asked concerning the report that he had declined an invitation to dine with King Edward, Gen. Chaffee laughed and said that he had not received such an invitation. This report grew out of the fact that he declined an invitation to lunch with the Lord Mayor because he thought it would interfere with an engagement he had with Ambassador Reid. Subsequently he learned that Ambassador Reid was to be present at the luncheon, and he accepted the invitation.

LONDON AND RUSSIAN LOAN.

Division of Opinion as to Practicability of an Issue.

LONDON, Oct. 16.—The Times's financial article will say to-morrow:

"The fact that loan negottations are proceeding in St. Petersburg between the Russian Government and representatives of Paris, Berlin, and London financiers, has raised a question whether a portion of the loan could be placed in London. Few whose opinions are of value are ready to commit themselves, but those who give utterance to decided views express disbelief in the possibility of such an operation.

"Since the conclusion of peace, however, there has been a distinct change in the atttitude of a good many persons in respect to a Russian issue being made in London, so that now the project is not regarded as absolutely ridiculous, except by those previously alluded to, who say an issue here could not succeed."

MORE RHODES SCHOLARS.

Fifteen Vacancies Still, However, from American States and Territories.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES. [Copyright, 1905.]

LONDON, Oct. 16.—Sixty-seven new names have been added this Fall to the list of those in residence at Oxford under the bequest of Cecil Rhodes, so that the total for the academic year 1905-6 is slightly under 150. The total number for whom permanent provision has been made is 190.

Several of the communities concerned have failed in the last two years to send qualified candidates. In 1904 five States and Territories in the United States failed to qualify candidates, and this year ten failed, namely, Alabama, Arizona, Arkansas, Montana, Nevada, North Dakota, Oregon, South Dakota, Utah, and Wyoming.

Fifteen American and two colonial scholarships are now vacant through lack of duly qualified scholars. When the scholarships lapse through failure of this kind they are not filled up in the succeeding year, but only in the regular cycle of appointment, it being held that any other method would be unfair to prospective candidates for any given year.

BOSTON, Oct. 16.—Abbott Lawrence Rotch of this city has for a number of years been interested in meteorology, and has carried on at his own expense extended researches of the upper atmosphere by means of kites sent up from his observatory on the summit of Blue Hill, ten miles from this city.

Mr. Rotch has been anxious to extend his observations to the upper tropical atmosphere, but on account of the great expense in fitting out a vessel was unable to carry out his ideas until a warship was put at his disposal by Emperor William.

300 HORSES SAVED AT FIRE.

There was a little fire last night in the Fifth Avenue Coach Company's stablea at 68-70 East Eighty-ninth Street. Manager William O'Halloran, with the assistance of neighbors, got out the 300 horses that had been stabled in the building after the day's work.

When the firemen arrived they found that the fire, which was probably caused by the overturning of a lamp, had taken hold of the entire northeast wing of the building. They soon had it out. One of the coaches was badly damaged. The total damage was estimated at $1,000.

POWER AT CHATTANOOGA FOR 400 NEW FACTORIES

PLANT TO COST $3,000,000

Giant Lock, Dam, and 56,000 Horse Power Plant Soon to be in Operation.

Twelve miles from Chattanooga, on the Tennessee River, contractors will begin work next week on a three-million-dollar power plant, the largest project of the kind yet undertaken in this country. The Chattanooga and Tennessee River Power Company is building the plant. It will work a commercial revolution in Chattanooga, which in the last twelve months has increased its population 10,000. To the 400 manufactories now in the city it is calculated that the mammoth power plant will add at least 400 more.

At the head of the enterprise are C. E. James and J. C. Guild, the former a leading manufacturer of Chattanooga and the latter an engineer. John Bogart of 16 Exobange Place, New York, is consulting engineer.

New York capital is paying for the power house, dam, and lock. Mr. James, who is in New York now, would not say last night exactly who supplied the money, but every dollar of the $3,000,000 has already been subscribed.

It is the first power plant of the kind that the United States Government has ever allowed to be built on a navigable river. The Tennessee River is 1,200 feet wide where the dam is to be built, and at Chattanooga it is a little larger than the Ohio River at Cincinnati. Any boat that plies up and down the Ohio or the Mississippi can go to Chattanooga. Any scheme that called for any curtailment of navigation would not have been listened to a minute by the United States Government.

But the men at the head of the Chattanooga and Tennessee River Power Company offered to build a lock so that the dam would in no way obstruct navigation. Indeed, instead of hurting navigation the dam will help it. For it will make thirty-six miles of "slack" water, making the river almost a lake. Although the plant will be twelve miles from the city in a direct line, the distance by water is thirty-three miles, so that the "slack" water will extend three miles above Chattanooga.

Some two years ago a special bill was put through Congress through the efforts of Mr. James and Mr. Guild. The offer of the company to defray all the cost of constructing the lock and actually to improve existing conditions was such that acceptance was the Government's only course. If individuals had not come forward with their proposition Congress would soon have had to make a big appropriation for opening the Tennessee River. Now it is open to navigation only nine months in the year. When the lock and dam are completed there will always be a sufficient depth of water for navigation.

From the time the picks and shovels begin working next week there will be no stop to the work, and the entire plant will be finished in fourteen months. The contract is for the dam, the lock, and the power house, and the successful bidders are W. J. Oliver & Co. of Knoxville, Tenn.

The total capacity of the plant will be 56,000 horse power. This, the engineers say, is the outside estimate, and no effort will be made to increase it in the future. That measures the extent of the natural power of the Tennessee River.

Fourteen electrical generators, each of 4,000 horse power, will constitute the equipment of the power house. The power will be carried to Chattanooga through wires. The surrounding country is very mountainous, so that the wires will be far underground part of the way, and part of the way they will be carried on poles.

The saving to manufacturers is the chief feature which commended the big enterprise. Now every factory furnishes its own steam power. There are two or three factories of over 500 horse power capacity, though most of them require less than that. Taking 150 horse power as a fair average, the 56,000 horse-power plant of the Chattanooga and Tennessee River Power Company will alone enable nearly 400 new factories to be established.

The physical character of the country is peculiarly in favor of such an enterprise. Within twenty-one miles there is a fall of thirty-five feet in the Tennessee River. Heretofore the vast power caused by this swift flow of water has gone to waste. For three months in the year the water has been so low along the rapids near Chattanooga that navigation was practically at a standstill.

Another favorable feature, entirely independent of the efforts of Mr. James and Mr. Guild, is the proximity of the power house to the railroads. Neither the Southern nor the Louisville and Nashville is more than a mile and a half away. If it is necessary to use the railroads at all in hauling materials side tracks can be built at little expense.

The lock through which boats can pass every day in the year is to be 300 feet long and 60 feet wide. The dam will be 1,200 feet long, 57 feet thick at the base, and 35 feet high. The power house will be on the opposite side of the river from the lock, and will be 300 feet long by 60 feet wide.

At present the population of Chattanooga is about 70,000. Nearly everything that can be made of wood, iron, and cotton is manufactured there. No city in the United States of the same size, perhaps, has a greater variety of factories. Of late years they have grown wonderfully in number. Forty-four were built last year. It is now practically impossible to buy a foot of land fronting on the river on either side at Chattanooga. With all the river space occupied the factories and the mills have begun to spread inland, and now the growth of Chattanooga is in the direction of Missionary Ridge. Doubtless the construction of the new plant will cause a great many factories to be built along the river between the dam and the city.

It is figured that the income of the power company will be $600,000 a year. As the total capitalization is $3,000,000, that means 20 per cent. a year on the investment. After the dam, lock, and the power house are built and the machinery installed, the expenses will be remarkably light. The Tennessee River will do the rest.

BIG DEBTS OF PRINCESS.

GOTHA, Germany, Oct. 16.—The suit brought by Prince Philip of Saxe-Coburg and Gotha for a separation from his wife, the Princess Louise, and an adjustment of their joint property interests, began here to-day before the usual court for the trial of divorce cases. Prince Philip declined to avail himself of the royal privilege of a special tribunal.

Attorneys for the Prince announced that he had no objection to the proceedings being public. The attorneys of the Princess declined to request privacy.

The bill of complaint, besides alleging the Princess's misconduct with the Austrian Lieutenant, Keglevitch Mattasich, with whom she eloped, says that although the Princess received 120,000 crowns pin money yearly she had contracted debts which in 1895 amounted to 3,724,059 crowns, of which the Prince had paid 1,000,000. In her wardrobe were found 75 pairs of silk shoes, 120 pairs of other shoes, 60 parasols, and about 100 hats.

FLATIRON STOKERS SCALDED.

Two Men Injured by Steam in the Fuller Building.

Two stokers were severely scalded by steam in the engine room in the basement of the Flatiron Building last night. They were oiling the engine when a safety valve burst, filling the engine room with steam.

The injured men are Richard Halley of 211 East Fortieth Street and Alfred Loftus of 329 Fortieth Street, Brooklyn. They were scalded about the head, face, and arms, and were removed to the New York Hospital.

Dog Bites a Little Girl.

May Dixon, 8 years old, of 1,532 St. Marks Avenue, Brooklyn, was bitten by a dog last evening. The animal appeared in a crowd of children, snapping and snarling as it ran. Several others had narrow escapes from being bitten. Mothers appeared from all directions and beat off the animal. It was killed.

J. A. SIMMONS BANKRUPT FOR NEARLY $500,000

ASSETS WORTH ONLY $4,000

James A. Simmons, who in June, 1891, was convicted in the United States Circuit Court and served a term in the Erie County penitentiary for aiding Peter J. Claassen in the misappropriation of the funds of the Sixth National Bank of this city, filed a petition in bankruptcy yesterday, with liabilities of $495,474 and nominal assets of $4,000. Among the creditors are Russell Sage, judgments amounting to $21,085; the Lenox Hill Bank, $25,943; the Garfield National Bank, $5,074, and various other persons and institutions for larger and smaller sums.

In his petition Simmons says that he has 5,161 shares of stocks of various corporations which, however, have no actual value. Among those mentioned are 2,002 shares of the Gleason Nail Machine Company, 1,250 of the Foote Commercial Phosphate Company, 500 of the International Dredging and Construction Company, 300 of the Flemington Coal and Coke Company, and 363 of the United States Dredging and Canal Company.

The bankruptcy petition recalls a sensational event of the earlier part of 1890, when in January of that year A. B. Hepburn, then a National Bank Examiner, closed the Sixth National and the Lenox Hill Bank, the latter institution doing its clearings through the former.

Mr. Hepburn closed the Sixth National Bank as a result of the disclosures of Cashier Colson, who told of the way that Claassen, the President, was doing business. A few days before Claassen had got control of the bank by buying the controlling interest from Charles H. Leland, who had been the President of the bank since its organization in 1864. The shares were worth $350 each, but Claassen agreed to pay Leland $650 each for them. A few days later the transfer took place, and Claassen assumed control and named as Directors James A. Simmons, J. Kenneth Watson, H. T. Cutter, David M. Ripley, and James Jourdan. Jourdan and Cutter refused to serve.

The following day a run began on the bank, and then it was that Mr. Colson told the Clearing House Committee what was going on, and Mr. Hepburn made an examination that resulted in closing the bank. Mr. Hepburn said in his report that bonds held by the bank with a par value of $421,000 and a market value of $482,486 were unaccounted for. Claassen had previously withdrawn securities of the bank, which were valued at $800,000 from the vaults of the National Park Bank, and had turned them over to the brokerage firm of Pell, Wallack & Co. to sell.

When Simmons's case was called for trial in January, 1891, he failed to appear on the first day, but went into court a few days later, after his bail had been forfeited. His trial lasted several months and did not end until June. On June 28 Judge Benedict sentenced him to the Erie County Penitentiary. Simmons was pardoned by President Harrison after serving part of his sentence.

In addition to Mr. Sage some of the creditors named by Simmons are the Sixth National Bank, $10,111; Equitable Bank, $25,367; Asbury Park National Bank, $15,440; White National Bank of Fort Wayne, Ind., $9,180; Bucyrus Steam Shovel Company, $26,065; Spring Garden National Bank, $3,365; Wilson County Oil Company of Texas, $25,000; Adam Dutenhoffer, $56,000; Frank Walling, $65,783; Cornelius H. Thalman, $28,044; Thalman & Lumburger, $21,160; Aaron L. Phillips, $20,719; W. W. Flanagan, $15,100; Richard Woel and others, $20,204; Joseph W. Wilson and Samuel H. Crawford, $10,830.

SAW BURGLARS AT WORK.

Vigilance of Two Women Prevented a Wholesale Silk Robbery.

The police of the Macdougal Street Station would have captured some burglars early yesterday morning if Policeman Fitzgibbons had not balked at tackling the robbers single-handed and called for help. When Roundsman Waldron and Detective Curran arrived they did not like the looks of things and thought they, too, ought to have help. When Acting Captain Russell and four reserves responded the burglars were gone. They had taken with them several thousand dollars' worth of Japanese silk. Most of it was recovered later.

The burglary was in the warehouse of the F. C. Linde Company, at 492-506 Greenwich Street. A blind alley runs back of the warehouse, and the burglars pried off an iron shutter and sawed through three iron bars to get in. The police believe the men got into the place on Saturday night and had worked all through Sunday and to early Monday morning.

Back of the warehouse and in the neighborhaad are a number of tenement houses. In one of these a woman and her daughter were waiting for the arrival of a belated member of the family. Their apartment faces the warehouse. Shortly after 1 o'clock they noticed something suspicious in the Linde place and sat down to watch. An hour later a package, seemingly coming from the air, was dropped over into a near-by yard, and then the women thought it time to notify the police.

The younger woman ran down stairs and found a man known in the neighborhood as "Paddy." He was told to get a policeman, and later came back with Fitzgibbons. Fitzgibbons sleuthed around on the outside and then went away to summon help. The same thing was repeated when help arrived, and when the police, pistols in hand, got through the opening made by the burglars the thieves had fled.

The policemen had found about 100 pieces of silk carefully packed up and lying in the alley. As soon as it was light a search was made of the neighborhood, and several more bundles of the silk similarly packed in burlap bags were discovered in a near-by yard, where the women had seen one of the bundles dropped.

HAS LOCKJAW, BUT NO WOUND.

Hospital Physicians Puzzled by the Case of Mildred Stebbins.

The physicians at the Cumberland Street Hospital, Brooklyn, are puzzled over the case of Miss Mildred Stebbins, a patient there, who, while exhibiting symptoms of lockjaw shows no wound which might have been the cause of it. Miss Stebbins is 15 years old, and lives at 15 Sycamore Street. When she returned home from her place of employment last Wednesday her teeth were set and her sister took her to the hospital.

The physicians believed that it was a case of tetanus, but the girl had not even a scratch in the way of a wound. She has taken some nourishment, and yesterday she was improving.

One of the physicians at the hospital said yesterday that it was possible for tetanus to be contracted through eating certain kinds of raw food, but that such cases were exceedingly rare.

SAW CRAZED SHIPMATES LEAP FROM TINY RAFT

Two Only Could Stand the Privations of Five Perilous Days.

RESCUED TOO WEAK TO MOVE

The Schooner Van Name and King Was Beaten to Pieces by a Gale and Six Men Lost.

BOSTON, Oct. 16.—Sturdy enough to have stood the test without food or water for five days, while six companions died or went insane and leaped into the sea, William Thomas and William G. Warner, 6 feet 3 each, were brought here today, after a voyage the like of which few sailormen ever know and come out alive. They were sole survivors of the coasting schooner Van Name and King of New Haven, which was beaten to pieces by a gale off the South Carolina coast on Oct. 6.

The Van Name and King, which had been plying up and down the coast since 1886, left Charleston, S. C., for New York on Oct. 3 with a cargo of hard pine. Two days later—Thursday, Oct. 5—she ran into a heavy gale, and, after wallowing about in the great seas for several hours, sprang a leak. The pumps were started, but within a short time the engine room was flooded and the pumps choked.

At 8 o'clock on the morning of Friday, Oct. 6, with her hold nearly full of water, the little schooner was hove down on her beam ends. The crew clambered up on the weather side and lashed themselves to the bulwarks. There they remained, soaked by every sea that broke mercilessly over them all day Friday, constantly on the watch for some passing vessel.

That night the storm increased in fury, and one great wave crashed aboard, breaking both legs of Alfred Arthur, a seaman, and sweeping William Grizell into the sea. Arthur's companions could do nothing to ease his sufferings, but when on Saturday the schooner turned completely over they managed to cut his lashings and drag him on to a piece of the afterhouse that had been torn away. It was several hours before all were huddled together on the little raft. That night Arthur died in the arms of Capt. William A. Maxwell, and, to relieve the overloaded raft, his body was dropped into the sea.

Sunday brought a ray of hope when a craft was sighted, but the gloom shut in again as she passed by without heeding the little group of arm-waving men.

That night the waves subsided and a little rain fell, which was eagerly caught in a tarpaulin and brought a slight relief. It was only temporary, and not long after Mate E. A. Chase's mind gave way entirely and the raft was again lightened when he threw himself into the sea.

The next victim of the terrific strain was Capt. Maxwell, who, on Monday forenoon, became violently insane and followed his mate's example of self-destruction. The spectacle of two men voluntarily throwing themselves into a sea proved too much for the German engineer and a few hours later he jumped into the waves. The last victim was the colored steward, who died on the raft late Monday night.

Relief came twelve hours later, when the schooner Stillman F. Kelly, bound up the coast from Ceylon, Ga., to this port sighted the little raft and hove to alongside. Thomas and Warner had to be taken off in slings, and for two days were unable to move.

The rescue took place off Cape Lookout. The Kelly arrived here this afternoon, but the seamen were still too exhausted to land. They will come ashore in a day or two, and will probably be sent home to Antigua, British West Indies. Each of them lost thirty or forty pounds in weight during their five days' exposure. Capt. Maxwell, who died, was from New Jersey.

E. R. Wilbur, Jr., Opposes Will.

When the will of Edward R. Wilbur, who died at Oyster Bay in July last, was offered for probate in the Surrogate's Court, Brooklyn, yesterday, an opposing petition was presented by the only child of the testator, Edward R. Wilbur, Jr., who asserted that he had been practically cut off in the will, which disposes of an estate said to be worth $175,000.

QUIET LODGER WAS DEAD.

Photographs with Inscriptions May Settle Identity of Suicide.

Mrs. Elizabeth Smith, who keeps a boarding place at 135 West Thirty-sixth Street, a house which belongs to the Church of the Holy Innocents on West Thirty-seventh Street, grew uneasy early last night about a young man who hadn't been heard to move in his rear room on the first floor since Sunday noon.

Mrs. Smith asked the assistance of House Detective Madden of the Marlborough Hotel, which is next door. Madden couldn't force the door, so he climbed into the room through a back window, flashing his bull's eye lantern ahead of him. He came out and reported that the lodger was dead. Detective Murphy was sent up from the Tenderloin Station. He found the many lying in bed with a bullet wound in his right temple and a pistol in hand. He had been dead many hours. A few cents were found on him.

Little about his identity could be learned by the police. On a valise strap was "A. J. P." There was not a letter nor a piece of paper of any kind in the clothes or in the valise to indicate who the suicide was or where he came from. He was about 32 years old.

When the police searched the suicide's room they found three photographs. One was that of a young girl, on the back of which was written "Take care of Ellen." "The cause of it all" was written on the second picture, which was that of a man dressed as a miner. The third photograph was of two men and two girls, one of the men being the suicide. "Be good to Ellen. I can stand it no longer, for I have seen you for the last time," was written across the face of this one.

"He had been here four days," said Mrs. Smith. "When he first came, I asked him what his name was. He passed his hand across his brow as if he was trying hard to think of it. He answered: 'I don't where I came from, but I know where I'm going.'"

HARPER'S BOOK NEWS.

The Travelling Thirds

Gertrude Atherton has written no more captivating story than this. The Moultons resolve to include Spain in their European trip even if they have to travel third class. The warm Spanish sunshine brings about a sort of love madness among them, and what would otherwise have proved a sedate romance, flourishes in a most startling fashion. The climax is the most complete surprise of all. Altogether it is an unusually diverting story.

Mrs. Raffles

John Kendrick Bangs' latest book recounts the burglaries in which, after Raffles' death, his widow is concerned. It is a clever satire on fashionable society and recent events. Mrs. Raffles succeeds in raising a tremendous loan on the strength of a few Steel bonds, persuades a prominent millionaire to bestow a library on Rafflehurst-by-the-Sea, and achieves other master strokes that are sure to be appreciated.

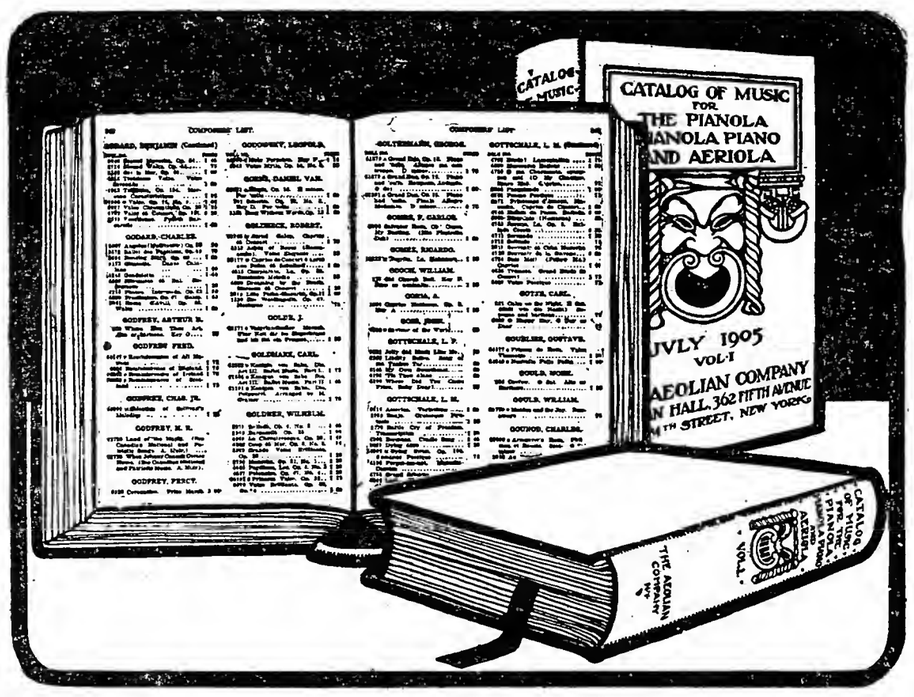
Slocum Fund Wound Up.

Herman Ridder, Chairman of the Citizens' Relief Committee for the Slocum disaster, made a report to Mayor McClellan yesterday on the unexpended balance of $15,442.13 on hand when the committee was discharged from duty on Sept. 9 of this year. Since that date $231.30 was added to the fund, which the committee has disbursed in pensions for children or aged dependents, and other smaller expenses aggregating $15,773.87, or $100.44 in excess of the fund. This excess was made good by the congregation of St. Mark's Church.



The Most Comprehensive Music Catalog Ever Published

Furnishing a concrete example of the wide variety of pleasure to be derived from the PIANOLA and PIANOLA PIANO

A BOOK just issued by the Aeolian Company is remarkable in more ways than one. It is a catalog of the music now available for the Pianola and Pianola Piano. Six hundred pages with the proper indexes are required to list the many musical compositions which have been prepared in the form of perforated music rolls for use on these instruments.

Such a comprehensive catalog of music has been heretofore unknown. Publishers of sheet music have always issued catalogs, but these have been limited to their own publications, with the addition perhaps of their own importations. It is therefore most significant that the repertory of the Pianola has become so large as to make its catalog a standard work of reference.

Until now there has been no general catalog of all music. For example, this book contains a list of the complete works of Chopin, information hitherto difficult to obtain, being included only in special books on Chopin or other rare works. The Aeolian Company's new catalog therefore corresponds to the catalogs which Public Libraries issue of books, comprising the publications of all publishing houses.

That the Aeolian Company should be the first to issue a complete catalog of music is indicative of the pre-eminent position now held by this house in the realm of music. But what is more, this book also constitutes impressive testimony of the value of the Pianola and Pianola Piano.

Can you afford—can anyone afford—to be longer without this means of introducing into the life of the home such a tremendous factor for refined entertainment, for the educational study of one of the greatest of the Arts?

This valuable catalog of music will be furnished free to owners of the Aeolian Company's instruments. A complimentary copy may also be obtained by any intending purchaser of either the Pianola or Pianola Piano, or by any person who desires to investigate for himself the vast field of pleasure which the ownership of one of these instruments will bring into the life of the home.

To others, who may desire to own this catalog simply as a reference book on music, it will be supplied at cost—fifty cents a copy. Public Libraries will be furnished with a complimentary copy upon application.

Jersey-Top Petticoats.

Demonstration This Week.

The manufacturers of the Women's Jersey-Top Petticoats have sent here a demonstrator, who will be present in the Petticoat Store the balance of this week, explaining the many advantages of this garment.

The top part of these skirts is of Jersey. This gives warmth without adding to the weight that is suspended around your waist.

This Jersey, being very elastic, readily moulds to fit the figure, allowing your skirt to lie with a smoothness absolutely impossible when you have on two or three skirts. With this Jersey-Top skirt you wear one petticoat instead of two.

More comfort, more warmth and more freedom of movement—less discomfort, less bother—neater appearance. Made in several styles, all of them attractive. Prettily flounced and as graceful as any skirt. Priced at 1.50 1.95 2.50 2.95

MIKADO TELLS OF PEACE, WARNS AGAINST PRIDE

Asks People Not to Show Vainglory, but Cultivate Industry.

TEXT OF TREATY PUBLISHED

TOKIO, Oct. 16.—The peace treaty with Russia went into effect to-day. The text of the treaty was published this afternoon, accompanied by an imperial rescript as follows:

"We have always deemed it a fundamental principle of our international policy to maintain peace in the East and thus assure the security of our empire, and the promotion of this high object has therefore been our constant aim; but last year for reasons dictated by the necessity of self-preservation, we, unfortunately, were forced into hostilities with Russia.

"Since the war began our army and navy have made adequate provision for home defense, and military preparations within the empire itself, and have withstood hardships of all kinds during their campaigns abroad, and thus have achieved a glorious success. Our civil officials, in concord with our Diet, have diligently performed their duties in furtherance of our will.

"All measures for the prosecution of the war and for the administration of domestic and foreign affairs have been properly taken, as the exigencies of the situation demanded. Our people, frugal and prudent, have cheerfully borne the heavy burden of national expenditure and have generously contributed to the war fund, thus assisting, as with one will, in advancing the prestige and maintaining the dignity of the State.

"The result is due in a large measure to the benign spirits of our ancestors, as well as to devotion to duty of our civil and military officials and the self-denying patriotism of all our people.

"After twenty months of war, the position of the empire has been strengthened and the interests of the country advanced, and insomuch as we have never wavered in our desire for the maintenance of peace, it is contrary to our will that hostilities should be protracted and that our people should unnecessarily be subjected to the horrors of war.

"When the President of the United States, in the interests of peace and humanity, suggested that the Governments of Japan and Russia should arrange terms of peace, fully appreciating his kindness and good will, we accepted the suggestion and at the proper moment appointed plenipotentiaries to confer with those of Russia.

"The plenipotentiaries of the two countries having met and conferred frequently, the Russian plenipotentiaries have agreed to the proposals of our plenipotentiaries which were essential, having in view the objects of the war and the maintenance of peace in the East, thus manifesting the sincerity of their desire for peace. We have examined the terms agreed upon by the plenipotentiaries, and, having found them in entire conformity with our will, we have accepted and ratified them.

"Peace and glory having thus been secured, we are happy to invoke the blessing of the benign spirits of our ancestors and to be able to bequeath the fruits of these great deeds to our posterity. It is our earnest desire to share the glory with our people and long enjoy the blessings of peace with all nations.

"Russia is again the friend of Japan, and we sincerely desire that the relations of good neighborhood, now re-established, shall become both cordial and intimate.

"In this age, when there is no delay in the world's progress, there should be no cessation of the effort to improve the administration of the nation's affairs, both internal and external. While military efficiency should be maintained in full vigor, even in time of peace, an earnest endeavor should be made to attain success in peaceful pursuits, so that, in equal measure with its power, the prosperity of the country may be maintained and its permanent progress insured.

"We strongly admonish our subjects against manifestations of vainglorious pride, and command them to attend to lawful avocations and to do all that lies in their power to strengthen the empire."

Mr. Terauchi, Minister of War, has issued an order instructing the Japanese Army in the field to abstain from criticising the terms of peace on the grounds that the declarations of peace and of war are entirely the outcome of sovereign power. His order forbids the criticism of either subject, especially by those engaged in military service.

He advises the soldiers to utilize the opportunities of peace after the disbandment of their regiments by engaging in their respective occupations, always holding themselves in readiness to join the colors at the Emperor's command.

TEXT OF THE TREATY.

LONDON, Oct. 16.—The Reuter Telegram Company furnishes the text of the treaty of peace concluded by Russia and Japan at Portsmouth, N. H., Sept. 5, and signed by Emperor Nicholas and the Emperor of Japan Oct. 14, as follows:

The Emperor of Japan, on one part, and the Emperor of All the Russias, on the other part, animated by a desire to restore the blessings of peace to their countries, have resolved to conclude a treaty of peace and have for this purpose named plenipotentiaries, that is to say, for his Majesty the Emperor of Japan, Baron Komura Jutaro Jusami, Grand Cordon of the Imperial Order of the Rising Sun, his Minister for Foreign Affairs, and his Excellency Takahira Kogoro, Imperial Order of the Sacred Treasure, his Minister to the United States, and for his Majesty the Emperor of All the Russias, his Excellency Serge Witte, his Secretary of State and President of the Committee of Ministers of the Empire of Russia, and his Excellency Baron Roman Rosen, Master of the Imperial Court of Russia, his Majesty's Ambassador to the United States, who, after having exchanged their full powers, which were found to be in good and due form, have concluded the following articles:

Article One.

There shall henceforth be peace and amity between their Majesties the Emperor of Japan and the Emperor of All the Russias and between their respective States and subjects.

Article Two.

The Imperial Russian Government, acknowledging that Japan possesses in Korea paramount political, military, and economical interests, engage neither to obstruct nor interfere with measures for the guidance, protection, and control which the Imperial Government of Japan may find necessary to take in Korea.

It is understood that Russian subjects in Korea shall be treated in exactly the same manner as the subjects and citizens of other foreign powers; that is to say, they shall be placed on the same footing as the subjects and citizens of the most favored nation.

It is also agreed that in order to avoid causes of misunderstanding that the two high contracting parties will abstain on the Russian-Korean frontier from taking any military measure which may menace the security of Russian or Korean territory.

Article Three.

Japan and Russia mutually engage:

First—To evacuate completely and simultaneously Manchuria except the territory affected by the lease of the Liao-tung Peninsula in conformity with the provisions of the additional Article I. annexed to this treaty, and Second—To restore entirely and completely to the exclusive administration of China all the portions of Manchuria now in occupation or under the control of the Japanese or Rusian troops with the exception of the territory above mentioned.

The Imperial Government of Russia declare that they have not in Manchuria any territorial advantages or preferential or exclusive concessions in the impairment of Chinese sovereignty or inconsistent with the principle of equal opportunity.

Article Four.

Japan and Russia reciprocally engage not to obstruct any general measures common to all countries which China may take for the development of the commerce or industry of Manchuria.

Article Five.

The Imperial Russian Government transfer and assign to the Imperial Government of Japan, with the consent of the Government of China, the lease of Port Arthur, Ta-Lien, and the adjacent territory and territorial waters and all rights, privileges, and concessions connected with or forming part of such lease, and they also transfer and assign to the Imperial Government of Japan all public works and properties in the territory affected by the above mentioned lease.

The two contracting parties mutually engage to obtain the consent of the Chinese Government mentioned in the foregoing stipulation.

The Imperial Government of Japan on their part undertake that the proprietary rights of Russian subjects in the territory above referred to shall be perfectly respected.

Article Six.

The Imperial Russian Government engage to transfer and assign to the Imperial Government of Japan without compensation and with the consent of the Chinese Government the railway between Chang-chun-fu and Kuan-chang-tsu and Port Arthur, and all the branches together with all the rights, privileges, and properties appertaining thereto in that region, as well as all the coal mines in said region belonging to or worked for the benefit of the railway. The two high contracting parties mutually engage to obtain the consent of the Government of China mentioned in the foregoing stipulation.

Article Seven.

Japan and Russia engage to exploit their respective railways in Manchuria exclusively for commercial and industrial purposes and nowise for strategic purposes. It is understood that this restriction does not apply to the railway in the territory affected by the lease of the Liao-Tung Peninsula.

Article Eight.

The Imperial Governments of Japan and Russia, with the view to promote and facilitate intercourse and traffic, will so soon as possible conclude a separate convention for the regulation of their connecting railway services in Manchuria.

Article Nine.

The Imperial Russian Government cede to the Imperial Government of Japan in perpetuity and full sovereignty the southern portion of the Island of Sakhalin and all the islands adjacent thereto and the public works and properties thereon. The fiftieth degree of north latitude is adopted as the northern boundary of the ceded territory. The exact alignment of such territory shall be determined in accordance with the provisions of the additional Article XI. annexed to this treaty.

Japan and Russia mutually agree not to construct in their respective possessions on the Island of Sakhalin or the adjacent isuands any fortifications or other similar military works. They also respectively engage not to take any military measures which may impede the free navigation of the Strait of La Perouse and the Strait of Tartary.

Article Ten.

It is reserved to Russian subjects, inhabitants of the territory ceded to Japan, to sell their real property and retire to their country, but if they prefer to remain in the ceded teritory they will be maintained and protected in the full exercise of their industries and rights of property on condition of submitting to the Japaneso laws and jurisdiction. Japan shall have full liberty to withdraw the right of residence in or to deport from such territory any inhabitants who labor under political or administrative disability. She engages, however, that the proprietary rights of such inhabitants shall be fully respected.

Article Eleven.

Russia engages to arrange with Japan for granting to Japanese subjects rights of fishery along the coasts of the Russian possessions in the Japan, Okhotsk, and Bering Seas.

It is agreed that the foregoing engagement shall not affect rights already belonging to Russian or foreign subjects in those regions.

Article Twelve.

The treaty of commerce and navigation between Japan and Russia having been annulled by the war, the Imperial Governments of Japan and Russia engage to adopt as a basis for their commercial relations, pending the conclusion of a new treaty of commerce and navigation, the basis of the treaty which was in force previous to the present war, the system of reciprocal treatment on the footing of the most favored nation in which are included import and export duties, customs formalities, transit and tonnage dues, and the admission and treatment of agents, subjects, and vessels of one country in the territories of the other.

Article Thirteen.

So soon as possible after the present treaty comes in force all prisoners of war shall be reciprocally restored. The Imperial Governments of Japan and Russia shall each appoint a Special Commissioner to take charge of the prisoners. All prisoners in the hands of one Government shall be delivered to and received by the Commissioner of the other Government or by his duly authorized representative in such convenient numbers and such convenient ports of the delivering State as such delivering State shall notify in advance to the Commissioner of the receiving State.

The Governments of Japan and Russia shall present each other so soon as possible after the delivery of the prisoners is completed with a statement of the direct expenditures respectively incurred by them for the care and maintenance of the prisoners from the date of capture or surrender and up to the time of death or delivery. Russia engages to repay to Japan so soon as possible after the exchange of statement as above provided the difference between the actual amount so expended by Japan and the actual amount similarly disbursed by Russia.

Article Fourteen.

The present treaty shall be ratified by their Majesties, the Emperor of Japan and the Emperor of All the Russias. Such ratification shall be with as little delay as possible, and in any case no later than fifty days from the date of the signature of the treaty, to be announced to the Imperial Governments of Japan and Russia respectively through the French Minister at Tokio and the Ambassador of the United States at St. Petersburg, and from the date of the later of such announcements this treaty shall in all its parts come into full force. The formal exchange of ratifications shall take place at Washington so soon as possible.

Article Fifteen.

The present treaty shall be signed in duplicate in both the English and French languages. The texts are in absolute conformity, but in case of a discrepancy in the interpretation the French text shall prevail.

In conformity with the provisions of Articles 3 and 9 of the treaty of peace between Japan and Russia of this date the undersigned plenipotentiaries have concluded the following additional articles:

Sub-Article to Article Three.

The Imperial Governments of Japan and Russia mutually engage to commence the withdrawal of their military forces from the territory of Manchuria simultaneously and immediately after the treaty of peace comes into operation, and within a period of eighteen months after that date the armies of the two countries shall be completely withdrawn from Manchuria except from the leased territory of the Liao-tung Peninsula. The forces of the two countries occupying the front positions shall first be withdrawn.

The high contracting parties reserve to themselves the right to maintain guards to protect their respective railway lines in Manchuria. The number of such guards shall not exceed fifteen per kilometer, and within that maximum number the commanders of the Japanese and Russian Armies shall by common accord fix the number of such guards to be employed as small as possible while having in view the actual requirements.

The commanders of the Japanese and Russian forces in Manchuria shall agree upon the details of the evacuation in conformity with the above principles, and shall take by common accord the messures necessary to carry out the evacuation so soon as possible, and in any case no later than the period of eighteen months.

Sub-Article to Article Nine.

So soon as possible after the present treaty comes into force a commission of delimitation, composed of an equal number of members, is to be appointed, respectively, by the two high contracting parties, which shall on the spot mark in a permanent manner the exact boundary between the Japanese and Russian possessions on the island of Sakhalin. The commission shall be bound, so far as topographical considerations permit, to follow the fiftieth parallel of north latitude as the boundary line, and in case any deflections from that line at any points are found to be necessary, compensation will be made by correlative deflections at other points. It shall also be the duty of said commission to prepare a list and a description of the adjacent islands included in the cession, and, finally, the commission shall prepare and sign maps showing the boundaries of the ceded territory. The work of the commission shall be subject to the approval of the high contracting parties.

The foregoing additional articles are to be considered ratified with the ratification of the treaty of peace to which they are annexed.

Portsmouth, the fifth day of the ninth month of the thirty-eighth year of Meiji, corresponding to the twenty-third of August, 1905, (Sept. 5, 1905.)

MIKADO HONORS KOMURA.

TOKIO, Oct. 16.—Baron Komura, the Foreign Minister, who acted as chief peace plenipotentiary for Japan at Portsmouth, N. H., arrived here to-day from Vancouver, B. C.

His reception at the railroad station was not enthusiastic, those present being principally Government dignitaries. The streets were strongly guarded by troops, police, and gendarmes.

The Emperor showed exceptional honor to Komura by dispatching to Yokohama, where he landed from the Empress of India, Col. Inouye, his Majesty's Alde-de-Camp, who went alongside the steamer in a dispatch boat and brought Komura ashore at the Imperial inclosure. While the Baron was on his way to Tokio by train Col. Inouye constantly kept at Komura's side, and on arrival here they drove together to the palace in an imperial carriage sent from the household stables.

GOV. FOLK DENOUNCES PHILADELPHIA GRAFT

NEED OF LIVING PATRIOTS

Men Who Will Work for City, State, and Nation—Voters Get the Government They Deserve.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 16.—The great battle between the local Republican organization and the City Party, the municipal reform organization, was enlivened to-day by the visit of Gov. Folk of Missouri, who to-night addressed a large audience in the Academy of Music. He spoke under the auspices of the City Club, which claims no connection with the City Party.

The crowd that attempted to gain entrance to the Academy to-night was so great that the doors were closed before the meeting began. Several thousand persons who could not get in were addressed by City Party speakers. While the curbstone mass meeting was in progress Gov. Folk arrived and the assemblage would not permit him to enter the building until he had addressed them. He made a short speech. When he entered the Academy the entire audience stood up to welcome him. With him on the stage were George Burnham, Jr., President of the City Club; ex-Postmaster General Charles Emory Smith, ex-United States Attorney General Wayne MacVeagh, William Potter, ex-Minister to Italy, and about a hundred other citizens of prominence. Mayor Weaver occupied a prosceniim box, and was warmly welcomed.

Gov. Folk spoke in part as follows:

"Many men would be willing, if need be, to give up their lives for their city or State. They are needed sometimes, and this kind of patriotism cannot be too highly commended, but the man who is willing to live for his city and State every day is the man that is needed just now. There may be as much patriotism in giving one's time to the betterment of civic conditions and the election of good men to office and in purifying the ballot as in baring one's breast to the bullets of an enemy. There never was a time when the need for patriotic men in public affairs was greater than now. We need more actuated alone by the public good and fewer of those who are in politics merely for revenue.

"The strength of the lawless element is great, but it is as nothing when it comes in contact with a public conscience thoroughly aroused. Philadelphia at last seems to be awakened, and though the gang has been strong, it is being shattered beneath the shafts of public opinion under the leadership of Mayor Weaver. The people can overthrow civic evil whenever they want to and get just as good government as they deserve or as bad as they permit it to become. The law-abiding people are in the majority in Philadelphia, and there is hardly a community in this country of which this cannot be said. They are usually quiet, however, while the lawless are so vociferous as to deceive many as to their number. They may bluff and bulldoze, but they are cowards, and if resolutely fought they can be overcome. They are always active, however, while the average good citizen becomes active only occasionally.

"The moral revolution that is now sweeping over the land is merely a revival of the rule of the people. Four years ago the laws against bribery in all of the States were considered as practically dead letters. Not because the offense was uncommon, but because it was uncommon for officials to be prosecuted for it. When the prosecutions were commenced in St. Louis, members of the House of Delegates said that this bribery had been going on so long that they were entitled to notice to quit before being prosecuted. Some of them argued that members of the House of Delegates, having been taking bribes from time immemorial, had acquired a right to do so, and it was just as proper for them to sell their votes as for the merchant to sell his wares.

"The remedy for corruption, bribery, or grafting of every kind is to enforce the law. If the system is working an illegal game instead of trying to beat the game, the better way is to stop the game."

SHUBERTS SUE THE P. R. R.

The attorneys for the Pennsylvania Railroad caused to be removed to the United States Circuit Court yesterday a number of suits begun against that company in the Supreme Court for damages, arising out of the wreck of the Pennsylvania's Chicago express on May 11 last, when a number of passengers were burned to death and many others severely injured. The accident occurred near Harrisburg, Penn.

The suits were transferred because the plaintiffs are residents of various States. The most important of the actions is one instituted by David and Catherine Shubert, asking for $200,000 damages for the death of their son, Samuel Shubert, the well-known theatrical manager. Other suits range from $25,000 to $200,000.

JUROR DEMANDS THE TRUTH.

Pins a Witness Down in the International Power Pool Case.

At the trial yesterday in the Supreme Court of the suit of Franklin, Scott & Co. against Joseph H. Hoadley and Joseph Leiter several witnesses were called to prove that Hoadley and Leiter were in the pool behind Judson at the time the brokers lost $65,800 by operating in the stock of the International Power Company. It is to recover this loss that the brokers are now suing.

Henry A. Herbert, who managed Judson's affairs, was recalled, and testified that twenty-four erasures had been made in one day in Judson's books.

"Who made them?" inquired Juror No. 9.

Lawyer Graham objected, and while the court was making a ruling Juror 9 persisted in asking questions. Justice Amend told him to keep quiet.

"Well," shouted the juror, "I want to get at the truth of this matter. Who erased those figures?"

"I don't know," replied the witness.

"Now, gentlemen," said the juror, addressing counsel, "I'm sorry to interrupt, but we want to get at the truth."

"I will get it, Sir," said Justice Amend. "If you will sit still and listen to the testimony you will arrive at the truth."

Later on Herbert admitted that he had made the erasures himself and that they were merely corrections.

NEW YORK HEALTHFUL.

Death Rate Last Week Only 15.53—Very Little C tagion.

Commissioner Darlington of the Board of Health announced yesterday that the death rate for last week was 15.53, as compared with 16.54 for the same week last year, figuring on the 1900 census. The Commissioner says the rate is exceedingly low, and if figured on the present actual population of Greater New York it would be about one point and a half lower, which would make it the lowest death rate on record in the Board of Health.

Dr. Darlington added that there were very few contagious diseases in the city, and that only one death from such a disease was reported last week. That was a scarlet fever case.

To Hold Campania Inquiry.

Nevada N. Stranahan, Collector of the Port of New York, is going to hold an inquiry into the circumstances attending the loss of life on the Cunarder Campania on the voyage that ended at New York last Saturday morning. Under the provisions of the Passenger act, steamship companies are compelled to provide certain safeguards for steerage passengers, and it will be to determine whether these provisions were properly carried out that the inquiry will be held.

THE CHILDREN ENJOY

Life out of doors and out of the games which they play and the enjoyment which they receive and the efforts which they make comes the greater part of that healthful development which is so essential to their happiness when grown. When a laxative is needed the remedy which is given to them to cleanse and sweeten and strengthen the internal organs on which it acts, should be such as physicians would sanction, because its component parts are known to be wholesome and the remedy itself free from every objectionable quality. The one remedy which physicians and parents, well-informed, approve and recommend and which the little ones enjoy, because of its pleasant flavor, its gentle action and its beneficial effects, is—Syrup of Figs—and for the same reason it is the only laxative which should be used by fathers and mothers.

Syrup of Figs is the only remedy which acts gently, pleasantly and naturally without griping, irritating, or nauseating and which cleanses the system effectually, without producing that constipated habit which results from the use of the old-time cathartics and modern imitations, and against which the children should be so carefully guarded. If you would have them grow to manhood and womanhood, strong, healthy and happy, do not give them medicines, when medicines are not needed, and when nature needs assistance in the way of a laxative, give them only the simple, pleasant and gentle—Syrup of Figs.

Its quality is due not only to the excellence of the combination of the laxative principles of plants with pleasant aromatic syrups and juices, but also to our original method of manufacture and as you value the health of the little ones, do not accept any of the substitutes which unscrupulous dealers sometimes offer to increase their profits. Please to remember, the full name of the Company—CALIFORNIA FIG SYRUP CO.—is printed on the front of every package. In order to get its beneficial effects it is always necessary to buy the genuine only. For sale by all reliable druggists.

Winner of the Vanderbilt Cup Contest Was Not There.

PRESIDENT MORRIS HOPEFUL

Predicts That the Trophy Will Be Brought Back—C. J. Glidden on His Touring Plans.

Over 200 members and guests gathered last night in the rooms of the Automobile Club of America to do honor to the foreign and native drivers who took part in the recent Vanderbilt Club race. Hemery, the victor, was absent, owing, it was stated, to his unfamiliarity with the English tongue. George Heath, who got second in the race, and the cup winner last year, came in late and was heartily congratulated by the members for his grand finish.

Mr. Heath said he was well satisfied with the results of the race. He praised the management, but complained that in some places the crowds were inclined to usurp so much of the road as to make it positively dangerous for the racing automobilist to continue at his highest speed. Mr. Heath said he would remain in America for about a month, and will then return to Paris. He was unable to give any definite idea regarding the probable action of the Automobile Club of France for the race next year.

President Dave Hennen Morris, in his opening remarks, said:

"Of course, we are naturally sorry that we could not keep the cup, but we all feel the race was one we may be proud of, particularly because the American cars made such an excellent showing. The cup now goes to Europe, but if a race is held there next season I am sure we will do everything in our power to bring it back to American soil."

This hopeful view of the case was received with applause. Some one said:

"Send Joe Tracy after it."

This caused Tracy to blush perceptibly, but he said that he would be only too glad to do all in his power to bring the cup back. Tracy said that he brought his racing Locomobile back to the city from Long Island yesterday.

Charles J. Glidden, the world automobiling tourist, was one of the guests. He said he had completed all arrangements for the renewal of his globe circling experiences with an automobile. He and his wife will sail for Europe next Tuesday, and from England will go direct to India, where about Dec. 1 Mr. Glidden expects to resume his tour. He has a long itinerary laid out through India and other Asiatic countries, and will finish this trip in June in Egypt.

"It will not end my tour, by any means," added Mr. Glidden. "I am now planning for South America, but I do not expect to reach that country for three years. I have my plans mapped out for five years ahead. I have just secured permission to tour through a country which I have been trying to get for three years. No, I don't care to tell just what country it is, for it has been hard work getting the permits, and if I told where it was someone might get in ahead of me and it may be two years before I get there."

300 of Them Applaud His Verdict in Their Favor.

Justice Gaynor of the Supreme Court, Brooklyn, sat on the bench yesterday afternoon with his usually pale cheeks glowing under the scrutiny of more than 300 women schoolteachers. They had assembled to listen to an argument in their suit to compel the Board of Education to pay an increase of salary granted in 1898, but which they have not received.

The action was brought by the Brooklyn School Teachers' Association on behalf of 3,334 teachers. The increase sued for was granted just before consolidation, and the hitch in payment resulted from the merging of the borough boards.

The argument before Justice Gaynor yesterday was purely legal. It was expected that he would reserve decision, but he said that there was no reason for delay, and gave his verdict against the city.

When this was announced the teachers set up a vigorous round of applause. Grasping his gavel, the Justice rapped for order, but it was a minute or two before he could be heard. Then he remarked with a smile:

"This is as much out of order in a courtroom as in a schoolroom."

There was a laugh, and in a moment the big room was a-flutter with white as the teachers waved their handkerchiefs in the Chautauqua salute.

But Justice Gaynor was hurrying away through the lawyers' room to the corridor. As he passed along a demure young woman who wore eyeglasses exclaimed:

"I'd just like to kiss him!"

AUTOISTS FROM AERO CLUB.

Encouragement for Airship Development Assured in America.

Definite organization of the Aero Club of America was made last night at the Automobile Club of America. The club has been incorporated at Albany, and while it will be a separate club in every respect it will be closely affiliated with the Automobile Club of America. Besides the officers who were elected at last night's meeting there are nearly thirty members. The club has already been recognized as the official American Aero Club by the Aero Clubs of France and of Great Britain, and negotiations are pending toward official recognition by the Aero Club of Germany. Cortlandt Field Bishop, who is now in Paris, was appointed as the representative of the club at the international congress of aeronauts, now being held in Paris.

The officers of the new club are Homer W. Hedge, President; John F. O'Rourke, First Vice President; C. J. Glidden, Second Vice President; Augustus Post, Treasurer, S. M. Butler, Secretary.

The chief purposes of the club are to advance the development of the science of aeronautics and kindred sciences, to encourage all kinds of aerial navigation, and to assist in international congresses and races.

President Stops Coaching.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 16.—To avoid the appearance of connivance in civil service examinations the President to-day issued an order forbidding employes of the Government engaging in coaching or teaching persons who are trying to fit themselves for a civil service examination.

LINES TO TAP THE TUNNELS.

A $3,000,000 Street Car Company Organized in New Jersey.

The Hudson Street Railroad Company filed articles of incorporation yesterday in the County Clerk's office at Jersey City. The capital stock is $3,000,000 and the object of the company, as given in the papers, is to construct and operate street railway lines in Hudson County. The names of the persons interested and the Directors and officers elected indicate that the company is a consolidation of the Morton and Cortlandt Streets tunnel interests and those allied with them in New York.

Soon after the papers were filed a meeting of the stockholders was held at 55 Montgomery Street, the Jersey City office of the company, and these Directors were elected: Pliny Fisk and William M. Barnum, members of the banking house of Harvey Fisk & Sons; Walter G. Oakman, President of the Hudson companies which are building the tunnels; William G. McAdoo, President of the Hudson and Manhattan Railroad Company; Andrew Freedman, Director of the Interborough Rapid Transit Company, and David Young of Newark, a former official of the North Jersey Railroad Company.

The Directors elected these officers: President—William G. McAdoo; Vice President—Andrew Freedman; Secretary—K. B. Conger; Treasurer—William C. Kinney.

The lines to be built by the company will connect with every town, city, and township in Hudson County and will connect with the tunnels at Fifteenth Street and Exchange Place, Jersey City.

President McAdoo gave out the following statement about the new company yesterday afternoon:

"The Hudson Street Railroad Company was organized for the purpose of increasing and improving the local transportation facilities throughout the principal cities and towns of Hudson County, with a view to operating these lines in connection with the tunnels now being built under the Hudson River.

"The new lines are so planned as to tap the tunnels at points back from the water front, so that fast time can be made through the congested business districts in Jersey City and Hoboken, and this, coupled with the fact that the new lines will have superior track construction and most modern equipments, will result in reducing the time between the residential and business districts of New York and New Jersey, to practically one-half of that now required to get across the river."

CAUGHT THE "GAS MAN."

A Policeman and Several Women Struggled with the Intruder.

Caught in the act of robbing a Harlem flat a sneak thief known to the police as "the gas man" was captured yesterday afternoon after a struggle in which he knocked down two women and used a black jack on a policeman. The man gave his name as Charles Mirchell.

Mrs. Ray Oppenheimer of 60 West 128th Street went down town shopping yesterday, and when she returned about 3 o'clock she found Mirchell in the dining room in the act of tying up a bundle.

"What are you doing here?" exclaimed Mrs. Oppenheimer.

"Don't be alarmed, madam, I am only the gas man," was Mirchell's reply as he threw open his coat and showed a badge.

"Well, if you are the gas man, how did you get in here when there was nobody at home?" demanded Mrs. Oppenheimer.

Instead of replying, the man made a rush for the door. She caught him by the coat and screamed for help. She was dragged from her rooms and out into the public hall, where he threw her down and broke away. Several women tried to stop the man on the second floor, but he brushed them aside and knocked down Mrs. Solomon, a tenant, who ran out to see what the trouble was.

The screams of the women attracted the attention of Policeman Cohen. He ran in and saw the man struggling with the janitor, Mrs. Oppenheimer, and several other women. Mitchell struck the policeman over the head with a black-jack, and was getting away when Charles A. Grant of 25 West 128th Street rushed into the hall and knocked him down.

Capt. Burns says Mitchell is the "gas man" who has been robbing Harlem flats for several weeks.

SOLDIER BOYS RUN RACES.

Twenty-second Regiment Engineers Hold Games at Their Armory.

The Twenty-second Regiment Engineers of Company A held an informal reception and hop at the armory at Broadway and Sixty-eighth Street last night and entertained a thousand friends until well after midnight. The dance was preceded by a company drill and athletic games, in which the soldier boys made an excellent showing.

The event of the evening was the mile run, in which J. P. Sullivan, the Irish-American Athletic Club crack, met F. A. Rogers, running from the twenty-five-yard mark. The two men ran pace and pace after the third lap, and entered the last two rounds of the track side by side. Try as he would Sullivan could not pass Rogers, and was beaten less than four inches. Sullivan previously ran in the half mile and won in 2:03 2-5.

The quarter mile was also a close race, A. J. Crockett being declared the winner over Dan Frank, while Wood Dawson won the 600-yard race in a good finish. Frank took the 220-yard hurdle race from scratch, though had Knakel not fallen he would probably have finished first.

An amusing incident marked the sack race. On the gun to start "Bruck" Clarke hitched up his sack and both legs went through the bag. He finished after the manner of a woman holding up her skirts to run at speed, his legs sticking through and bare from the knees down. The race was declared off. Summaries:

220-Yard Hurdle Race.—Won by Dan Frank, Irish-American A. C., (scratch;) W. F. Daily, Twenty-second Regiment, (10 yards,) second; W. Knakel, Columbia University, (scratch,) third. Time—0:29 4-5.

440-Yard Dash.—Won by A. J. Crockett, Twenty-second Regiment, (14 yards;) Dan Frank, Irish-American A. C., (scratch,) second; W. Knakel, Columbia University, (5 yards,) third. Time—0:52 4-5.

Three-Legged Race.—Won by W. Dailey and C. J. Clark. Walkover.

One-Mile Run.—Won by F. A. Rogers, Irish-American A. C., (25 yards;) J. P. Sullivan, Irish-American A. C., (scratch,) second; W. Frank, Twenty-second Regiment, (40 yards,) third. Time—4:46 1-5.

220-Yard Run, Novice.—Won by A. Reed; J. B. Deviner, second; August Von Schervrandt, third. Time—0:26 3-5.

70-Yard Dash.—Won by J. J. Dannehauer, Twenty-second Regiment, (scratch;) W. Knakel, Columbia University, (scratch,) second; Dan Frank, Irish-American A. C., (3 feet,) third. Time—0:07 3-5.

Half-Mile, Handicap.—Won by J. P. Sullivan, Irish-American A. C., (scratch;) F. Seely, Mohawk A. C., (20 yards,) second; W. Frank, Twenty-second Regiment, (25 yards,) third. Time—2:03 3-5.

600-Yard Run.—Won by Wood Dawson, West Side A. C., (12 yards;) G. F. Smith, Twenty-second Regiment, (scratch,) second; George Arnold, Twenty-second Regiment, (14 yards,) third. Time—1:16 4-5.

HEMERY'S AUTO ALL RIGHT.

Damage by Fire Not Serious—Makes Two Trips Over Cup Course.

Hemery's eighty horse power Darracq racing car that won the Vanderbilt cup race last Saturday made two rounds over the twenty-eight mile Long Island course yesterday morning. This fact may occasion some surprise to those who believed that the machine was so badly damaged by fire on Sunday as to render it practically unfit for use. Representatives of the Darracq Company who were present at the Automobile Club of America last night stated that upon further investigation it was discovered that the mechanism of the racer was not injured in the least. The fire from the burning gasoline was extinguished before the heat and flames reached the engine and motors. In order to test the running ability of the car Hemery took it out yesterday morning and ran it satisfactorily twice over the course.

Both Hemery and Wagner, with their mechanicians, are still at their headquarters at the Glenwood Hotel, near Glen Head, L. I. They will take their cars apart for shipment to France this week. Hemery and Wagner will sail for home on Thursday on the steamer La Savoie, but it will probably be impossible to send the cars until a week later. There will be a big party of chauffeurs on the same steamer, for in addition to Hemery and Wagner there will be Duray, Szisz, and the German Driver, Jenatzy, and probably Lancia and Nazzaro, the Italians. The latter started for a short trip to Niagara Falls yesterday.

Hanlon's Brooklyn Contract Expires.

BALTIMORE, Oct. 16.—Manager Edward Hanlon's contract with the Brooklyn Baseball Club expired to-day and it has not been renewed. It is stated definitely that he will not manage the Baltimore Club next season, but that that organization will again be in charge of Hugh Jennings.

COLUMBIA HOPEFUL FOR PLAYERS' RETURN

Report Has It That Carter and Starbuck May Play Again.

YALE BEGINS SECRET WORK

Only light work was indulged in by the Columbia University football players yesterday. The men were sore after the hard game with Williams, and many did not participate in the practice work at all. Morley confined most of the afternoon to signal practice and punting. Schultz and Von Saltza were tried at drop kicking, but neither proved to be a success. Schultz was inaccurate and Von Saltza could not get any height to the kick.

The essential feature necessary is to get some speed into the backs. They are a strong lot of players, but the lack of ginger in their play causes many of the formations to be broken up by fast opposing tackles. In the Williams game on Saturday the line men opened up holes for the backs, but they were unable to take advantage of them through lack of speed.

An unconfirmed rumor was freely circulated yesterday to the effect that Carter and Starbuck, who were barred by the Faculty last week, would be eligible to play. Dean Sever was not in attendance at the university, and the other members of the Advisory Board declined to discuss the matter. Carter would prove a valuable addition to the squad, as he is a good full back and a strong punter. With Hodgkinson out of the play for some time to come, and no strong kicker other than Fisher in sight, Carter would fill in at a very opportune moment. Both Starbuck and Carter were on the field in football clothes yesterday.

The Harvard eleven was strengthened yesterday, when Dan Knowlton, all-American tackle in 1903, joined the squad and played full back. He is thoroughly conversant in the art of line plunging, and the coaches expect he will prove a valuable addition to the 'Varsity eleven. He did not get into the scrimmage, but spent his time running through signals with the 'Varsity team. Paul, tackle on last year's second eleven, who has been playing guard so far this season, was tried at full back on the scrub. Considerable attention was paid to the drastic testing of candidates in small details. Coach Daly had his men tackling runners in the open field. He ran himself with the ball, and sometimes had a man to interfere for him. Coach Reid, on the other hand, put the back field candidates through a rigid test to compare the men in every detail of play, and then to reduce the squad at some near future date. In the scrimmage between the 'Varsity and the scrub the former scored once. Wendell made the touch-down on a fifty-five-yard run. On the play before this the same runner returned the ball forty-five yards on the kick-off, but was tackled by Whitman from behind.

The Yale eleven began secret practice yesterday earlier than in several years. The doors were opened after an hour's inside work, and the only playing seen by the crowd was a scrimmage between the second and third elevens. Jack Cates, who was end on last year's team until injured, came out for the first time. He is Captain of next year's track team and a fast end runner. Forbes and Erwin were not in the game, Turner and Andrews taking their places. Congden, who sprained his shoulder recently, came out again for end, and Tripp was back at right guard, though he turned his ankle again in the Saturday game. Jones was at quarter back, Veeder at left half back, and Stevenson and Morse at right half back. Flinn and Levine alternated at full back in the signal drill. Foster Sandford left Yale to-day for a week at Amherst.

Warm weather interfered with the practice of the Tigers' squad yesterday, and only light work was required of it. Particular attention was paid to kicking off, as the coaches are dissatisfied with McCormick's work in this department. Bard, Otis, Fryer, Tenny, and Tooker each had a trial at booting the leather on the kick-off. Tooker's work was far better than the others' and it is likely that he will be depended upon to kick off in future games. The practice game of fifteen minutes resulted in a victory for the 'varsity by the score of three touch-downs to none. Capt. Cooney resumed his position at left tackle, and Carothers was back at centre. The hospital list has received more additions. Herring is suffering from a very painful boil. O'Brien is in the infirmary with a strained back, and Daub limps with an injured ankle. P. Waller, the big freshman who was doing so well at guard, is still on crutches.

After a rest last Saturday, when there was no game on the Cornell schedule, Coach Warner yesterday gave all the football men a stiff afternoon's work. George Young, quarter back on the 1900 team, took charge of the five quarter back candidates, and gave them forty minutes' instruction while Coach Warner and his assistants gave the backs individual attention. Two elevens were made up out of the 'Varsity regulars and put through signal practice. There was no scrimmage. The practice was secret, and no one was admitted to see the new plays worked out. Coach Warner will insist upon the strict enforcement of his training rules. One of these requires every football man to be in bed by 10 o'clock. Last night a prominent member of the squad, whose name the coaches have withheld, was on the street at almost midnight, and happened to meet one of the coaches. To-day he was summarily dismissed from the training table and the squad.

West Point had no practice game yesterday, but spent the time walking through signal practice trying to correct some of the errors shown Saturday. Wecks, Erwin, and Wilhelm were out watching the practice, but did not participate. It is hoped that these men will be able to play against Harvard Saturday. Smith is still in the hospital. Philoon, who received a bad sprain Saturday, will not be able to play for some time. The aspects of the football season have taken a serious turn, and everybody seems to realize that West Point is in a bad way this year. The men do not seem to have football instinct. They have weight, speed, and other qualifications, but they cannot play football. The coaches are puzzled to know what to do next. In view of the poor tackling Saturday the squad was taken over to try tackling the dummy, but seemed very awkward in their attempts.

Pennsylvania's guards and backfield were put through practice yesterday in interference and tackling the dummy. Sheble, Kinnard, and Corson were coached by Reynolds in kicking. The quarter backs and other backfield men were coached by Reynolds in handling punts. After this the first and second teams lined up for signal practice, and were instructed in some new plays. The practice as usual on Monday was rather ragged, the men seeming listless and the warm weather apparently having its effect on them. Draper and Lamson were ordered to rest from the scrimmage, and Longwell and Torrey did not appear in the practice. The scrimmage against the scrub team was quite lengthy, lasting about forty-five minutes. The scrub did not show much snap, and the 'Varsity team made good gains. Rooker played an excellent game at tackle, and Johnson showed up very well, especially in running back kicks. Zeigler's absence is severely felt, and it will be probably impossible to fill his place. Stein was tried at right guard against the scrub. Just at present the team feels the loss most keenly of the half dozen promising players who are out of the game on account of accidents and for other reasons.

SECRECY IN HANCOCK CASE.

Defendant's Counsel and Mayor in a Fight at Courtroom.

HYATTSVILLE, Md., Oct. 16.—Coroner Carr decided to-day to conduct behind closed doors the investigation into the death of Emma Smallwood, for which Winfield Scott Hancock, a nephew of Gen. Winfield Scott Hancock, was arrested. This decision was the outcome of a contention by State's Attorney Magruder that newspaper men and the public generally should be excluded from hearing any of the testimony.

When the jury assembled a man attempted to prevent Robert Wells, counsel for Hancock, from entering the room. The attorney dealt him a blow in the face, and Mayor Wells, his father, inflicted further punishment.

A warrant for Mrs. Amana Mackall, the defendant's sister, was prepared, but was not served, as the constable refused to swear to it, on the ground that he did not hear the evidence.

Not Much Hurt by Fall.

Joseph Underhill of 2,255 First Avenue was removed to Roosevelt Hospital yesterday afternoon from Seventy-seventh Street and Central Park West with a fractured rib. This was the sole result of a fall of six stories from a scaffolding on which he was working on a new building.

ENGLISH PILGRIMS WON FROM BOSTON

SCORE WAS 5 GOALS TO 0

BOSTON, Mass., Oct. 16.—Association football, with its open fast play and absence of brutality, received a strong impetus in this city from the game to-day on the South End Grounds between the Pilgrims of England and a picked team from near-by clubs, the visitors winning by the score of 5 to 0. In view of the close match at Fall River on Saturday, when the Britishers won by 4 goals to 3, it was expected that the local aggregation would make a better showing than it did, but the light New England players, although very speedy and abreast of their opponents in individual play, proved no match for the stalwart Englishmen, with their well-nigh perfect teamwork. The Pilgrims scored once in the first half and four times in the second. Woodward, the centre forward, shot the first goal within a minute after the whistle blew in the first half, and scored the second goal at the very outset of the second half. The third goal was shot by Bryning from a difficult angle, and Fletcher negotiated the fourth after a pretty pass. The fifth and last goal quickly followed, Coopland booting the leather at full tilt.

The Englishmen lost no time in tallying soon after the start. The quickness of their movement, excellent team work, and clever passing completely nonplussing the Boston players. The latter soon woke up and for the greater part of the remainder of the first half the game was confined to the territory near the English goal. Sir Charles Kilpatrick, the goal keeper, made several clever "saves" through kick dashes, while Capt. Milnes and Walmsley materially contributed in keeping the British score sheet clean. Shortly before the close of the half McDonald missed the goal by a few inches, while Ross and Offers made several brilliant runs, which were broken up by the team work of the British back field.

In the second half the Englishmen soon worked the ball down the field by good passing and Woodward quickly shot the goal. Three others came in quick succession, after which the visitors were content to rest on their big lead and settled back on a defensive game. The Boston players then redoubled their efforts and pressed Sir Charles Kirkpatrick hard, who made several "saves" at critical periods. While the home team played a plucky game they were outclassed by the Britishers. Line-up:

Sir Chas. Kirkpatrick	Goal	McDermott
Milnes (Captain)	Right back	McAllister
Storey	Right half back	Crebbe
Nuttall	Centre half back	McGregor (Capt.)
Fletcher	Right inside	McDonald
Woodward	Centre forward	Gillespie
Raine	Right outside	Offers

Goals—Woodward, 2; Bryning, Fletcher, Coopland. Referee—Mr. Pollock.

LOCAL ASSOCIATION TEAM.

Players Selected to Meet English Pilgrims in Saturday's Game.

A special meeting of the Metropolitan Association Football League was held last night at the Cosmopolitan Hotel to select a team to represent All-New York in the match with the English Pilgrim team at the Polo Grounds on Saturday. There was a full attendance of representatives from every club in the league, and the contest for positions on the team was keen. Each position was balloted for and McNeill of the Brooklyn Football Club was the only player unanimously selected. The result of the ballot counted by Secretary S. S. Christy was as follows:

FIRST TEAM.

Goal—Craig, New York Thistles.
Right back—Martin, Hollywood Inn F. C.
Right half back—Minto, Favorite F. C.
Outside right—Tait, Caledonian F. C.
Inside right—Ingle, Hollywood Inn F. C.
Centre forward—Gorman, West Hudson F. C.

SUBSTITUTES.

Goal—Miller, West Hudson F. C.
Right back—Saunders, Cameron F. C.
Right half back—Roy, Hollywood Inn F. C.
Centre half back—Ovens, Hollywood Inn F. C.
Outside right—McGreour, Bronx F. C.
Inside right—McDonald, Caledonian F. C.
Centre forward—Crabbe, Favorite F. C.

The selection of the officials for the game was postponed until the arrival of the English team from Boston. All Metropolitan League scheduled games have been declared off for Saturday, and the colors of the New York team will be red, white, and blue. Sir Ernest Cecil Cochrane, Bart, will kick off promptly at 3 P. M., and among those who have accepted invitations to be present are: Sir Mortimer Durand, British Ambassador, and Sir Percy Sanderson, British Consul to New York.

Capt. Milne and Vincent Woodward of the Pilgrims left Boston last night and will go direct to Washington, D. C., for the purpose of extending an invitation to President Roosevelt to witness Saturday's game in this city. Should this be found impracticable, an offer will be made to play a game in Washington next Monday afternoon. The visitors are anxious to play before the President, as they believe he will endorse the Association game. If the game is played on Monday the schedule will not be interfered with, as the University of Pennsylvania eleven will be met on Franklin Field, Philadelphia, on Tuesday. The athletic advisers are very eager to find a football game suitable to college teams, which will eliminate the objectionable features of the present college game. Old Penn has had an Association team for several years, and is a member of the Intercollegiate Association Football League with Harvard, Cornell, Haverford, and Swarthmore.

The game has taken a strong hold at Columbia, where there are fifty men in training for the team which will shortly be organized. Princeton and Yale are also making arrangements for a "socker" eleven.

Athletics Get More Than $8,000 Extra.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 16.—As a reward to the players for winning the American League baseball championship, the owners of the Philadelphia Athletics to-day turned over the players their share of the receipts of the first four games of the world's series, amounting to $8,131.49, to be divided equally among the eighteen men eligible to play in that series. This amount, with the losing team's share of the receipts, $6,848.46, allotted to it by the National Commission, brings the total to be divided among the eighteen players, $14,979.95. Each man therefore will receive $832.22.

MR. IVINS'S PLATFORM.

Probably no candidate for Mayor in this or any other city ever challenged his electorate with such counsels of perfection as Mr. WILLIAM M. IVINS put forth yesterday in his letter to Mr. MCCLELLAN and Mr. HEARST. With the exception of the paragraphs which he treats of municipal ownership, his platform is not only beyond criticism, it is ideal. Mr. IVINS preachee the very essence of sound principle, the spirit and substance of good government. Nothing could be finer or higher. We doubt if any community on earth has ever shown itself good enough for such guidance. Certainly into municipal politics, which are a pretty mundane business, this celestial quality has never in our observation been successfully imported.

Every reformer, every newspaper advocating political reform, every preacher of independent mind admonishing his congregation and the public from his pulpit, is accustomed to insist that candidates should say the very things that Mr. IVINS now does say—that as Mayor he will bow the knee to no leader or organization; that he will conduct the city's business regardless of partisan considerations or personal ambitions; that he will do his own thinking; that in all things he will be answerable to the people; that he will put aside his private business in order that his whole time may be devoted to the public service without division of interest. Mr. JEROME has said that the people of New York City were on trial and that by inference they would show themselves to be a pretty bad lot if they did not re-elect him District Attorney. In a much larger sense the people would be put on trial by Mr. IVINS's platform, but for the one fatal fact that Mr. IVINS has not been seriously put before them as a candidate for Mayor.

The Republican machine does not expect him to be elected, and does not want him to be elected. It will not in good faith support him. The circumstances of his nomination are pretty discouraging for the intelligent voter who would above all things like to see him elected Mayor upon the platform he has put forth. To vote for a candidate to whom his own party is openly and notoriously disloyal is to make one's self in a way the dupe of the unworthy leaders who shape the party's action. If the Republicans had desired the election of Mr. IVINS they would have yielded to his wish that the name of Mr. JEROME be placed upon the ticket, and they would never have nominated with him such an ignoble list of unknown, unheard of, and impossible beings. The nomination of FLAMMER shows clearly enough what the organization intends to do with this ticket. If Mr. IVINS were a fusion candidate loyally supported, his character, his ability, his devotion to the public interest, and his platform—or the unexceptionable part of his platform—might elect him. But the Citizens' Union has gone stark, staring mad, a considerable portion of the old opposition to Tammany is chasing the municipal ownership jack-o'-lantern, and the Republican Party in the city has been brought by BENJAMIN B. ODELL to its very lowest estate—at least, the lowest for thirty years.

Mr. IVINS himself has got the municipal ownership microbe into his blood, and his language betrays the familiar symptoms of delusion and delirium. When he says that the "municipalization of our public franchises" is a principle no longer open to discussion, we take it that no one will disagree with him. We have by law declared that in future franchises shall not be granted either in perpetuity or without compensation. That is equivalent to a declaration that the giving away of perpetual franchises in the past was a mistake. We suppose every sensible person accepts that principle as sound. But when Mr. IVINS says that he will appeal to the Legislature "for the passage of a law condemning all existing gas plants under the right of eminent domain, with power on the part of the city to enter into immediate possession, leaving the question of value to subsequent determination by commission," he raises a question of such magnitude that persons, and in particular property owners, in any degree prosy, slow-minded, and old-fashioned may be afraid to follow him lest they get out of breath. The Supreme Court has held that a corporation charter is a contract subject to the State's power of eminent domain, and a corporation's property and franchises may therefore be taken for public uses like the property of individuals without violating the obligation of the contract.

Mr. IVINS's law, therefore, seems to be sound. But where would he find the money to buy the gas works? The Consolidated Gas Company has eighty millions of capital. Its shares are quoted in the Stock Exchange at about 185. Its share capital, therefore, is worth at market prices about $150,000,000. The company pays 8 per cent. dividends. Whether the commission of appraisal took earning power or market price as the basis of valuation, the city would have to increase its debt by a prodigious amount to pay the bill. Moreover, a multitude of municipal ownership experts would at once spring up to remark that the city could build its own plant and lay its own mains at less than half the cost of the Consolidated Company's property. Any kind of fad or folly could be written into a platform at the mere cost of the ink. To enact it into a statute is a more serious business.

But Mr. IVINS's platform is still very far from statutory expression. Not for what he is going to get into the statute book, but for what he is going to put into this campaign, the people owe him a debt of gratitude. Mr. MCCLELLAN will be a better Mayor for the pledges and promises Mr. IVINS's thrusts will force him to make. The hollowness and insincerity of the Hearst campaign will be made more clearly apparent by his questioning and his expositions. A spirited opposition is the life of any electoral contest.

HOW IT WORKS.

When the State Gas Commission was offered to the people of New York City by the Legislature as a substitute for eighty-cent gas there was a suspicion that the people had been bunkoed. The first decision rendered by the State Commission indicates that the suspicion was not ill-founded.

At the time of the agitation in New York City for eighty-cent gas the residents of a large part of Auburn, N. Y., were enjoying fifty-cent gas. They had the benefit of real competition. The two companies doing business there, the Auburn Gas Company and the Citizens' Light and Power Company, had been fighting each other for several years.

As soon as the State Gas Commission was created the competing companies of Auburn saw their opportunity. They reached an agreement by which the Citizens' Light and Power Company was to sell out to the Auburn Gas Company, provided the authority of the State Gas Commission could be secured to the issuance of a sufficient amount of stock by the Auburn Company to effect the purchase.

The application of the Auburn Company to issue $250,000 additional stock was made to the State Gas Commission, and after several hearings the State Commission made an order that the company might issue $100,000 additional stock. That seems to have been all-sufficient for the purpose the Auburn Company had in view. The Citizens' Light and Power Company was absorbed by it. A few days later the price of gas in the competitive district was raised from 50 cents to $1.25 per thousand cubic feet.

It is true that the price charged by the Auburn Company in the non-competitive district was lowered from $1.50 to $1.25, but the net result of the changes in price will be a substantial increase in the earnings of the company, which now serves the entire city of Auburn free from competition. What the gas company gains, the people, of course, lose.

The order made by the State Gas Commission was made over the protest of the Democratic Mayor of Auburn, THOMAS M. OSBORNE. In a message which he sent to the Common Council informing the Council of the nature of his protest to the State Commission and the Commission's failure to heed it, Mayor OSBORNE suggested that, as a measure of protection to the city, the Council should declare the franchise of the Citizens' Company forfeited on the ground that the Citizens' Company was allowed to charge only $1.13 net for gas, while the company which had purchased the franchise had made a rate of $1.25.

Acting on the suggestion of Mayor OSBORNE, the Common Council of Auburn has passed a resolution directing that the City Attorney take all necessary action in behalf of the city to enforce the franchise granted to the Citizens' Light and Power Company, and to compel the present owner of the franchise to furnish gas to the citizens of Auburn at the rates specified in the Citizens' Company's charter.

So it appears that the citizens of the community first affected by a decision of the State Gas Commission—a body supposedly created in the interest of the people—feel so outraged over the treatment accorded them that they will take an appeal to the courts.

"CHINA FOR THE CHINESE."

The "prominent Russian merchant, who is on a brief visit home after a long residence in Northern China," and who confided to The Associated Press correspondent in St. Petersburg his views on the future of China, as affected by the result of the recent war, agrees very closely with other foreign observers. It is a matter of general remark that the Chinese people are being deeply stirred first toward an anti-foreign sentiment and second toward a sort of patriotic sentiment to which they have long been utterly strangers, and there is no doubt that they have been influenced by the instruction and by the example of the Japanese, who have systematically organized their influence in the schools, in trade, in the army, and to some extent in the provincial and in the imperial Governments. Whether, as the Russian merchant thinks, the aim of the Japanese is "China for the yellow race," and whether the Chinese people, under the impulse imparted to them by this movement, may ultimately substitute the aim of "China for the Chinese," are questions which it is not easy to answer.

It is reasonable to infer that the people of China, soon or late, will abandon their seclusion and come into relations constantly more intimate with outside nations. It is inevitable that their first guide in this change should be the adventurous and efficient neighbor nation that has itself made a like change. It would be quite in harmony with all historic precedents if the Japanese should use this opportunity for their own advantage, and after that stage had been passed that the Chinese should pass to the stage in which they sought all benefits for themselves, much after the manner of the American protective system. It is true that the professions, and, up to the present time, the actions of the Japanese have been opposed to the line predicted for them, and have consistently followed the line of the open door and equal opportunity for all. But they may abandon this latter line and sink to the level of our own exclusiveness. If they do, they will have to face the stern criticism of those who set them the example. Like ourselves, they have a perfect right to try the experiment if they choose, and they will have the right to include in their field of influence the Chinese, who may in their turn also follow our example, and insist on a national monopoly of resources and trade.

But it will still remain true that the tendency of the adoption of Western methods and ideas in political organization, in industry, and in business will be toward the ultimate breaking up of exclusiveness. These methods and ideas will unquestionably promote activity and prosperity, and with these will come the demand and the need for foreign commerce. Production will seek an outlet and wealth will give rise to new desires, tastes, requirements. Exchanges will multiply in volume, in variety, in value, and every part of the world will ultimately share in them and contribute to them. In the long run, the efforts to monopolize "China for the Chinese" will be as futile as is the Great Wall in the Chinese system of military defense.

KANSAS AND WALL STREET.

Some years ago we used to ask, What is the matter with Kansas? Kansas is now returning the compliment, and wants to know what is the matter with Wall Street. The reason is simple. Here is a Topeka telegram.

> At 100 railroad stations in the wheat belt are great piles of grain lying on the ground. Elevators are full and the railroads cannot furnish cars for shipments.
> There is little hope that the railroads can get this crop to market before the 280,000,000 bushels of corn now being harvested are ready for shipment.

In that happy land they do not print Wall Street news. What they want to know is not the price of stocks, but the amount of crops and minerals—new, real wealth—produced. Wall Street cannot hurt Kansas very much, but Kansas may do Wall Street good even against the will of the men who thrive not by producing wealth but by manipulating markets.

There is no blinking this issue. A conspiracy of bosses has undertaken to destroy Mr. JEROME because he cannot be "handled." Their clients do not want Mr. JEROME in the District Attorney's office. If the people of New York County allow this conspiracy to succeed they will have ample occasion during the next four years to lament the consequences of their carelessness and folly.—New York World.

It wae the remark of the veteran politician, THURLOW WEED, in the years when the name of Tammany-Republican first came to be familiar, that "there was no longer any politics in politics." This was the disgusted cry of an old fighter, who was not too scrupulous in his time as to how he won his victories, but who fought for his own side, and looked on the "community of interest" among schemers and plunderers who differ in name but not in purpose with unspeakable contempt. Against this form of corruption Mr. JEROME's campaign is a practical and emphatic protest. Sensible and honest men should unite to make it effective.

Mr. LUCE, Representative in Congress from the Somerville District of Massachusetts, on Saturday defined the issue in that State in the following words:

> Whatever may have been the case in Massachusetts at any other time, the issue now between the parties on the tariff is not between stand pat and tariff revision, it is between immediate tariff revision on our side and wholesale tariff smashing on theirs, without regard to foreign markets or domestic industry.

"Immediate tariff revision" is a cry that, a few years since, would have made every individual hair on the young head of Senator LODGE stand on end like quills upon the fretful porcupine. But he sat on the dais at the dinner at which Mr. LUCE made this announcement and never murmured. Clearly this change is not intended to win Democratic votes; they are not needed in Massachusetts. It is felt to be necessary in order to hold the Republicans who perceive that their State pays heavily for the tariff and gets very little.

Can it be that an Inter-State Commerce Commissioner does not know what he is talking about when he is giving instruction in his specialty? Addressing the Cornell students Commissioner KNAPP said: "The only practical way to accomplish this [establish a standard rate] is to make it a criminal misdemeanor for the carrier to charge more or for the shipper to pay less than the established rate." But the great grievance is that the railways collect less than the established rate from some, thus discriminating against those others who pay the published tariff. Discriminations result from railways charging less than the tariff and some shippers paying more than those who know the ropes. The grievance is the exact reverse of the Commissioner's diagnosis. It is hardly conceivable that railways should charge more than the established rate. His remedy may throw the patient into fits, but there is no certainty that the Commissioner could cure the fits.

ANDREW LEE, former Populist Governor of Iowa; R. F. PETTIGREW, former United States Senator, and associates are organizing a million-dollar telephone company. They were all former trustbusters and former Republican spellbinders, and are now organizing an independent telephone trust. The way to smash a monopoly is to compete with it and not submit to it or ask somebody to make speeches about it or prosecute it. If you want a monopoly smashed smash it yourself.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

Even the Vices Are Not What They Were!

Of course it is absurd to hold anybody closely to the etymology of the words he uses, and yet a man as solemn as Sir EDWARD FRY cannot escape the criticism of not too respectful smiles when, in a lugubrious comparison of what he thinks the bad to-day with what he thinks the good yesterday, he says: "Vulgarity seems inevitably to flow from the diffusion among the many of the things which beforetime belonged only to the few. * * * It seems almost inevitable that whatever popularizes should vulgarize." It does, indeed! But there—the amiable old preterist knew what he meant, even if he didn't say it, and presumably his hearers also knew, since it is said that his address is attracting wide attention in England and has received sober comment from our thundering namesake. The Britishers, apparently, didn't even laugh at Sir EDWARD's moan over the aristocracy's loss of its sometime monopoly of the—at least temporarily—enjoyable vices, or at his lament that the cheapening of travel had permitted the assembling of crowds in all the pleasant or beautiful places of the earth, to the inconvenience and annoyance of those who in the "good old times" could have mooned around in such places to their heart's content, with no danger of sharing their joys into parcels too small. To be sure, Sir EDWARD didn't deny—he explicitly asserted—that the aristocrats still practice their vices as of old, and he was mumpy about that, too, but he made it amusingly plain that he no longer had the sort of respect for certain forms of wickedness that he had when the practice of them was a mark of noble, or at least gentle, birth, and vulgarization had not robbed them of distinction. It is, presumably, a waste of time to find fault with old men who talk in this nonsensical way. That to do it they must ignore innumerable facts visible to all is true, but in every century of which we have any record, many of the best, and in some respects the most intelligent, of men have yielded in their old age to the impulse which Sir EDWARD FRY so amusingly illustrated in his inaugural address at Birkbeck College. It is obvious that they have all been wrong, since things have been getting better, not worse, since long before the beginning of tradition, and show no slightest signs of ever going in the opposite direction. And yet these praisers of the past and contemners of the present—their past and their present, usually—tell a truth as they see it, or rather as they feel it, and their only error is the mistaking of a personal loss for a universal one. What they lament, really, is that the world is no longer what it used to be to themselves, and their contention is pathetic rather than ludicrous.

Earthquakes and the Weather.

In yesterday's dispatches about the earthquake in Jamaica care was taken to say that "it was oppressively hot before the shock." As the dispatches were brief to the exclusion of almost all other details, it is evident that this one was considered of peculiar interest. It is very herd to tell why. To be sure, almost everybody who ever made a first-hand description of an earthquake has expatiated solemnly on the queer meteorological conditions that preceded the disturbance and has assumed, usually without taking the trouble to assert it, that the weather then wae of an uncommon kind and had something to do with, if not actually to cause, the eeiemic disturbance that followed. To say that all these witnesses, every one of whom intended to tell the exact truth, was utterly in the wrong, would be to take a good many chances—more, in fact, than we cnre to risk, and yet we have eomething more than a suspicion that the peculiarities of the weather just before earthquakes are quite imaginary, that there is no such thing as "earthquake weather," and thet just as many earthquakee have followed pleasant as unpleaeant days. For it is a common, and highiy admirable, human trait never to be without an explanation for anything, and when good explanations lack, poor ones seem to eerve about ae well. It is not necessary to queetion that the heat was oppressive in Jamaica before thie earthquake, but if there had been no earthquake to revive memories of the oppression, nobody would ever have thought of distinguishing the day from a hundred or more that the island has every year. Earthquakes travel too fast and too far to be explained by, or even to be related to, tho weather in any limited area.

An Opportunity That Was Neglected.

Presumably that "cousin of Commissioner McADOO" did not consciously argue out in his mind, before he broke the law by over-epeeding his automobile or while he was doing it, that the relationship with a high official made it either right or safe for him to go at any rate that pleased him. Yet that relationship was the very first thing he thought of when "held up" by a policeman, it impelled him to call the policeman "insolent," though no unnecessary peremptoriness seems to have been used, and it lay at the foundation of his fierce threat to have the man "broke" in short order. The Magistrate before whom the misguided cousin of the Commissioner was haled gave him a lecture that was properly severe, telling him many sound and painful truths, hut after the lecture was over and the offender had been reduced to a comparatively commendable state in which he confessed his guilt of overspeeding and had almost withdrawn the charge of insolence, he was allowed to depart unfined. That gives him a right of a kind to believe that, after all, there really is something for a lawbreaker in being the cousin of a Police Commissioner, and it is probable that again as before he will resent interference from a representative of the law with the same queer feeling that it is a special hardship, not suffered by lawbreakers of the common, unrelated-to-the-great quality. The Magistrate explained or justified his leniency by the existence in his mind of a mitigating doubt as to evil intent, and his permitted discretion in matters like this is too large for any except academic criticism of his course to be reasonable. It does seem to be a pity, however, that he did not better utilize the opportunity to weaken, so far as a single sentence could, a dangerous misapprehension that is altogether too widespread. We do not mean by "misapprehensive" that "pull" has yet lost anything like all of its old power, but merely that the power is now much decreased in many places where it was once the only reliance for either profit or safety. We can believe, for instance, that no policeman under Commissioner MCADOO is at all likely to be "broke" for doing his duty in a decent way, no matter whom he may inconvenience, and it seems that it would have been well for the Commissioner's cousin to acquire the same conviction.

DOMESTIC FILTERS UNSAFE.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In a letter to THE TIMES, "R. J." advocates the use of domestic filters to prevent the outbreak of disease epidemics due to impure water. This filtering to continue until such time as the city may see fit to place in operation a municipal filtration system. "R. J." is a poor adviser. Domestic or household filters should not be used. Far from being a help, they are a danger. I fear "R. J." imagines thnt the principle of filtering water by municipal and domestic methods is the same. Such, however, is not the case.

Municipal filters, well managed and with the effluent tested daily, or as often as desired, for its bacterial content, give an efficiency (bacterial) varying from 98 per cent. to 99+ per cent. Does a domestic filter receive such care? There are filters which give a germ-free effluent when properly cared for, but they are at best laboratory instruments, and are safe only under laboratory conditions. If used in the household they do not, can not, receive the attention necessary to their efficient action, and in consequence they create a false sense of security, while, moreover, they will in time give an effluent greater in its bacterial content than the raw or unfiltered water.

The safe way to decrease the danger from epidemics is to follow Dr. Darlington's advice and boil all drinking water for about twenty minutes. This method, while rendering the water to a certain extent unpalatable, is sufficient to kill the vegetating forms of bacteria, leaving only the eporee, and fortunately those of which we need have any great fear, as typhoid or cholera, are non-sporulating, and hence easily killed. WOMEN VIVISECTORS.

A Protest Against Them, and Also Against Anonymous Protesting.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I was glad to see in to-day's TIMEE a protest against the unspeakable horror of the women vivisectors who are to form a class for torturing animals in Chicago, but why should a letter of this sort be signed merely "A Reader," as though the author were afraid or ashamed to enroll himself or herself among the ranks of anti-vivisectionists? Anonymous protesting of this sort can do no good, if, indeed, it does not cast ridicule upon the cause which it is meant to champion.

Concerning the women that are to make up this claes, I join "A Reader" in the prayer that they may "win unenviable fame," to say nothing of ehame, and to hope that at least they are all pledged to spinsterhood. It would be a wicked thing that women who are capable of inflicting needless pain (and the truest science has proved vivisection needlese) upon the so-called "lower animals" should bring forth children, upon whom, also, one cannot but feel sure they would not hesitate to "experiment" to what ever extent the law would allow them.

ELIZABETH BANKS.

New York, Oct. 16, 1905.

An Explanation That Doesn't Explain.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In to-day's issue you ask why Italians are so averse to seek police protection from the tyranny of the Black Hand. Be it remembered that not a thousand years ago in a city not a thousand miles from New Orleans certain American citizens were so incensed at the acquittal of certain Italian residents that they headed a mob and lynched them. Said citizens were never punished for this proceeding, the United States alternately disowning responsibility and threatening Italy. Is it surprising that since that time the Italians should prefer to settle their differences as far as possible anong themselves, and say with Byron:

"A tyrant—but our masters then
Were still at least our countrymen."

An Endowed National Theatre.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

One of the most fitting memorials to the late Sir Henry Irving would be to establish an endowed National Theatre where his ideals could be realized. S. CARMAN HARRIOT.

New York, Oct. 16, 1905.

An M. P. Sent to Prison.

From The London Standard.

John O'Donnell, Nationalist Member of Parliament for South Mayo, was ordered by Mr. Justice Boyd in Dublin Oct. 6 to find bail of £100 for himself, and two sureties of £50 each for his good behavior or go to prison for three months. He refused to give bail.

The charge made against Mr. O'Donnell was that he made a speech at Irishtown, Mayo, on Sept. 3, which the police declared led to an evicted tenant named Slattery forcibly retaking possession of his holding.

Mr. Justice Boyd, in delivering judgment, said the whole tone of bis speech was most violent, and although it might be that O'Donnell did not intend it as an encouragement to violence, he must be held responsible for the meaning attached to his language by the audience. He had said that every time he could get a whack at it he bad broken English law.

LIFE INSURANCE IDEALS.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

By reason of a misapprehension, real or pretended, the daily papers have managed to extract a good deal of entertainment from President McCurdy's explanation of the original theory of mutual life insurance. Nevertheless, Mr. McCurdy was absolutely right. It is well known to all persons acquainted with the history of insurance that the original idea was not that of investment—an accumulation of funds from which a cash profit was to be received—but purely that of protection for one's dependents; in other words, strictly a benevolence.

No expert in life insurance will challenge this statement. In accordance with this idea, the early practice was, not to pay dividends in cash, hut to apply whatever savings or so-called profits might accrue, to the purchase of additional insurance, thus increasing the amount of protection afforded to one's beneficiaries. This is still the prevalent custom in Great Britain in the case of mutual companies, such as the "Old Equitable" of London, the first life insurance company ever organized on a scientific basis. Even in the stock companies of that country, though primarily organized to make money for the stockholders, dividends or bonuses to policy holders are still declared in the form of additional insurance; although the practice prevails of allowing a cash value for such reversionary additions when called for by the insured. The original idea was not that a man would take out an insurance policy with a view to receiving a cash return of profits, which is Mr. McCurdy's position, and that idea does not prevail abroad today to anything like the extent that it has attained in this country.

It is certainly true, however, that in later years in this country the practice has become almost universal of emphasizing the prospect of cash returns, hoth in the form of dividends and of cash surrender values. For many years in its early history the Mutual Life declared all dividends in the form of reversionary additions, but as the plan of withdrawing dividends in cash grew with the flight of time, the Mutual Life finally yielded to the popular demand created by competition, and the payment of dividends in cash became the rule, whether annual or deferred. Likewise, the idea of a cash surrender value of life policies is one of very recent growth, the Mutual Life being one of the last companies to depart from the original theory.

There is no doubt that the plan of enabling the insured, not only to provide for his beneficiary, but likewise to lay up a provision for his own future in the form of cash dividends and cash surrender values, has been a popular one and has contributed largely to the tremendous growth of life insurance in this country. Nevertheless, it is a departure from the original theory of mutual life insurance which President McCurdy's remarks were obviously intended to explain.

To contend that he meant to say that there should be no profits at any time and no dividends at any time is preposterous. It is undoubtedly true that the men who in 1842 founded the Mutual Life expected to derive no profit for themselves. The charter shows this. The profits were to be in additional insurance payable to their families only after the death of the founders, not to themselves in their lifetimes, and in this self-evident sense Mr. McCurdy's statement that dividends—meaning cash dividends—were not thought of is historically accurate. I thoroughly sympathize with Mr. McCurdy's views; the record of his company ehowe that he has successfully dealt with the newer issues which he testified had supplanted earlier ideals.

The Sex of Angels.

Just a word or two more regarding the sex of angels.

I notice that some one of the clergymen stated that the Bible gave no word of women angels. Let me refer you to St. Matthew xxii., verses 24 to 31. The 30th verse states: "For in the resurrection they neither marry, nor are given in marriage, but are as the angels of God in heaven." This speaking, as you will see by the context, of a woman and her husband. I cannot think that death would transform the woman into a man. If she become an angel she still must have been female. Subway Locals.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The charges made in the letter from Mr. Schroeder in to-day's TIMES in re facilities in the Subway during morning hours can be testified to by thousands of disgusted patrons.

Early last week I got on a local end at Worth Street the guard said, "Next stop Bleecker," but when the stop was made we found ourselves at Astor Place. Next day I tried again and got dumped at Worth Street. The following train, about five minutes later, would not take us on, as the guard kindly informed us Astor Place was the first point at which the local would condescend to stop.

Employers will not always stand for men getting in late and the Subway excuse will, I fear, get stale. EAST NEW YORK.

Water Gap Photographs.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

All the indignation against the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western Railroad is not among the Summer boarders and New Yorkers. I notice that one of their large colored photographs of the Water Gap is taken just at the spot where they have built the stone crusher. What a photograph it would make now! J. D. HOLMES.

Composite Pronoun Wanted.

From The London Chronicle.

The want of a composite pronoun to express both "he" and "she," and, what is sometimes more important, to express neither he nor she, must have embarrassed every one at some time or another. There are ungrammatical ways of shelving the difficulty; such as, for instance, by translating the convenient French "on" as "they," when we really mean one person who may be either masculine or feminine. The lack of a portmanteau word to express both sexes without specifying either, did not, however, trouble the new maid who approached her mistress with the ingenious remark: "Please'm, a friend of mine has called—and may I ask it to tea?"

Long Joseph, Seven Feet Ten.

From The London Chronicle.

Frederick the Great's father, Frederick William, the creator of the Prussian Army—whose special mania was the collection of giants from all parts of the earth—would have given something like a King's ransom for "Long Joseph," who has just joined the First Foot Guards at Potsdam, at the age of twenty, with a weight of about eighteen stone and a stature of 7 feet 10 inches—an ugly man, decidedly, to meet in a bayonet melee. Frederick William had a whole regiment of such colossi, known as the Riesengarde, among the tallest of them being one Kirkman, a Scoto-Hibernian, or Ulster Irishman, whose portrait may still be seen in the Palace at Charlottenburg. One of Frederick's first sovereign acts was to disband this preposterous brigade of giants, which had cost the Prussian State about as much as all the rest of its army.

THE REPUBLICAN TICKET.

Criticism of the "Turning Down" of Gildersleeve and Jerome.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

By its action last night in rejecting Mr. Jerome and Judge Gildersleeve the local Republican organization has forfeited its last right to the support of intelligent voters. The aim of such voters should now be to turn it down with a bang that will jar it to its centre, and perhaps shake off the long ears of some of its illustrious members. The most effective means so to do will be to vote for McClellan, for Judges Ingraham and Gildersleeve, and for Mr. Jerome. The rest of the candidates will take care of themselves, the success of the Tammany ticket being a foregone conclusion, but by forcing McClellan far ahead of his ticket his resignation a year from now to become Governor will raise a clear-cut moral issue, which will require all the agility of the professional politician's mind and a suspicious quantity of dust to obscure. INDEPENDENT.

New York, Oct. 14, 1905.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I believe that the Republican Party made a grave mistake in not nominating Mr. Jerome for District Attorney of New York County. It is stated as an excuse that Mr. Jerome would not promise to conduct an anti-Tammany campaign. The reason if correct is not sufficient. The indorsement would have made the Republican ticket more than a football, and insured Mr. Jerome's election. The report that there must have been a deal with Mr. Murphy is now well grounded. There is at least some substantial reason for thinking so. The Republican Party had a chance to do the peopls of New York County a lasting favor by indorsing Mr. Jerome, but preferred rathsr to soothe the bosses.

And yet why do I protest? I am merely a taxpaying citizen, and an ordinary REPUBLICAN VOTER.

New York, Oct. 14, 1905.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

It seems absurd this year to take the Republican Party in New York City at all seriously, or expect from it any consistency whatever, but one cannot help wondering what vagaries of mind or political "deals" governed the Supreme Court nominations of its County Convention. After indorsing Justice Ingraham, with loud protestations that the Republican Party stood for the non-partisanship of the judiciary and the nomination of Judges who hed served their terms faithfully and efficiently, the convention then proceeded to violate this policy directly and flagrantly by "turning down" Justice Gildersleeve, who is, like Justice Ingraham, a candidate for re-election, after having completed his term with high credit, and received the hearty indorsement of the Bar Association, with its warm praise for his efficiency and impartiality.

The leaders apparently tried to avoid the slightest mention of Justice Gildersleeve's name, but even in this machine-made convention there were some delegates sane and courageous enough to protest warmly in his behalf against such unfair and inconsistent action. Their protest was in vain. By what political jugglery the indorsement of Judge Newburger, the new Tammany candidate, was secured, the inner circle of the machine alone knows.

The public, always sensitive on the subject of the judiciary, has one more good reason for burying the Republican ticket particularly deep under an avalanche of votes on election day. G.

CRUM INCIDENT NOT CLOSED.

Charleston Invited the President to Avoid a Breach of Etiquette.

From The Charleston News and Courier.

It is ridiculous to attempt to make it appear that an invitation to the President of the United States to be present when a great warship of the Nation ehall vieit the city whose name she beare has any connection whatever with the action of Mr. Roosevelt in appointing a negro Collector of the Port of Charleston. The people of this city have abated no jot or tittle of the condemnation in which they have always held the appointment of Crum to the office which he still holds. They thought yesterday, and they think to-day, that Mr. Roosevelt wae culpable in that matter to a degree. The wrong which he did then was a wrong done to the whole South, not merely to the City of Charleston; and it is not affected in one way or another by a perfunctory official visit made to him by a committee that went to the capital to invite the head of a great department of the Government to this city in hie represenative capacity.

The Crum incident involved matters of principle which are of profound importance to this city and this section of the country. An official call upon Mr. Roosevelt as President of the United States in the circumstances in which these gentlemen visited him involved nothing more than questione of loyal citizenehip and official good mannere.

Mayor Rhett and hie committee could scarcely have done less than they did without offering an indignity to the President of the United States, but their act of courtesy should not be accepted as proof that the people whom they represent are recreant to their principles and convictions. And we are confident that no one understands this more clearly than does President Roosevelt.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The letter you publish descriptive of twentieth century speed on Long Island cannot surely refer to the Long Island Railroad, else, in common justice, revision is imperative, as follows: Loafing, normal; getting started, presently; under way, but wait; letting her out, can't; going, never. SHAKESPEARE RAMPANT FOR ACTORS' REVEL

"The Taming of the Shrew" as a Riotous Farce.

Mr. Sothern's Petruchio Is Superb, and Miss Marlowe's Katherine Most Engaging Portrait.

If the theatre were not the theatre, and if actors were not—after all—actors, it might seem peculiar that "The Taming of the Shrew" by Shakespeare et al., (and very largely et al.,) should be the subject of revivals, while the bard's other and better plays lie languishing in the closet.

It is not peculiar, however, for the very simple fact that the theatre is the theatre, and in the theatre the acting comes—and, indeed, to an extent ought to come—first and foremost, while the parts to be played by the actors are of very primary importance. Now, whatever may be said for or against this play, it cannot be said that its chief roles do not provide very fair tests for the comic abilities of the actors. And, in providing such tests, it serves a useful, if not to say highly admirable, purpose.

"The Taming of the Shrew," seen at the Knickerbocker Theatre last night, bordered very nearly upon what one might justly term rough-house farce, but, if one may venture an opinion on matters so far removed, it is hardly likely to have exceeded in that respect the boisterousness with which the same play was acted at the Blacke Friers and the Globe.

Possibly, too, at those historic old playhouses Petruchio carried his lady off on the back of a dappled grey, while Grumio rode behind on a speckled ass, though there appears to be no record of the fact. We do know, however, that it was not so many years later that the horse was king on the London boards, and it is reasonable to suppose that the shrewd William would not have hesitated to avail himself of this capital bit of realism if he had thought of it—as Mr. Sothern did.

But though they did strange things in those faraway Elizabethan days, it is doubtful if any actor of Shakespeare's time ever equalled the excess of enthusiasm of last night's Petruchio, who, during the scene with the mutton, and apparently in sheer enjoyment of his masterful and masculine strength, threw the joint clear across the stage into the proscenium box. There it landed upon the lap of a very pretty and very blushing young woman who was apparently learning for the first time the lesson of this "very moral play."

These incidents are cited because to an extent they indicate the keynote of this revival. That was one of boisterous good humor throughout. And let us hasten to remark that we see no particular reason why it should have been so. Even persons who take their Shakespeare most seriously and most reverently can find little cause for objections here.

Mr. Daly's production, it may be argued, brought more restraint and a finer pictorial environment. Possibly. But was there any more justification for that? One need not go further than Taine's description of the stage of Shakespeare's time to realize what sort of presentation this farce must have had in its author's time.

It was surely a case of shout and storm and tear ad lib. Mr. Sothern, probably realizing that fact, has taken full advantage of it. And the result is a Taming of the Shrew which, though noisy throughout, is never so excessively loud that the value of the two main characters is diminished.

As a matter of fact it has been a long time since Mr. Sothern has been seen to such excellent advantage. He lacks possibly the dynamic force which one would associate with Petruchio's more tempestuous moments, but who, other than a Salvini, could possibly sound the top notes of his wild and extravagant humor? Certainly no actor whom we have seen in the rôle. And to counterbalance this one shortcoming Mr. Sothern brings a very rare quality of sympathetic humor. The most striking feature of his performance is his ability in suggesting—very delicately but very pointedly—that Petruchio's approximation to madness is in reality largely feigned; one sees and feels that underneath all this roughness of exterior and pose of savage power there is a quality of gentleness and kindness.

He has set out to tame the shrew in the manner that seems best to him, and he persists in his purpose until the end is achieved, but there can be no doubt in the mind of the auditor that once Katherina has become tractable she will find little to complain of in the attitude of her lord and master. Mr. Sothern also enforces this idea with bits of business that are both delicate and suggestive, as when, after he has brought Katherina to his home, he kisses the little shoes and stockings she has hung by the fire to dry. Now this may or may not be in the character of the man as Shakespeare conceived him. But it is human, and if one believes that lovers all the world over and at all times are "still but lovers," the business seems plausible enough.

Miss Marlowe's Katherine is also a most engaging study. There is, to be sure, little in the actual text to justify the fiction that commentators have woven into her qualities, but stage tradition and the weight of many arguments have combined to place Katherine before us as a person by no means so black as she was painted. And every actress who has ever played the role has tried to realize her in the charitable aspect. Thus accepting Katherine we find Miss Marlowe succeeding. She grinds her heels into Petruchio's toes, she scratches, she threatens his head with a wooden shoe, she bites—but, somehow, you feel that her bark is really very much worse than her bite, and you are ready to offer yourself as a willing substitute in case Petruchio retreats.

Comparisons with Miss Rehan are inevitable, but we shall be glad to know in what respect, if any, the rôle suffers as Miss Marlowe conceives it. There might be more tempestuousness, there might be, on occasion, a more violent upflaring, but it is doubtful whether the scenes of the Shrew's taming have ever been more exquisitely played.

Mr. Sothern's version omits the scenes of the induction and Christopher Sly, and it is to be questioned whether enough of the text is retained to make the intrigues of Lucentio entirely plain to auditors who have not read the play. There is added vagueness in the retention of the character of the Pedant, whose purpose hardly becomes apparent to uninformed listeners until the subsequent appearance of Vincentio.

The well marked peculiarities of Rowland Buckstone are suitable enough to Grumio, with which part he did no more and no less than other actors who have vainly tried to make it play as amusingly as it reads. Mr. Crompton provides a mellow and dignified characterization, and Mr. De Cordoba is a fairly competent Hortensio. The others are of about average indifference. In the case of most of them it matters little, for their presence is only incidental. The Biondello of Frank Reicher, however, is so hopelessly out of the atmosphere that it has a deterrent effect on the scene in which he appears.

"THE TRUTH TELLERS."

At the Grand Opera House last night Martha Morton's dramatization of "The Truth Tellers" was seen for the first time in this city, after a period of success on the road. The play was well received, and there was much applause. "The Truth Tellers" will be reviewed in THE TIMES to-morrow.

"Miss Dolly Dollars" Moves.

Lulu Glaser and "Miss Dolly Dollars" moved from the Knickerbocker Theatre and began a two weeks' engagement last evening at the New Amsterdam.

D'ORSAY IN A NEW PLAY.

Panama Politics Touched In Thomas's "The Embassy Ball."

Special to The New York Times.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Oct. 16.—Lawrence D'Orsay appeared here to-night for the first time in "The Embassy Ball," a four-act comedy by Augustus Thomas.

The play is based on a trade in rubber properties in Colombia during the Panama-Colombia war, and the scenes take place at the British Embassy in Washington and otherwise in that city. A love affair between Captain Hawarden Kellie (D'Orsay) and Miss Jarrett (Charlotte Walker) starts in a mistake in Paris, when they take out a marriage license instead of a bicycle permit and ends happily in Washington.

MRS. CARTER IN "DU BARRY."

Charles Stevenson In His Old Role of Louis XV. in the Revival.

Mrs. Leslie Carter appeared last evening at the Belasco Theatre in a revival of "Du Barry." Her audience rewarded her efforts with generous and enthusiastic applause.

In Mrs. Carter's support, Charles Stevenson again appeared in the rôle of Louis XV. to advantage, while the remainder of the company was fully equal to the demands of the play.

AT THE THEATRES YESTERDAY

"Nancy Brown," with Mary Marble in the title role, began a week's engagement last evening at the Fourteenth Street Theatre. The audience seemed to be especially pleased with Miss Marble's portrayal, and encored her many songs again and again. The musical comedy was effectively put on.

"The Banker's Daughter," the second of Bronson Howard's plays to be revived at the Fifth Avenue Theatre, was presented twice yesterday by the Proctor stock company. The leading parts were ably handled by Amelia Bingham and Charles Richman. The matinee performance was a "Bingham" matinee, and appropriate souvenirs were distributed.

Ephraim Thompson's troupe of trained elephants was the top liner at the Colonial. The act seemed to win the approval of the patrons, especially the children's. Others who entertained were Carmencita, Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Drew, Edward Blondell, the Musical Avollos, and the Lloyd brothers.

The Zancigs were the star features at Hurtig & Seamon's. They gave an exhibition of telepathy to the mystification of the audience. Byers and Hermann, Ward and Curran, Carlin and Otto, Maddox and Melvin, and Edwin Keogh were others on the programme.

Raymond Hitchcock began a week's engagement at the Harlem Opera House last evening, presenting his new comedy, "Easy Dawson," which recently was seen at Wallack's. He was supported by the same company as when last seen in the city.

Herbert Kelcey and Effie Shannon appeared in "A String of Pearls" at Proctor's Fifty-eighth Street Theatre. Katie Barry was also on the bill. The programme included, besides these entertainers, James Dolan, Ida Lenharr, Delmore and Lee, and the Transatlantic Four.

"My Tomboy Girl," with Lottie Williams, was the offering at the American. The piece seemed to go as well as when last seen here.

Eva Tanguay began an engagement at the West End last evening in her new production, "The Sambo Girl." Miss Tanguay was well received.

"Marching Through Georgia," which was recently produced at the Fourteenth Street Theatre, returned to the city last evening at the Metropolis for a week's run.

At the Yorkville Theatre the stock company revived "The Sign of the Four," with Eugene Moore and Mabel Montgomery in the principal roles.

"The Curse of Drink" was put on at the Murray Hill, and will continue throughout the week.

The bill for the week at the Circle is "The Dainty Duchess." Specialties are introduced throughout the performance.

"Queen of the Highbinders" was the attraction at the New Star. The melodrama was full of sensational scenic features and emotional thrills.

At the Eden Musee the finish of the motor race for the Vanderbilt Cup was shown by the pictures of the cinematograph. New figures have been added to the world in wax, while the concerts are an additional inducement.

"The Still Alarm," Joseph Arthur's melodrama, was revived at Proctor's 125th Street Theatre at the two performances yesterday. The cast was headed by William J. Kelley and Beatrice Morgan.

Lillian Russell was the feature at Proctor's Twenty-third Street Theatre, appearing in an entirely new singing specialty. Edwin Stevens was an extra offering on the bill. Others were Watson, Hutchings and Edwards, Charles F. Seamon, and Gillett's dogs.

Heading Keith's programme was the Auguost family, an excellent troupe of jugglers and acrobats. The remainder of the list of attractions included Will M. Cressy and Blanche Dayne in "Town Hall To-night," Murphy and Nichols in "From Zaza to Uncle Tom," the village choir, Flying Rathbuns, Coakley and McBride, Ed Rice, Kenyon and de Garmo, Althea twins, and Robin Heath.

James T. Powers was the head-liner at the Alhambra. Mme. Remington and her buster browniles, Bruno and Russell, Sidney Grant, La Mas Anders, the three Yoscarys, and the moving pictures completed the programme.

The attractions that remain in the city are: "A Yankee Circus on Mars" and "The Raiders" at the Hippodrome, Joseph Wheelock, Jr., in "Just Out of College" at the Lyceum, Arnold Daly in "John Bull's Other Island" at the Garrick, Thomas Jefferson in "Rip Van Winkle" at Wallack's, Chauncey Olcott in "Edmund Burke" at the Majestic, John Drew in "De Lancey" at the Empire, James K. Hackett and Mary Mannering in "The Walls of Jericho" at the Savoy, David Warfield in "The Music Master" at the Bijou, "The Virginian" at the Academy, Robert Loraine in "Man and Superman" at the Hudson, Henry E. Dixey in "The Man on the Box" at the Madison Square, Maxine Elliott in "Her Great Match" at the Criterion, Margaret Anglin in "Zira" at the Princess, "It Happened in Nordland" and the burlesque of "The Music Master" at Lew Fields's, De Wolf Hopper in "Happyland" at the Lyric, "The Rogers Brothers in Ireland" at the Liberty, "The Pearl and the Pumpkin" at the Broadway, Edna May in "The Catch of the Season" at Daly's, McIntyre and Heath in "The Ham Tree" at the New York, and "Fruelingsluft" at the Irving Place.

THEATRICAL NOTES.

Margaret Wycherly has been engaged by the Shuberts to play the principal role in the production of "The Nazarene." Ernest Hastings will play the opposite part.

Matinées will be resumed on Thursdays at the Princess Theatre, where Margaret Anglin is playing in "Zira."

Mme. Lillian Blauvelt will make her last appearance in concert before her starring tour next Sunday afternoon at Carnegie Hall, under the auspices of St. Cecile Lodge, No. 568, F. and A. M.

THREE WOMEN ON LIST OF CARNEGIE HEROES

One Lost Her Life, But Husband Gets Medal and $1,000.

SEVEN MEN ARE HONORED

One of Them Perished in a Mine, but His Widow Receives Substantial Token in His Memory.

Special to The New York Times.

PITTSBURG, Oct. 16.—The Carnegie Hero Fund Commission held a meeting to-day and made ten awards, as follows:

Maude Titus, 16 years old, of Newark, N. J., a high school girl, a silver medal for saving life July 30, 1904, in Casco Bay, near Yarmouth, Me. She was one of a party of ten on the yacht of Capt. Burgess of Boston. Miss Titus risked her own life to save that of Miss Laura V. Reifsnyder of East Orange, N. J., who was thrown into the water and who could not swim.

Miss Anna Margaret Cunningham, aged 20, a nurse in the Savannah (Ga.) Hospital, gets a bronze medal for saving Edwin W. Cubbage, Jr., from drowning May 26, 1905, at Savannah.

William C. Brune, aged 17, of Sandusky, Ohio, gets a bronze medal for saving George P. Pfanner, aged 9, from drowning July 8, 1904. Brune dived three times for the boy.

Arthur J. Gottschalk, aged 24, of Lancaster, N. Y., receives a bronze medal for saving the life of Mrs. Joseph Webster of Detroit, Mich., July 6, 1904. The woman had a fit while on the pier of the Crystal Beach Company, opposite Buffalo, and fell into the water. Gottschalk went to save Mrs. Webster, who overturned his canoe and almost drowned him.

George F. Russell, aged 24, Groton, Conn., bronze medal for rescuing Paul F. Winslow, aged 14, and Frank G. Baer, aged 15, from drowning in Long Island Sound, off New London, Conn., July 29, 1904.

Arthur A. Ross, 23 years old, of Foxborough, Mass., receives a bronze medal for saving the lives of Nellie T. Welsh, 18 years old, and Mamie H. Welsh, 17, who had been thrown into a swift-running stream on April 19, 1905.

Mrs. Daniel Davis of Cleveland, Ohio, receives a silver medal and $1,000 to educate her children. Her husband, Daniel Davis, July 11, 1904, lost his life trying to save William Monroe, a miner who had been overcome in a shaft of the Somers Mining Company, at Sherodsville, Ohio.

Wade H. Plummer, 15 years old, of Lamar, S. C., receives a silver medal and $600 to complete his education. He saved the lives of two companions who were thrown into the water with him, May 7, 1904, in Lynch's River.

To Michael A. Doyle of Quebec was awarded a silver medal for saving the life of Miss Charlotte L. Decastner, 17 years old, who had fallen into the St. Lawrence River, which was filled with floating ice.

NOVELTY AT HAMMERSTEIN'S.

A London Comedy Pantomime Company in "The Mumming Birds."

At Hammerstein's Victoria Theatre yesterday afternoon and evening Fred Karno's original London comedy pantomime company of fourteen players was seen for the first time in America. The English pantomimists presented their original one-act farce, "The Mumming Birds; or, A Night in an English Music Hall." The audience seemed to like the show.

When the curtain goes up a stage within a stage is shown, with boxes on each side. The boxes are filled with spectators, who are waiting for the performance to begin. In one box are a man and his son, whose actions in an effort to embarrass the performers furnish the fun. The specialties are much the same as those commonly seen in a vaudeville theatre.

Others on the bill were the Empire City Quartet, Marshall P. Wilder, Ed Raynard, the Mason-Keller company, Pat Rooney and Marion Burt, Keno, Welch and Melrose; Mlle. Celeste, and Alexander Leo Nino, violinist.

PARIS AUTUMN SALON OPENS.

American Artists Well Represented in the Works Shown.

PARIS, Oct. 16.—The Autumn Salon was opened to-day at the Grand Palace. There was a large gathering of officials and artists.

Among the notable pictures are Manet's "Execution of the Emperor Maximilian," Seyssaud's "Rural Life," and Eliot's "Montmartre Views."

The American artists are well represented.

"The Pink Hussars" Out In Chicago.

CHICAGO, Oct. 16.—The initial performance of "The Pink Hussars," a musical comedy, was given at the Chicago Opera House to-night. John Slavin, who takes the leading part, had a favorable reception from a large audience. The comedy is by Julian Edwards and Alfred E. Aarons.

"FRITZ IN TAMMANY HALL."

A Large Audience Sees Cawthorn in Political Comedy.

Joseph Cawthorn played a few negro melodies on his concertina last night at the Herald Square Theatre, where a large audience stood three hours of "Fritz in Tammany Hall," an east side musical comedy without the east side and minus Tammany Hall. In fact the only thing that flavored of the east side was Ada Lewis as a tough girl, who aroused some enthusiasm singing "East Side Lil."

The first act, showing Cooper Union in the distance, brought out Fritz von Swobenfritz, a German baker, running for Alderman. Mr. Cawthron perspired under the strain of carrying a dialogue in Tenth Avenue German dialect, where, for instance, when asked his age, he replied: "Forty-one times old," instead of getting down to good old Avenue A Dutch, "I'm between forty-one."

He had a good opportunity of making a hit in the song, "In Bad Man's Land," and did fairly well with the aid of fifteen children who grouped about him and joined in the chorus. This helped to elect the German baker to the Board of Aldermen, and he gave his friends a political picnic at Donnelly's Grove, College Point, famous for its Tammany picnics. But on this occasion there were women at the College Point picnic, which made Donnelly's look like Jones's Wood in the old days.

The audience applauded Ada Lewis as Lil McGrain, the manicure girl, and also applauded a joke in which a newsboy, when asked what his father did for a living, answered: "He don't work, he votes."

There was a sprinkling of politicians in the audience, including Big Tim Sullivan and Sheriff Erlanger, but Sullivan disappeared before the first act ended. He did not wait to see the Dutch Alderman come into the Tammany Hall ballroom to play his concertina, nor did he wait to see the police ballet, the Chinatown ballet, or the Indian ballet. But when Mr. Cawthorne played his concertina the audience applauded and got more music than they did out of the rest of the show.

MISS RING WOULDN'T PLAY.

She Became Angry When Lew Fields Told Her Not to "Guy."

Blanche Ring, who has been playing in "It Happened in Nordland" and in the burlesque of "The Music Master" at the Lew Fields Theatre, was not at the theatre last evening. Her parts were played by Pauline Frederick and Helen Canting. Mr. Fields was not aware of Miss Ring's determination not to play until a few minutes before 7 o'clock last night, when Miss Ring telephoned that she would not go on.

At the Saturday night performance, according to Fields, Miss Ring "guyed" the players on the stage. She also introduced a song without Fields's permission. After the curtain had rung down, Fields told Miss Ring that he did not care to have her "guy" on the stage, especially when the audience did not understand it. Miss Ring said later that Mr. Fields had insulted her.

On Sunday afternoon the actress sent for her personal manager, F. K. McKay, and informed him that unless Mr. Fields apologized to her she would not appear on the stage. Later, however, the matter was seemingly patched up and Mr. Fields dismissed the incident. When he reached the theatre at 7 o'clock last night he was informed that Miss Ring would not appear.

Mr. Fields said last night:

"There certainly was no thought of insulting Miss Ring. I merely suggested to her that I did not care to have her 'guy' on the stage. As far as apologizing is concerned, there is nothing to apologize for."

A $21,000,000 CAR ORDER.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 16.—The Pennsylvania Railroad Company is about to place the largest single equipment order in its history. It consists of 500 locomotives and 15,000 freight cars. Plans have been made with the Baldwin Locomotive Works for the building of 250 locomotives and 250 more are to be built at the company's shops at Juniata. Bids for the construction of the freight cars have been invited, and the order will be placed within a few weeks.

The value of the combined order is placed at $21,250,000. Of this amount, $15,000,000 will be expended on cars. The contract to be given the Baldwins is estimated at $3,125,000. It is probable that the motive power order will be increased before the first of the present order has been received.

The Pressed Steel Car Company, the Standard Steel Car Company, the American Car and Foundry Company, the Cambria Steel Company, and the Middletown Car Works are probable bidders for the car order.

A DAY'S WEDDINGS.

RABORG—VYSE.

Miss Marie Vyse, the youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas S. Vyse, and the sister of Mrs. E. Bertram Lyon and of Mrs. William H. Pendleton, was married yesterday afternoon at St. Leo's Roman Catholic Church, East Twenty-eighth Street, to Thomas Mason Raborg. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Father Thomas Ducey, rector of the church. Miss Belle Vyse, a sister of the bride, was maid of honor. H. Mason Raborg was the bridegroom's best man. Among the ushers were Henry Richmond Taylor, James Cotting, Newbold Morris, Ernest Iselin, Henry Worthington Bull, Lycargus Winchester, and Edmund Fairfax. A reception followed the ceremony at Sherry's, for which a large number of invitations were issued. The bride is a relative of Mrs. Frederick Neilson and Mrs. Reginald Vanderbilt, and one of the most popular members of the Richmond Country Club set. The bridegroom comes from an old Virginia family. Among those at the reception were Mrs. H. Mason Raborg, Miss Livingston, Mr. and Mrs. Beverley Robinson, Mr. and Mrs. L. B. Neilson, Miss Minton, Mrs. Oswald Jackson, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Bonner, Mr. and Mrs. Frederick O. Spedden, Miss Blanche Cruger, the Misses Bouvier, Mr. and Mrs. Alexander D. Shaw, Mrs. Ernest Iselin, Miss Harriot Duer Robinson, Mrs. Davidge, and Miss Davidge.

WHAT IS DOING IN SOCIETY.

Among those who opened their New York houses yesterday were Mr. and Mrs. Harry S. Lehr, Mr. and Mrs. Charles B. Hillhouse, and Mr. and Mrs. George R. Schieffelin.

⁂

Henry T. Sloane and the Misses Jessie and Emily Sloane are at the Hotel Buckingham. They will remain there until their new residence, 18 East Sixty-eighth Street, is completed.

⁂

Miss Gladys Vanderbilt was in New York on Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. H. McK. Twombly and Miss Twombly at the Hotel St. Regis. They arrived on Saturday evening from Shelburne Farms, where they attended the wedding of Miss Webb and Mr. Pulitzer. Miss Vanderbilt will visit Florham, the country estate of Mr. and Mrs. Twombly, at Madison, N. J.

⁂

Mr. and Mrs. Reginald Vanderbilt have gone to Kansas City for the Horse Show. They will return to Newport next week.

⁂

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Witherbee and Miss Witherbee have returned from abroad. They will open their town house in November.

⁂

Col. and Mrs. John Jacob Astor have been entertaining a large house party at Ferncliff. Miss Cynthia Roche was among the guests.

⁂

The engagement is announced of Miss Mary Lanman Prentice to Frederick Adams Russell of Winchester, Mass. Miss Prentice is the daughter of N. Sartelle Prentice of 85 East Fifty-sixth Street.

⁂

Mrs. Augustine Nicholas Lawrence and Miss Lawrence have cards out for a tea at the Nevada on Saturday, Nov. 4.

Allen-Hemphill Engagement.

At a tea yesterday afternoon in the Brooklyn Navy Yard, Capt. and Mrs. J. N. Hemphill announced the engagement of their daughter, Edith Stark Hancock to Walter H. Allen, Civil Engineer of the United States Navy.

MUSURGIA ADMITS WOMEN AFTER 22 YEARS' BAR

Singing Society Finds a Mixed Chorus Indispensable.

PLANS MORE AMBITIOUS WORK

Liszt's "St. Elizabeth" Will Be the First Work Given Under the New Plan.

After existing for twenty-two years aloof from femininity, the Musurgia, one of New York's oldest and most famous male singing societies, last night admitted women singers. At its first rehearsal of the season, in preparation for its first concert, on Dec. 4, a female chorus sang with the men the selections from Liszt's "St. Elizabeth," which will take up the second part of the programme. Although the male chorus will be preserved and will be heard, it is probable that the Musurgia will never again declare its independence of women.

When the Musurgia was first organized by William R. Chapman, its set purpose was to keep away from feminine influences. Even though Mr. Chapman left it nine years ago and formed the Apollo Club, this purpose was kept so well under Frank Damrosch that the Apollo Club reentered its fold two years ago, and it went on stronger than ever. The time of its strength, however, was the time for the revolution. Led by William Henry Hall, its conductor, the leading men in the society decided to undertake more ambitious work, and it was found that women must be called in to make that possible.

"We concluded that the number of men's choruses made a change desirable," said Mr. Hall yesterday. "Besides the German organizations, the Mendelssohn Glee Club, the University Glee Club, the Banks Glee Club, and others, with ours, filled the field. However, there was a great opportunity here to fill a place that has never been filled—like that occupied by the famous St. Cecilia Society in Boston, which sings the dramatic cantatas, the shorter forms of oratorio. Almost every large city in the country is familiar with such music, but New York has not had opportunity to hear it, as there has been nothing between the Musical Arts Society and the Oratorio Society.

"One great trouble experienced in New York in giving oratorio has been with the male choruses, where weakness has existed. We start out with our strength in the male chorus.

"In selections from 'St. Elizabeth' at our first concert we will give New York an opportunity to hear a work that has not been sung here for fifteen years, when Theodore Thomas conducted it, except that the Brooklyn Oratorio Society sang it five years ago."

Mr. Hall for several weeks has been busy choosing voices for the female chorus. He has found plenty of enthusiasm among the women singers of the city and has almost filled the quota.

It is planned to have about 150 voices, equally divided. The men will continue their organization, and will be drilled in male chorus selections, as in the past, at their Waldorf-Astoria concerts. Part of the programmes will be given up to them, the first half being so devoted in the initial Carnegie Hall concert.

FOUR HURT BY BLAST.

Excavators Set Off a Small Earthquake in Harlem.

Three men and a boy were hurt in a blast fired at 122d Street and Amsterdam Avenue about dusk last evening which sent a shower of stone high in the air and broke windows and street lamps a block away. The injured are Thomas Brady, 173 East 125th Street, fracture of the left leg; Hugh McCourt, 646 Third Avenue, contusions and left shoulder fractured; Thomas Villass of 611 West 130th Street, left arm broken, and Samuel Bernstein, 5 years old, of 1,256 Amsterdam Avenue, contusions on back.

Excavators set off the blast about 6 o'clock. Thomas Brady, who is a plumber, was on his way home and stopped to watch the blast. Near him were Villass and young Bernstein. All three were swept off their feet by the flying rock and McCourt, who was one of the laborers on the job, was knocked down. The entire neighborhood was aroused by the explosion and the crash of glass.

VANDERBILT'S HORSES FIRST.

KANSAS CITY, Oct. 16.—Reginald Vanderbilt's Tiger Lily won the $500 cup in the breeders' class for stallions in a field of nine entries at the Horse Show to-day. Mr. Vanderbilt's team, Astonishment and Amazement, won the blue ribbon for horses shown before a brougham.

Carter Heresy Case Again.

The heresy charges which were brought last year in the Presbytery of Nassau Long Island, against the Rev. Dr. Samuel T. Carter, and which were not acted upon by that Presbytery, are to be renewed at the meeting of the Synod of the State of New York, which begins its annual session in Syracuse this evening. Dr. Carter will not attend the meeting, as he sails on the Slavonia this morning for Naples, where he probably will remain a year.

Gen. Greene Is for Jerome.

Among the passengers who arrived on the Red Star liner Zeeland last night was Gen. Francis Vinton Greene. Gen. Greene was accompanied by Mrs. Greene, and was on the other side less than two weeks. When told that District Attorney Jerome was running for re-election without the indorsement of any party, Gen. Greene said he hoped Jerome would win.

A HILL TALE

A Blunt old Colorado Miner on Postum.

A clergyman may be eloquent, may use the choicest language, dressing his earnest desire to help his fellowman in the most elevated, chaste, and beautiful language, and yet not touch the hearts of his hearers. Another man, having little education and no grace of speech whatsoever, may tell his message in the common, everyday vernacular he is used to, and the simple faith that glows within him carries quick conviction with it. Such a man writes from the towering peaks of Colorado, preaching of Postum:

"I had drank coffee all my life until it about killed me, when I concluded to try Postum, and in a short time I got relief from the terrible misery I suffered from coffee.

"When I drank coffee I bloated up so that I could not breathe at times; my nerves were so shaky that I could not hold myself still.

"But, thanks to Postum, I am all well now and can say that I hope to remain so.

"I was very much disgusted with it the first time I tried it, but had it made stronger and boiled longer till it tasted as good as good coffee."

No amount of rhetorical frills and literary polish could add to the convincing power of the old miner's testimony. Name given by the Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

KING EDWARD FOR PEACE.

Hopes Better Communications Will Promote Good-Will.

LONDON, Oct. 16.—King Edward to-day laid the foundation stone of the immense new General Post Office buildings on the site on Newgate Street formerly occupied by Christ's Hospital.

He concluded a brief speech by saying that he earnestly hoped the additional facilities for inter-communication would assist in binding the empire closer "and in establishing among the nations of the world that peace and good-will which I have so much at heart."

IRVING TO LIE IN ABBEY.

Dean of Westminster Heeds Petition Signed by Eminent Persons.

LONDON, Oct. 16.—The Dean of Westminster, the Very Rev. Joseph Armitage Robinson, announced this evening that, having received a request signed by leading members of the dramatic profession and other persons of distinction, he had consented to the interment of the body of Sir Henry Irving in Westminster Abbey.

Baroness Burdett-Coutts, who for many years had been a friend of Sir Henry, besides signing the request to the Dean, offered to place her house in Stratton Street, Piccadilly, at the disposal of the Irving family on the day of the funeral, owing to the inconvenience of starting the funeral procession from the apartments that had been occupied by Sir Henry.

The leading actors and managers at a meeting here this afternoon decided to follow the coffin on foot. The nature of the memorial to Sir Henry will be the subject of another meeting.

The Gambler.

And why do you grow thus hysterical over it?

Because of its pull on the sympathies. When a woman in a book comes out of its pages and grips you like one in real life; when you get all a-tremble for fear that she may do this thing and groan and moan because she does do that; when, in a word, she seems so real that your interest is personal and you worry over her, then there is every reason to exult — Cleveland Leader.

THE FINANCIAL MARKETS

Stocks Dull; Call Money Rates, 3@6 Per Cent.

Prices Undergo Small Changes in an Inactive Market—Exchange Advances.

There was a sharp contraction in the volume of trading on the Stock Exchange yesterday, transactions falling to some 373,000 shares, which is the smallest full day's business since July 26 last, when sales aggregated 321,468 shares. The first two hours of the market session witnessed whatever there was of activity during the day, and within this period there fell the day's declines. These were as moderate as the buying and selling, in few cases exceeding fractions. From the noon hour on trading dwindled and prices hardened to such an extent that the close found only minor changes in the general list obtaining at the close on Saturday. Perhaps the most direct influence on the morning trading was the establishment of a rate of 6 per cent. for call money, this coming in conjunction with the fragment of the final installment in the recent Japanese loan, and sharp advances in demand sterling and the price of gold in the London market. Later call money eased off to 3 per cent. under free offerings of the funds turned in on Japanese loan subscriptions, and this easier position of the money market contributed materially to the more confident tone of the afternoon market. Little significance attached to the movements of individual stocks during the day. Certain of the high priced issues, including Lackawanna, Jersey Central, Delaware and Hudson, and Pullman rose sharply, Delaware touching a new high record at 498½. Union Pacific, the most active stock of the list, gained an eighth of a point, and changes in other active issues were equally unimportant.

The most interesting developments of the day concerned the change in our gold importing status, brought about by the movements in sterling exchange and bar gold and discount rates abroad. The advance of demand sterling to 4.8605 marks a rate 1¼ cents above the low mid-September quotation, when engagements were freely made, and the rise of ⅝d in the price of gold bars and eagles in the London market to the highest quotations of the present season work together to create an exchange situation which seems, for the moment at least, to put an end to imports. The rise in exchange was attributed largely to the covering of finance bills, while the advances in gold appear to represent London's unwillingness to part with the metal. It has been found before, however, and even in the present season, that the exchange situation is subject to quick and radical changes. An influx of cotton or grain bills might induce such a change. The abrupt movement of currency to New Orleans may have some bearing on cotton exports. Some $220,000 was shipped to that city yesterday, making $1,470,000 forwarded since Saturday morning, while $300,000 was received yesterday from San Francisco. Discount rates at Berlin rose ¼ yesterday, establishing a rate of 4½ per cent., compared with 3⅝ per cent. a week ago.

FOREIGN EXCHANGE RATES UP.

Condition of the Market Suggests an Outward Movement of Gold Soon.

Foreign exchange rates rose sharply yesterday, the price of demand sterling being quoted 25 points higher at 4.8605. The purchase of exchange to cover maturing finance bills was probably the chief factor in the market. The strength of the exchange market, removing as it did all thought of further gold imports for the time being, brought forth suggestions of the possibility of an outward movement of gold in the near future.

The need of covering many bills that will mature this month and next, coupled with the possibility of the transfer from this city to London of the Japanese credits in New York, makes the present position of foreign exchange an exceptionally strong one for this season of the year. The offering a little later of cotton and grain bills may offset the demands for remittance, but a postponement of the usual Fall supply of commercial bills might result in maintaining for some time relatively high rates for exchange.

Payment was made yesterday of the balance due on the subscriptions to the last issue of $50,000,000 Japanese bonds. The full amount due under the terms of the issue was about $40,000,000, but payments made in advance reduced this by about half. The highest rate for call money yesterday despite the day's heavy payments was 6 per cent.

The Sub-Treasury yesterday transferred $220,000 to New Orleans, making a total of $1,470,000 sent to that city in the last two days. The Sub-Treasury also received $300,000 from San Francisco.

Chicago Terminal Meeting To-morrow.

The Directors of the Chicago Terminal Transfer Company elected at the recent annual meeting of the stockholders will meet to-morrow to organize for the coming year. As the bonds are in default, it is in the power of the holders to foreclose the mortgage and secure title to the property. It is expected, however, that a formal reorganization will not be resorted to.

ADVANCE IN WABASH BONDS.

Gives Rise to Reports That the Goulds Will Pay the Interest.

Wabash debenture B bonds rose yesterday from 73¾ to 76½. The activity of the bonds was the basis of varying reports in regard to the probability of interest being paid on them in the near future. In some quarters the view was expressed that the movement was a speculative one, while in others importance was attached to promises said to have been made some time ago by the Goulds that the payment of interest on the bonds would not be much longer delayed.

Some holders of the debentures supported Joseph Ramsey, Jr., in his contest for the Presidency of the Wabash, in the belief that he would favor the early payment of interest. His downfall leaves the question of the payment of interest in the hands of the Goulds.

A. D. Palmer, counsel to Mr. Ramsey, returned yesterday from St. Louis. Mr. Ramsey is still in that city. Mr. Palmer said that the question of testing in the courts the legality of the recent Wabash election had been left to Mr. Ramsey's Ohio attorneys, who would probably reach a decision within a few days. Mr. Ramsey will probably remain in the West for a fortnight.

GREEN BAY BONDS COMING IN.

Movement of the Debenture B Holders to Get Some of the Profits.

Yesterday was the last day for the deposit of Green Bay and Western debenture B bonds with the committee representing the bondholders. The United States Trust Company of 45 Wall Street is the depositary. The bonds came in by the hundred yesterday, and the clerks had all they could do to handle them. What plan will be followed by the bondholders' committee in its demands has not been disclosed.

"We are not making our plans known," said the Chairman of the committee, "because the bonds are not all in yet. They tell me at the United States Trust Company that all the bondholders seem to be joining in the movement. Any one who doesn't come in is foolish.

"The holders of the debenture B's have no representation on the Board of Directors. After 5 per cent. is paid on the stock and 5 per cent. on the A bonds, the B's should receive some of the profits. The bondholders believe they have something coming to them, and they are going to try to get it."

MONEY AND EXCHANGE.

Money on call loaned at 3@6 per cent., closing at 3¾ per cent. Most of the day's loans were made at 5¾ per cent.

Time money rates, 5@5½ per cent. for sixty days to four months and 4¾@5 per cent. for six months.

Mercantile paper rates, 5@5½ per cent. for sixty to ninety days' indorsed bills receivable and choice four to six months' single names, and 6 per cent. for others.

Clearing House statement: Exchanges, $177,115,756; balances, $8,277,653. The Sub-Treasury debit balance was $375,847.

Foreign exchange was steady. Nominal rates were $4.83 for sixty days and $4.87 for demand. Rates for actual business were as follows: Sixty days, $4.8240; demand, $4.8605; cables, $4.8660; commercial bills, $4.81¾@$4.82½.

Commercial bills were quoted: Francs, 5.20⅝ and 5.17⅜@5.17½; reichsmarks, 94 5-16 and 95 1-32; guilders, 39 13-16 and 40 plus 1-16.

LONDON STOCK MARKET.

LONDON, Oct. 16.—Money was in somewhat better supply in the market to-day by the payment of the Egyptian unified debt coupon and other dividends. Discounts were firm, being helped by the coming issue of Treasury bills. The sum of 15,000,000 rupees in gold left India Oct. 14 for London.

Prices on the Stock Exchange were fairly steady, there was an exceedingly quiet tendency, and the tone was undecided. Consols closed easier.

Americans opened dull at a shade above parity. Prices weakened somewhat later and closed easy, several stocks being slightly above the lowest quotations of the day. In other sections prices were mostly stationary.

Peruvians were firm on Continental buying.

Gold premiums are quoted at Madrid at 28.52, and at Lisbon at 4.50.

Bullion amounting to £15,000 was taken into the Bank of England on balance to-day.

LONDON CLOSING QUOTATIONS.

PARIS, Oct. 16.—Trading on the Bourse to-day was inactive. Prices were firm.

Russian imperial 4s were quoted at 93.30 and Russian bonds of 1904 at 528.

Three per cent. rentes, 99f 50c for the account.

Exchange on London, 25f 4½c for checks.

BERLIN, Oct. 16.—Trading on the Boerse to-day was lifeless pending the clearing up of the money situation.

Exchange on London, 20 marks 45¼ pfennigs.

The rate of discount for short and three months' bills was 4½ per cent.

Financial Notes.

The roads which, by vote of the stockholders, will consolidate with the Western Maryland are the Western Maryland Tidewater, Potomac Valley, Potomac Valley of West Virginia, Piedmont and Cumberland, Piedmont and Cumberland of West Virginia, and West Virginia Central and Pittsburg.

Members of the Cotton Exchange will vote to-morrow on the proposition to make Nov. 6, the day before Election Day, an Exchange holiday. It is believed that the brokers will decide against the holiday, as this is their very busy season.

The Directors of the Coney Island and Brooklyn Railroad Company have been re-elected. They will meet on Oct. 18 to elect officers.

Directors of the American Light and Traction Company will hold a meeting this afternoon to decide whether the common stock dividend shall be increased from 1 per cent. quarterly to 1¼ per cent. In anticipation of higher dividends there has been much buying of the common stock.

TOPICS IN WALL STREET.

The stock market cannot get much duller. The total of yesterday's transactions fell under 375,000 shares. Mere dullness does not always mark the culmination of the movement that has led up to it, but a pronounced swing in prices either way invariably culminates in a sluggish market, with the trading very narrow, as is the case at present.

Experience has taught professional speculators to attach considerable importance to the direction in which fresh activity develops after a period of dullness. It is generally a bad sign for a dull market to break sharply and become active on declining prices, especially if it has been dull after a long upward swing. On the other hand, a revival of genuine bullish activity, after the market for several weeks has been on a dead centre, is often an indication that the upward movement has been resumed, dullness in that case having been merely a halt in the advance. The dullness that marks the culmination of a bear swing in the market is generally more prolonged than that which marks the culmination of an advance, for it takes longer to get a bull market under way than it does to start a bear movement. The market is now duller than at any previous time since July, and the July dullness preceded the August rise. It is easy to be misled, however, by spasmodic activity in either direction. It must be of a sustained character to mean anything at all.

The market for several days has lost activity on its rallies. It did so yesterday. The activity was confined largely to the first hour, and prices in that hour were reactionary. In the subsequent trading stocks recovered moderately and the market got dull.

⁂

The weakness exhibited in the early trading was due largely to the heavy selling of various stocks by a Broadway house that has a large speculative following. An aggressive professional operator, whose heavy trading in Southern Pacific, American Locomotive, Union Pacific, and other stocks has lately attracted a good deal of attention, is supposed to keep one of his largest accounts with the house in question, and the importance of its selling yesterday may have been overestimated for that reason. It is a house that has been very active recently on both sides of the market, buying heavily one day and selling heavily the next. Several of its largest clients evidently hold a trading position on the market, moving into stocks and out of them on a large scale merely for turns of 1 or 2 per cent. That kind of business is very productive of commissions.

⁂

It was rumored before the opening of the market that Canadian Pacific, Reading, and American Smelting and Refining would be attacked by the bear crowd, and whatever may have been the motive of promulgating this information, the weakness of those three stocks in the early trading gave plausibility to the reports which preceded the selling. Canadian Pacific declined 1¾ per cent. on the initial transactions. It closed at a net decline of 1½ per cent. Reading was better supported, and recovered its early loss, closing at a fractional net gain. American Smelting common suffered a maximum decline of 1⅛ per cent., but closed at a net loss of only ¼. Has it ever occurred to the managers of a bull pool that they might shrewdly anticipate their own selling by announcing beforehand that the bear crowd was going to attack their stock?

⁂

The personally conducted speculation in Canadian Pacific has certain amusing features. The Wall Street gentleman who pretends to be conducting it from a vantage point in London informed his New York following early yesterday morning that the stock would be subjected to bear pressure. The short interest, he said, was already very large, and the stock should be bought on this raid. It would be a rare opportunity to get some of it cheap. The attack would be made in the forenoon, he said, and the stock would advance, he promised, in the afternoon. The extent of its advance was a recovery of one-half of 1 per cent. from the lowest quotation made in the forenoon. Perhaps the promised advance was checked by the publication here and in London of an opinion by W. R. Lawson, The London Times's Commissioner to Canada, on the Canadian Pacific boom. This gentleman asserts that the boom in Canadian Pacific earnings is lagging; that the income return does not increase proportionately to the expansion of capital stock.

⁂

Various pools which have been able, through controlling a large percentage of the floating supply of different stocks, to advance prices at their will are now assisted in their task of supporting such stocks by the obstinacy and determination with which bearish speculators sell them short. There is a large short interest in Reading. Canadian Pacific is another example of the same thing. There is a very stubborn short interest in that stock. Union Pacific does not come within the category of stocks of which the floating supply is largely controlled by pools, but it also is persistently and most determinedly sold for the short account on every little advance by a group of bearish traders who believe that sooner or later Union Pacific will be turned to the bear side of the market in a very signal manner. The bull crowd in Locomotive doubtless was helped in its operations by the opposition of traders who sold the stock short all the way up.

⁂

A resourceful bull crowd likes professional opposition. The larger the short interest the better. In the past the managers of bull pools have been known to pay commissions to procure short sales. It is one of the paradoxical things about speculation that the speculator who sells a stock short becomes at once in a certain sense a bull on that stock, for he is obliged sooner or later to be a buyer of it. A large short interest is often the principal support of a declining market.

⁂

For several days there have been symptoms of liquidation in Reading. Brokers who have studied the selling closely say that it is evidently not for pool account. On the contrary, the pool appears to be taking a large percentage of all the stock that comes upon the market, as it probably would have to do in order to maintain its position. It must control a certain proportion of the floating supply. The impression is that certain large speculative holdings of Reading outside of the pool entirely are being quietly liquidated. The stock declines while this selling is in progress, and recovers sharply as soon as it ceases. It did this on Friday, and again yesterday. After having sold down to 120½ in the first hour it recovered in the afternoon to 121⅞.

⁂

The Rock Island's annual report was hardly calculated to inspire any passionate speculative enthusiasm for the long side of Rock Island common.

⁂

The bull pool in American Locomotive common let its stock decline below 60 yesterday, after having traded in the entire common capital last week between 60 and 61. Transactions declined yesterday to 15,000 shares. The stock sold as low as 59⅝, and closed at 59⅞. The American Locomotive meeting will be held to-day.

Amalgamated Copper showed a good deal of quiet strength yesterday. The buying was not such as would attract attention. The feeling is rather pronounced that the dividend is likely to be increased to the rate of 6 per cent. at the next meeting, which should occur on Thursday. Owing to the absence of certain prominent interests in the property it may be postponed. The New England speculation in "coppers" continues to broaden. Yesterday was described by some correspondents as in some respects the best day of the revival so far. None of this enthusiasm appears to be overflowing into Amalgamated Copper. Ordinarily with the New England public in so responsive a temper Amalgamated would be a much more prominent feature of this market than it is.

Allouez was the special feature of a buoyant copper stock market to-day, advancing to 47¾ on insistent demand. Boston Consolidated was another favorite; several thousand shares of it were traded in and it advanced about a point. North Butte, Franklin, Centennial, Trinity, Osceola, Shannon, Rhode Island, Isle Royale, Greene, and Adventure were among the leaders, and Parrot grew strong in the late trading.

Complete transactions were as follows:

TRADING IN BALTIMORE.

Special to The New York Times.

BALTIMORE, Oct. 16.—The steps taken toward the reorganization of the Maryland Trust were the most important single influence affecting the trading to-day, the prices of several securities of which the company is a holder advancing materially. Baltimore Trust was also higher on the reports of a merger with the Maryland Trust as the ultimate outcome of the latter's reorganization. Seaboard new second preferred was the most active issue outside of the group just referred to and gained ½ on the morning call. G. B. S. Brewing bond issues eased off somewhat on sales of small amounts.

Houston Oil common, largely held by the Maryland Trust, gained ⅜, and the preferred sold at 35. Baltimore Brick common gained 2½ points and Maryland Telephone general mortgage 5s, another issue in which the Maryland Trust is interested, gained a point.

Trading in the bond list was moderately active. The close was firm and active. Shares, 3,360; bonds, $400,000.

PHILADELPHIA PRICES.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 16.—Lehigh Coal and Navigation furnished the local surprise to-day, the stock advancing from 107⅞ to 112 and showing more activity than for some time past. The unassented stock rose from 105¼ to 110; both closed at top prices.

The report that Jersey Central interests are negotiating for the property is officially denied. To-day's movement was regarded as purely speculative, as the "tip" had been circulated early in the day that the stock would be advanced. This was a comparatively easy matter, for the floating supply is very small. Lehigh Valley and Reading both sympathized, rising to higher prices. American Railways was up ½. There was some heaviness displayed by Philadelphia Electric and Philadelphia Company, the latter causing some surprise because of the recent good buying. The general view held by local operators was one of doubt, few of them knowing exactly what to do in the general market. Commission house business in consequence was dull.

CHICAGO QUOTATIONS.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Oct. 16.—New York exchange was 10c premium before and 15c policy after clearings. Time and call loans 4@5 per cent.

Without any further assurance of official sanction to initial dividends on Quaker Oats common stock, the price of the shares on the local Exchange to-day jumped to 120, as against 110 Saturday. The preferred sold at 102. Both transactions were in small lots. It is known that the common is held very closely. In view of the fact that the preferred is getting 6 per cent. dividends and the common is selling 18 points higher than the senior issue, the Street naturally believed the ticker is once more telling the tale of future events.

Elsewhere business was quiet. Western Stone sold at 38 on what was said to be good buying. Another dividend of 1 per cent. should be declared on the stock in November. Kansas City Light sold at 56½@57. Subway was dull at 52. Northwestern Elevated went at 25@25¼. Shipbuilding dipped below 57.

LIGHT CROPS REDUCE ROCK ISLAND EARNINGS

'Frisco Receipts, However, More Than Make Up the Loss.

DIVIDENDS REACH $5,500,000

The gross earnings of the Rock Island Railroad system this year were $44,051,509, a decrease of $917,982 from the year before. Net earnings decreased $201,298. The report of the 'Frisco system shows $38,381,617 gross earnings, an increase of $2,820,843, and $13,328,750, an increase of $965,661. The Rock Island Company, which is the holding company of both the systems, drew from them $5,510,000 in dividends and paid out in dividends to its own stockholders $1,950,210.

The decrease of $1,504,620 in the freight earnings of the Rock Island system, President Winchell says, was due to the falling off in the tonnage of grain, flour, live stock, bituminous coal, coke, forest products, and merchandise. The light wheat crop in Kansas and Oklahoma is held to be largely responsible. The loss in freight earnings was partially offset by an increase in passenger and express earnings. Operating expenses decreased $716,684, or 2.2 per cent.

Changes made in operated mileage resulted in a net decrease of 53 miles. Now under construction, however, are 578 miles. There were added to the equipment ten engines of the Atlantic type, twenty engines of the Pacific type, fifteen ten-wheel freight engines, and twenty switch engines. The President calls attention to the new industries on the Rock Island lines, and the effort made by the railroad officials to improve agricultural methods. Since June, 1904, the Rock Island has acquired 44,700 shares of Chicago and Alton preferred stock and 143,200 of the common. Under its control, besides, is the Arkansas Southern, the net earnings of which for last year were $216,557.

The gross earnings of the Chicago and Eastern Illinois were $8,423,377, which are included in the $38,381,617 gross earnings of the 'Frisco system. After paying dividends of 6 per cent. on the preferred stock and 5 per cent. on the common, the Chicago and Eastern Illinois showed a deficit of $80,265 for the year. There was a decrease of $327,953 in freight receipts and an increase of $108,901 in passenger receipts. The estimated cost of additions and improvements already authorized is over $2,600,000. A big terminal yard is to be built at Chicago.

The Evansville and Terre Haute, one of the roads owned by the Rock Island Company, had total receipts of $2,050,147 last year, as compared with $2,089,335 the year before. Operating expenses decreased from $1,238,662 in 1903-04 to $1,038,591 in 1904-05. The total surplus on June 30, 1905, was $597,209.

F. S. Hine and G. McMurtry have been re-elected Directors of the Rock Island Company.

NEW LOCOMOTIVE DIRECTORS.

Hoadley and Webb Likely to Retire from the Board To-day.

At the annual meeting of the American Locomotive Company to-day two new Directors are to be elected. One of the new members of the board will represent the United States Steel Corporation and the other one of the electric companies, either the General Electric or the Westinghouse Electric. E. H. Gary probably will represent the Steel Corporation.

The choice as Director of the company of a representative of the General Electric Company is the logical outcome of the relations which exist between the two companies. In the manufacture of electric locomotives the General Electric and American Locomotive companies have been co-operating for some time past.

In view of the fact that the board of the American Locomotive Company is now full, curiosity was expressed in Wall Street yesterday concerning the men who were likely to resign to make places for the new Directors. No official information on the subject could be had in any quarter. The best opinion yesterday, however, was that W. G. Hoadley and W. Seward Webb were likely to retire from the board.

THE OUTSIDE SECURITIES

Mercantile Marine Preferred Again Active Yesterday.

It Rose to 37—Chicago Subway Has Gained Nothing—American Lacing Nearly Out of Sight.

More activity in Mercantile Marine preferred marked curb market operations yesterday. News of increased business and decreased operating expenses has created a steady upward movement in the stock, and yesterday it closed at 37. The common was only moderately active and closed at 14⅜. Chicago Subway, still around 52, has gained none of the ground it lost the other day. Great Northern rights sold at 36¼. Interborough gained 2 points in the trading and was at 215 at the close. Greene Copper is at 25⅝. Standard Oil climbed to 675, American Tobacco sold last at 350, and Northern Securities stubs at 350.

The principal transactions reported yesterday in the outside market, with high, low, and last prices, were as follows:

THE COMMERCIAL WORLD

WHEAT.—The wheat market had good support again yesterday, and at the close was up ⅛ to ⅜c over the 1 o'clock prices of Saturday, and about ⅝c above the prices current at the opening when liquidation, based on big world shipments and heavy Northwest receipts, was a feature. According to Broomhall, the world's exports were 10,672,000 bushels, compared with 9,920,000 bushels the previous week, with nearly half the total shipped from Russia and Danubian points. The figures were about 2,000,000 bushels more than estimated on Saturday. Broomhall made a decrease in the amount on passage to the United Kingdom, however, of 1,288,000 bushels, and to the Continent of 2,088,000 bushels. Liverpool closed ⅛ to ¼d lower, and Budapest was 10 points down, the only strength abroad being at Paris, where wheat and flour closed 5 to 10 points higher. Including Sunday inspection on some roads, the Northwest receipts were 1,107 cars, compared with 994 cars a week ago. This brought total interior receipts up to 1,829,000 bushels, compared with 1,617,000 bushels on the corresponding day last year. After the first half hour there was very little weakness in the market, chiefly owing to the light offerings and the grip maintained by bull operators in Chicago. Advantage was taken of a good cash demand at Minneapolis and a fair business in flour to push the market along in face of the rather bearish statistics. No visible supply figures were posted, owing to the absence of Port Arthur, Fort William, and lake stocks. Excluding these points the visible showed 2,192,000 bushels increase. Private cables reported that Argentina wheat prospects were promising, although locusts were spreading. On export account the sales were 15 loads. No. 2 red in New York closed 90⅝c elevator and 91⅝c free on board afloat; No. 1 Northern, Duluth, 93⅞c, and No. 1 Northern, Manitoba, 92⅞c, free on board afloat.

CORN.—In view of prospects for more liberal arrivals here the corn market was active and weaker, closing partly ⅛c net lower. The West was also easier, but at the close was practically unchanged from Saturday, having rallied about ¼c in the last hour on the strength of wheat. The tendency of the market on the whole, however, was downward, owing to fine weather, fairly large receipts being ahead of the estimates at Chicago, and the decline of ⅛d at Liverpool. World's shipments were about 600,000 bushels smaller than the previous week, according to Broomhall. An export business of 10 loads was reported. No. 2 corn closed 61c nominal, elevator, and 62c, nominal, free on board afloat; other grades not quotable.

COTTON.—The cotton market was weak and the near months sold down to a new low level for the season under bear pressure and liquidation inspired by large receipts and better weather, in connection with the absence of important private reports concerning damage by frost. The close was steady in tone, but at just about the lowest of the session, or a net decline of 16 to 21 points. Sales were estimated at 225,000 bales.

The opening was weak at a decline of 9 to 11 points in response to lower cables and higher temperatures in the South. There was covering for profits at the decline, and some buying on the reports of firm interior holders and reports of damage to open cotton by recent rains. But the market showed little rallying power, and after recovering some 4 or 5 points of the early loss and ruling fairly steady during the middle session, prices broke sharply in the afternoon under a renewal of local bear pressure and liquidation of long contracts. Private advices from the South stated that while the demand was poor the interior was offering very little, and it was reported that some of the largest Southern handlers of spots were raising their selling basis as compared with futures, showing that the interior was not following the decline. Bulls were disappointed over the big estimate for to-day's receipts at Houston. The large movement in the Southwest was explained by private wires from New Orleans, however, claiming that 200,000 bales have already been engaged for export to clear from Galveston during the latter half of October and early in November. Bears predict that the low temperatures will lead to a removal of quarantine restrictions at New Orleans shortly, and that this will be followed by an increased movement in that direction.

COFFEE.—The coffee market was more active than recently, sales being reported of about 77,250 bags. Liquidation of near-by longs was the feature, and the market, after opening steady at unchanged prices, to an advance of 5 points in response to cables, weakened, and at the close was steady, but 5@10 points net lower. The declines seemed to result from local speculative conditions and apprehensions concerning the long interest in December. So far there has been comparatively little switching, and it is said that longs are showing a disposition to liquidate outright. A considerable proportion of the local stock is said to be of a grade not readily handled in consuming trade, and while the quotation for the December option would seem to indicate pretty cheap coffee as compared with other world markets, there appears to be no very distinct disposition to stepping in and buying up the contracts offering, and the switching to late months, which is usually the mode of procedure by which banking interests carry the supplies forward on an attractive carrying charges, is apparently curtailed by continued uncertainty regarding an import duty, although many members of the trade do not consider such a duty probable. The European markets made a steady showing early, with Havre unchanged and Hamburg only a partial ¼ pfennig lower, but Havre later eased off ¼f. Of the Brazilian markets, Santos was 100 reis higher and Rio was unchanged. Receipts were moderate, with the two ports getting 57,000 bags, against 64,000 bags last year. Sao Paulo receipts for the day were 48,860 bags, against 42,000 bags last year.

The market for spot coffee was quiet with quotations on the basis of 8⅝c for Rio No. 7. Contract prices ranged as follows:

METALS.—There was a sharp advance in the London tin market, said to have been encouraged by denials of any important increase in the Banca production, spot closing at £148 10s, and futures at £147 15s. Locally the market was quiet but firm, with spot closing at 32.25@32.50c. Copper was also higher abroad, with spot closing at £72 5s, and futures at £70 15s. Locally the market remained very quiet, and lake was quoted at 16.37¼@16.75c; electrolytic at 16.37¼@16.62½c, and casting at 16.12½@16.37½c. Lead was nervous and unsettled in the local market, and it was reported that supplies for immediate delivery were very scarce, with quotations ranging as high as 5.50c for small lots. The general situation is unchanged, however, and 50-ton lots for shipment within thirty days can still be secured at 4.85c. The foreign market was higher, with spot quoted at £14 18s 9d. Spelter was also higher abroad, closing at £28 5s. Locally the market was unchanged, closing at 6@6.10c. Iron closed higher abroad, with standard foundry quoted at 51s 9d and Cleveland warrants at 53s 4½d. Locally the market was firm and unchanged. No. 1 foundry, Northern, is quoted $17.75@$18.25, and No. 1 foundry, Southern, at $17@$17.75.

The market for pig iron certificates was easy on near and steady on later positions. Foundry grades were irregular. No sales. Regulars were quoted as follows: October, $15.65@$15.75; November, $15.60@$15.85; December, $15.75@$15.95; January, $15.85@$16.05; February, $15.80@$16.15, and March, $16@$16.25.

CASH QUOTATIONS—Iron, Southern, No. 2 soft, $16.75; steel rails, $28; lake copper, ingots, 16.50c; tin, 32.37½c; Exchange lead, 4.85c; spelter, 6.05c; wheat, No. 2 red, 91⅝c; corn, No. 2 mixed, 62c, nominal; oats, 26 to 32 lb, 33@33½c; flour, Minneapolis patents, $5.15; cotton, middling, 9.95c; coffee, No. 7 Rio, 8⅝c; sugar, granulated, $4.80; beef, family, $11.75; beef hams, $21.75; pork, mess, $16.37½; hogs, dressed, 160 lb, 8c.

EUGENIA BURCH FIRST IN TRACK RECORD TIME

Mare Won the Pierrepont Handicap by a Nose from Spring.

JAMAICA MEETING'S OPENING

Big Fields Ran on a Fast Track, but Only Two Post Favorites Were Successful.

The last race meeting but one of the New York turf year opened yesterday on the Metropolitan Jockey Club's Jamaica track, under conditions that were fortunate to the last detail for the club. An attendance of 10,000 visitors witnessed the racing from the field, grand and club stands, and bet on the results with an abandon that was suggestive of early Spring. Big fields ran on a fast track, the change in the course which has been worked over since the April meeting being the only important alteration in the Jamaica equipment. The work on the course has made it much faster than formerly, and an added improvement has been made in moving the winning post about sixty yards down the stretch, adding that distance to the length of the stretch for the run home, though to do this the finish line has been placed very close to the fence, dividing the grand stand inclosure from the paddock and clubhouse.

In the results of the opening, the general public had even less than the usual average of success, for only one positive public favorite was first, though two post favorites were returned winners. The real public choice to win was James Galway's maiden three-year-old Lindale, at odds on, in the last event, which he easily took from Nom De Plume. The other winning choice was J. A. Drake's selling class four-year-old Just So, which was thrown into the selling mile and a sixteenth race, with 98 pounds, and was backed down to the place of a 2 to 1 favorite by the weight of the stable money when the call to the post was sounded. Just So, ridden by the apprentice Garner, ran much the best horse in the race at that, for he had to go entirely around his field, and then went on and won in the stretch, hard ridden to stall off the effort of Oarsman, the second choice.

The best race of the day and the closest was for the stake feature of the opening, the Pierrepont Handicap at one mile and a furlong, in capturing which the gallant mare Eugenia Burch showed a return to her old-time high class form by winning in time that set a new track record for a mile and a furlong. She was the top weight of the thirteen horses that ran, carrying 120 pounds, but Coy Maid and Santa Catalina were the best backed, starting first and second choices, while Eugenia Burch went back in the betting to a starting price of 6 to 1. The race made an uncommonly pretty spectacle, as the field ran in fairly close order from the start to the finish, Spring darting to the front in the run past the stand the first time, after Miss Crawford led away from the post. Spring then raced out in the lead, with Coy Maid, Race King, and Santa Catalina alternately challenging him, Coy Maid and Race King retiring in that order in the run to the last turn, where Santa Catalina moved up from fourth place.

At the head of the stretch Santa Catalina went after Spring in a style that made her seem a certain winner. Both horses were hard ridden as they straightened out for the run home, and both were tiring under the pace that had been carried when Eugenia Burch, which had trailed far back in the crowd to the turn into the stretch, went on with a splendid burst of speed, and getting up in the last strides, won, whipped and ridden out, by a nose before Spring, which lasted better than Santa Catalina and beat that filly two lengths for second place. The time of the race, 1:52 4-5, cut three-fifths of a second from Dolly Spanker's track record, the fractions being quarter, 0:25 4-5; half mile, 0:49; three-quarters, 1:13 3-5, and mile 1:39 2-5.

In the first race the stout colt Disobedient closed from behind and won his fifth straight race of the Fall season in easy style from the Western horse Father Catchem, while the even money favorite Jacobite just managed to get into third place. Rusk made most of the running and handily won the sprint handicap, with the "good thing" Gold Rose far back in the crowd after being almost left at the post.

Notes of the Thoroughbreds.

The enormous number of horses now racing on the New York tracks and intended for the Winter meetings in New Orleans, at Hot Springs, Ark.; Los Angeles, and San Francisco is responsible for an innovation in the line of horse transportation planned by three owners who combined to get their horses out of the general scramble. In accordance with this plan M. L. Hayman, George B. Hill, and W. H. Snyder will move their stables to New Orleans on a special train after the Aqueduct meeting, the train to be made up of seven horse cars and a sleeper for the owners and help, and to run to New Orleans on a forty-hour schedule.

H. T. Oxnard, a visitor to the Jamaica track yesterday, made the statement that within a few days he had declined an offer of $25,000 for the stallion Prince of Melbourne, by Bramble-Maid of Balgowan. The marked success in the past few years of sons of Brambla, notably Ben Brush and Clifford, caused the offer, but Mr. Oxnard, who has placed Prince of Melbourne at the head of his own breeding farm, will keep the horse for his own use.

Just So, winner of the second race at Jamaica and the medium of a big betting coup for J. A. Drake, was bid up to $1,500, or $1,000 over his entered price, by J. Marrone, and then was bought in by his owner for $5 advance.

Father Catchem, a crack colt of the Canadian tracks and the Far West, made his first appearance on a New York race course yesterday, when he finished second to Disobedient. Father Catchem started his two-year-old campaign last January in California, has a record of having run forty-seven races, of which he won fifteen, and was placed thirty-two times, his winnings including six straight races in California.

The star riders of the Belmont Park meeting, Knapp and Miller, dropped out of notice at Jamaica yesterday, when the veteran Martin was the only rider to have two winning mounts, the other races going to the less fashionable boys, Garner, Wiley, W. Buchanan, and Romanelli.

CORNELIUS VANDERBILT HOME

Vice Commodore Cornelius Vanderbilt in his steam yacht North Star, in which for the past five months he has been cruising in European waters, arrived home yesterday from Newport. He sailed from England three weeks ago and touched at Newport on Sunday, leaving that night for this city. With him on board were Messrs. Crane and Keck and Secretary George A. Cormack of the New York Yacht Club.

The North Star was at the Lizard to witness the arrival of the American yachts in the ocean race for the Kaiser's Cup, and later accompanied them to Kiel. Here Vice Commodore Vanderbilt entertained both Kaiser Wilhelm and Prince Henry aboard his steamer, and was received on board the imperial yacht Hohenzollern and also aboard the schooner Meteor, on which he sailed in two of its Kiel races.

Later the North Star visited Norway, returning to German waters, and finally sailing from Southampton in the latter part of September.

While at Glasgow Mr. Vanderbilt had built a magnificent model of the North Star that is a marvelous piece of workmanship. For over two months a dozen men were employed to complete it, and its delicate construction called for the highest skill. It was finished at the cost of over $10,000 and shipped to this country as a gift to the New York Yacht Club, to be placed in the famous model room, where it will take its place as one of the most striking of a number of exceptionally costly and excellent reproductions of the vessels in the club fleet. It was received at the clubhouse yesterday, and will be on exhibition there by the latter part of the week.

The North Star will be laid up in the course of another fortnight in a local yard for the Winter.

PAY DAY FOR CHAMPIONS.

New York Baseball Players Get Winners' Share of World's Series.

The headquarters of the New York National League Club in the St. James Building, at Broadway and Twenty-sixth Street, was a busy place yesterday, because those members of the new world's champions who were not playing against the Trenton, N. J., club reported to their chief, Manager John J. McGraw, and incidentally received their portion of the receipts due to the winners in the world's championship series with the Philadelphia Athletics. Checks for $1,141.55 were given to Catchers Bowerman and Bresnahan, Pitcher Ames, and Utility Man Hall, and in addition each received a handsome button, valued at $50, as a gift from the National Commission. There will not be a general exodus of the players to their homes until the end of this week, because efforts are being made to arrange one more game, either at Scranton or Wilkesbarre, on Friday or Saturday. Bowerman will be the first man to leave, the illness of his wife causing him to start for his home in Romeo, Mich., earlier than he expected.

Manager McGraw did not show any displeasure at the defeat of his men by the Ridgewoods on Sunday, contending that it was simply one of the peculiarities of the game. He was rather surprised at the large attendance and with the excellent work of Manager Hussey's players, particularly Pitcher Lindemann.

In referring to the defeat of the Philadelphia Athletics for the world's championship Manager McGraw said that he did not think the result would be so one-sided; he was almost certain that the New Yorks would be returned the winners. "The playing showed that we had the best all around team," he continued, "and as for Mathewson, I knew he would be too much for the Athletics. In all my baseball career I never saw such pitching as 'Matty' did in that series, and I don't think anybody else ever did."

McGraw expects to stay in the city until near Christmas, when he will go to Baltimore for a brief visit, and then probably spend the remainder of the Winter in the South.

Execution Against The McManus.

Deputy Sheriff Plunkett (no relation to ex-Senator Plunkitt) received an execution for $967 yesterday against Thomas J. McManus of 452 West Forty-ninth Street, in favor of Peter McChesney. It is a revival of a judgment obtained against McManus on Dec. 27, 1888, for $439 in favor of Peter McChesney, John Hilton, and Elen Converse, as partners.

BUSINESS TROUBLES.

ISRAEL GELBERG.—Judge Holt of the United States District Court has appointed Daniel McKee receiver in bankruptcy of the assets of Israel Gelberg, manufacturer of iron bedsteads at 21 First Street.

MARY A. VAN ZANDT.—Judge Holt of the United States District Court has granted a discharge from bankruptcy to Mary A. Van Zandt, assistant in a boarding house at 418 West Twenty-third Street, who filed a petition in bankruptcy on March 16, 1904, with liabilities $4,025.

CONSOLIDATED PAPER COMPANY.—Charles T. Koffler and Charles Conwell, who did business under the style of the Consolidated Paper Company at 336 Bowery, have filed a petition in bankruptcy with liabilities $1,863 and nominal assets $1,209 in outstanding accounts. Mr. Conwell has individual debts, $1,372. The business was started in January, 1904 and they gave it up in February, 1905.

RICHMAN & FRIEDLANDER.—A petition in bankruptcy has been filed against Philip Richman Richman and Philip Friedlander, composing the firm of Richman & Friedlander, fur manufacturers at 38 East Tenth Street, by the following creditors: Frank Stein & Co., $145; Leopold Gassner, $279, and George Ricard, $350. It was alleged that they are insolvent, have transferred merchandise and accounts, and have removed property worth $5,000. Judge Holt of the United States District Court appointed Walter T. Stern receiver of the assets, with a bond of $500. The outstanding accounts are estimated at $1,000. The firm began business on Feb. 15, 1904.

HERMAN W. SCHWARTZ AND DANIEL KAUFMAN.—A petition in bankruptcy has been filed against Herman W. Schwartz and Daniel Kaufman, manufacturers of cloaks and suits at 10 Waverley Place, by the following creditors: Julius Aitkrug, $327; J. G. Haggerty & Co., $195, and Bry & Nessler, $196. It was alleged that they are insolvent, made payments of $2,000 to creditors to give preference, and transferred merchandise and accounts, $1,500. Judge Holt of the United States District Court appointed W. D. W. Miller receiver of the assets, fixing his bond at $1,500. It was alleged that on Oct. 14 they removed a large quantity of goods and concealed them. They began business on Nov. 15, 1904.

J. & M. UNION LABEL CLOTHING COMPANY.—A petition in bankruptcy has been filed against the J. & M. Union Label Clothing Company of 740 Broadway by the following creditors, Thomas J. Tynan, Elias B. Soble, and Frederick R. Johnson, whose claims aggregate $800 on notes given by the company to other parties for money loaned. It was alleged that the company is insolvent, and has admitted in writing its insolvency and willingness to be adjudged bankrupt. The company was incorporated on Nov. 9, 1904, with a capital stock of $16,000, but did not get to active business until Feb. 1, 1905. It dealt in clothing and men's furnishing goods at retail. Charles S. Jacobs was President, and a representative of a labor union was Vice President.

Buffalo-Rochester Trolley.

Special to The New York Times.

BUFFALO, Oct. 16.—The Buffalo and Rochester Traction Company, incorporated at Albany to-day with $3,500,000 capital, has for its purpose the construction of an electric road from Depew to Rochester. The company has obtained control of the Buffalo and Depew Road, and will extend this line for sixty miles, taking in Batavia, Leroy, Caledonia, and intermediate points. Herbert B. Bissell, a Director of the company, said to-night:

"This road has nothing to do with the New York Central, and that railroad has no interest in our company whatsoever."

A LOT. A LOT.

You Are the Judge. Which of These Three Suits You Best?

LIFE INSURANCE. STOCKS. REAL ESTATE.

65,000,000 of people who represent the pulse and heart of this Great Republic move backward and forward in the great channel of life for the struggle of fortune.

The great thirst and hunger for money leads the mind of man to investment, and he alone practically gambles with the future to increase his wealth and attain prosperity.

The public Press of to-day feeds the entire community with columns of deception practiced by the huge life insurance corporations of this country, who receive their cash from the hard earnings of the wage-earner and expend same in the channels which apparently increase their own personal wealth and their aims. Surrounded by friends, relatives, and political influence, whose motto evidently lies in the theatrical success of this last season in which the humorous horse trader, "David Harum," pursued but one method—"Do others or they will do you."

LIFE INSURANCE HAS PRACTICALLY PROVEN TO BE A ROBBERY

or, rather, to be more diplomatic, "A PROFESSIONAL COURTESY," to absorb the policyholder's cash. Statistics have already proven that only about sixty per cent. of the people's money is turned in for the purpose of mutual benefit and applied in the channels of insurance. Forty per cent. is simply taken care of by the promoters of these huge corporations, and they are made the Giants of Finance.

600,000 people in this Great Metropolis—one in every seven carry a policy of life insurance. All hard-earned money wrought for and paid by the sweat of the wage-earner's brow and laid away in the vaults of the Life Insurance Corporations, with the Trust Companies of New York used as a lever to buy and sell men's souls and wipe out any righteous individual who would dare to contend or question the methods of Life Insurance practiced by the officers of these corporations.

INSURANCE AS WRITTEN IN THE POLICY—INSURANCE AS PROMISED BY THESE COMPANIES

looks like a star of wealth shining in the Heavens and making bright the path of future to every man who invests his dollars there. But the last three months by the Investigating Committee of the State of New York have proved that there are better channels for the wage-earners than the Life Insurance Companies of America.

Stocks in Wall Street lie in the same category. The streets downtown to-day are filled with the souls of millions of men whose echoes for years have filled the air. "KEEP AWAY," "KEEP AWAY," "DON'T BE A BRAINLESS FOOL."

Every investor there is but a pebble of sand on the seashore of time, to be wiped away by the great waves of greed and hurled far into the deep sea of eternity.

You Ask Yourself the question, WHERE WILL I INVEST?

WHERE WILL I GET VALUE FOR MY MONEY?—BUY A PIECE OF LAND.

PLACE YOUR FOOT ON A PIECE OF UNCLE SAM'S TERRITORY. YOU WERE BORN TO OWN AND POSSESS A PIECE OF THIS EARTH,

The good Book says that Moses led his people to the Land of Promise. We are not posing as Ministers of the Lord, but we do claim that we are the good Samaritans capable of revealing the truths of the land of promise in and around New York.

WE ANNOUNCE TO YOU THE GREAT HARVEST FIELDS OF PROFIT.

LONG ISLAND, THE LAND OF PARADISE.

For 5 years we have been buying and selling 5,000 acres in and around what we consider the wage-earner's and the Investor's Paradise. Our volume of business, disposing of nearly $1,000,000 worth of land to more than 5,000 people, gives evidence it is progressing and developing to the welfare and profit of the investor.

WHY ARE THEY ATTRACTED? WHY DO THEY BUY?

Located right where the development is taking place, right in line of every and all improvements, which in a few years will make this point the recognized centre for vegetable gardens, chicken raising, and suburban homes for the rich and the poor at

WHY DO YOU PAY RENT

When you can own your own home within 20 minutes of 34th Street Ferry, on one of the most picturesque bays on Long Island Sound?

BAYSIDE PARK

is only 10 miles from New York. It has 46 trains daily; commutation is only 10 cents, and upon the completion of the Pennsylvania tunnel it will take but fifteen minutes from Herald Square to Bayside. A number of artistic houses have just been completed; they contain every modern convenience and cost from $3,500 to $8,500. They can be bought with a cash payment of 10 per cent., the balance at $30 per month and upward, which covers all expenses, or you can buy lots from $250 and upwards, which from previous experience will increase from 50 to 100 per cent. in value within a very short time; these can also be bought on installments. Write for booklet, or better still, call and see us. We'll gladly pay your fare to run out and look at the property.

LEGAL NOTICES.

IN PURSUANCE OF THE REQUIREMENTS of Section 59 of the Railroad Law, the Inter-State Tunnel Railway Company of New York publishes a copy of its articles of association, filed and recorded in the office of the Secretary of State of New York, September 20, 1905, and in the office of the County Clerk of New York County, September 21, 1905, to wit:

INTER-STATE TUNNEL RAILWAY COMPANY OF NEW YORK.

We, the undersigned, all being persons of full age and citizens of the United States, and at least nine of us being residents of the State of New York, desiring to become a corporation under and by virtue of the provisions of the Railroad Law, for the purpose of building, maintaining, and operating a railroad, do hereby certify and state as follows:

1. The name of the corporation is Inter-State Tunnel Railway Company of New York.

2. The number of years it is to continue is one thousand years.

3. The corporation is incorporated for the purpose of constructing and operating a tunnel railroad or railroads in the City of New York, to be connected with any railroad or railroads within the State of New York, or any adjoining State, and thereby forming a continuous line for the carriage of passengers and property between a point or points within and a point or points without the said city. The kind of railroad to be built and operated shall be an underground tunnel railroad of standard gauge, with approach to surface at or near the eastern terminus, and also at points between termini, and with surface and other occupancy of land thereat, for necessary and convenient buildings, stations, fixtures, machinery, and access to the surface, and with all other necessary facilities and appurtenances; and said railroad is to be occupied by electricity or other suitable power.

4. The length of the railroad to be built, maintained, and operated, between its termini, as nearly as can be ascertained, is approximately two miles. The western terminus thereof will be under the waters of the Hudson River on the boundary line between the State of New York and the State of New Jersey, at a point or points of connection with the railroad of a corporation organized under the laws of the State of New Jersey, to wit, the Inter-State Tunnel Railway Company of New Jersey, where the said Inter-State boundary line would be intersected by a line drawn from a point on the Hudson River pier head line in Jersey City, New Jersey, (which point is 430 feet south of the south line, prolonged, of Pavonia Avenue, in said Jersey City, measured at right angles to said Pavonia Avenue,) to a point on the Hudson River pier head line in the Borough of Manhattan, in the City of New York, (which point is where such last-named pier head line would be intersected by the centre line of Chambers Street, prolonged, in said Borough of Manhattan, City of New York.) The eastern terminus of the said railroad will be at terminals in Chambers Street, in said Borough of Manhattan, City of New York, between Church Street and a point distant 100 feet easterly from the easterly side of Park Row, in said Borough of Manhattan, City of New York. From its western terminus, the corporation will build, maintain, and operate a tunnel or tunnels with such number of tracks as may be necessary or convenient, under the waters of the Hudson River and under the said Borough of Manhattan, City of New York, to the eastern terminus of said railroad in said Borough of Manhattan, City of New York; emerging, however, to the surface at the eastern terminus thereof, and between termini, to make necessary and convenient openings for stations and other access to the surface.

5. The name of the county in which the railroad is to be located is the County of New York.

6. The amount of capital stock of the corporation is Seven million five hundred thousand dollars.

7. The number of shares into which the capital stock is to be divided is Seventy-five thousand shares of the par value of One hundred dollars each.

8. All of the capital stock is to be of the same class and consist of common stock.

9. The names and post office addresses of the directors of the corporation, who shall manage its affairs for the first year, are as follows: John B. McDonald, 34 Nassau St., Manhattan, N. Y.; John D. Crimmins, 40 E. 68th St., Manhattan, N. Y.; Herbert H. Vreeland, 621 B'way, Manhattan, N. Y.; Henry D. Macdona, 31 Nassau St., Manhattan, N. Y.; Robert A. C. Smith, 100 B'way, Manhattan, N. Y.; Mark T. Cox, 110 Harrison St., E. Orange, N. J.; Thomas N. McCarter, 763 Broad St., Newark, N. J.; Charles A. Sterling, 763 Broad St., Newark, N. J.; Albert B. Carlton, 763 Broad St., Newark, N. J.

10. The place where its principal office is to be located is the Borough of Manhattan, in the City of New York.

11. The name and post office address of each subscriber to this certificate, and the number of shares of stock he agrees to take in such corporation, are as follows:

Name.	Post Office Address.	Number of Shares.
John B. McDonald,	34 Nassau St., Manhattan, N. Y.	100

REFEREES' NOTICES.

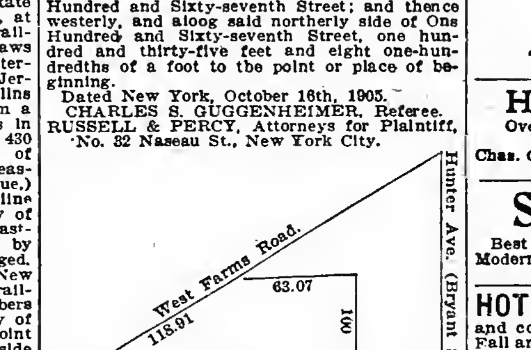
SUPREME COURT, COUNTY OF NEW YORK.—THE MUTUAL LIFE INSURANCE COMPANY OF NEW YORK, plaintiff, against ABRAHAM GREENBERG and others, defendants.

In pursuance of a judgment of foreclosure and sale, duly made and entered in the above-entitled action, bearing date the 13th day of October, 1905, I, the undersigned, the referee in said judgment named, will sell at public auction at the Exchange Salesrooms, now located at Nos. 14-16 Vesey Street, in the Borough of Manhattan, City of New York, on the 8th day of November, 1905, at 12 o'clock noon on that day, by James J. Wells, auctioneer, the premises directed by said judgment to be sold, and therein described as follows:

All that certain plot, piece, or parcel of land, part of the "Charlotte L. Fox estate," so called, situate, lying, and being in the Borough of The Bronx, of the City of New York, in the County and State of New York, which on a certain map entitled "Map of property of Charlotte L. Fox, deceased, situated in the Twenty-third Ward, Borough of The Bronx, N. Y. City," dated May first, A. D. 1899, made by John G. Van Horoe, civil engineer and city surveyor, and filed in the office of the Register of the County of New York, by the number Three hundred and six, on the ninth day of May, A. D. 1900, is shown as being contained in Block Number 2,754, and is distinguished by the color brown and designated by the number Four, and bounded and described as follows:

Beginning at the point or corner formed by the intersection of the southeasterly side of West Farms Road, with the northerly side of One Hundred and Sixty-seventh Street; running thence northeasterly and along said southeasterly side of West Farms Road, one hundred and eighteen feet and ninety one-hundredths of a foot; thence easterly, and parallel with the said northerly side of One Hundred and Sixty-seventh Street, sixty-three feet and seven one-hundredths of a foot; thence southerly, and parallel with Brynnt Street, one hundred feet to said northerly side of One Hundred and Sixty-seventh Street; and thence westerly, and along said northerly side of One Hundred and Sixty-seventh Street, one hundred and thirty-five feet and eight one-hundredths of a foot to the point or place of beginning.

Dated New York, October 16th, 1905.
CHARLES S. GUGGENHEIMER, Referee.
RUSSELL & PERCY, Attorneys for Plaintiff, No. 32 Nassau St., New York City.



The approximate amount of the lien or charge to satisfy which the above-described property is to be sold is twenty thousand seven hundred and thirty-six and 11-100 ($20,736.11) dollars, with interest thereon from the 13th day of October, 1905, together with costs and allowances amounting to three hundred thirty-one and 23-100 ($331.23) dollars, with interest from October 13th, 1905, together with the expenses of the sale. The approximate amount of taxes, assessments, or other liens, which are to be allowed to the purchaser out of the purchase money, or paid by the referee, is sixty-nine and 83-100 ($69.83) dollars and interest.
Dated New York, October 16th, 1905.
CHARLES S. GUGGENHEIMER, Referee.

In pursuance of an interlocutory judgment of partition and sale duly made and entered in the above-entitled action, and bearing date the 28th day of July, 1905, as amended by order made and entered on the 12th day of September, 1905, I, the undersigned, the referee in said judgment named, will sell at public auction at the New York Real Estate Exchange Salesroom, Nos. 14 and 16 Vesey Street, in the Borough of Manhattan, City of New York, on the 17th day of October, 1905, at 12 o'clock noon on that day, by Philip A. Smyth, auctioneer, the premises directed by said judgment to be sold, which are therein designated as Parcel I. and described as follows:

Parcel 1. All that lot, piece, or parcel of land in the Borough of Manhattan, City of New York, bounded and described as follows: Commencing at a point on the southerly line or side of 52d Street, distant easterly eighty-one feet four inches (81 feet 4 inches) from the corner formed by the intersection of the easterly side of Sixth Avenue with the southerly side of 52d Street; running thence easterly along the southerly line or side of 52d Street twenty feet (20 feet;) thence southerly, parallel with Sixth Avenue and part of the distance through the centre of a certain party wall one hundred feet five inches, (100 feet 5 inches,) to the centre line of the block between 51st and 52d Streets; thence westerly along said centre line of the block twenty feet (20 feet;) thence northerly, parallel with the said Sixth Avenue and part of the distance along the centre line of a certain other party wall one hundred feet five inches (100 feet 5 inches) to the southerly line or side of 52d Street, at the point or place of beginning, and known as 72 West 52d Street.

The approximate amount of the taxes and assessments on said property is $1,755.93, and interest, besides a mortgage for $15,000, and interest, which will be allowed to the purchaser or paid by the Referee, out of the purchase money.—Dated September 25th, 1905.

LEGAL SALES.

Pursuant to the judgment in the above-entitled action, dated the 3d day of August, 1905, duly entered in the Clerk's office of said county, and for the purpose of closing the interests of certain estates in the properties mentioned below, I will offer at public auction on the 17th day of October, 1905, at 12 o'clock noon, at the New York Real Estate Exchange Salesroom, 14 and 16 Vesey Street, by Edward J. Roberts, auctioneer, the following-described properties located at Classon Point:

FIRST PARCEL.

All that certain lot, piece, or parcel of land, known and distinguished by the number (Twenty-two) XXII., on a certain map filed in the office of the Register of the County of Westchester on the 30th day of June, in the year 1868, designated as number (76) seventy-six, and entitled map of Classons Point, in the town of Westchester, designed by Ignatz Pilot, surveyed by Gust. Famback and William Livingston, May, 1868, and bounded and described as follows: On the southerly side by lot number twenty-four on said map, on the easterly side by the creek, on the northwesterly side by lot number twenty on said map, and on the southwesterly side by lot number twenty-three on said map, containing fifteen acres and sixty-seven-hundredths of an acre, and subject to the easement of so much of meadow drive as is included within said premises.

Being the same premises conveyed to Frederic R. Coudert, Charles Coudert, and Louis Leonce Coudert by K. T. Dyckman, referee, &c., by deed dated April 25th, 1878, recorded in the Register's office of Westchester County in Liber 949 of Deeds at Page 224.

SECOND PARCEL.

All that certain lot, piece, or parcel of land known and distinguished by the number thirty-three on a certain map filed in the office of the Register of the County of Westchester, on the thirtieth day of June, in the year one thousand eight hundred and sixty-eight, designated as Number 76, and entitled "Map of Classon's Point, in the Town of Westchester, designed by Ignaz Pilot, surveyed by Gust. Famback and William G. Livingston, May, 1868," and bounded and described as follows: On the northeasterly side by the centre of the public road to the point on the southerly side by Long Island Sound, and on the westerly side by Lot No. XXXIV., on said map, containing two acres and thirty-two-hundredths of an acre, and subject to the easement of so much of said public road as is included in said premises, together with all the right, title, and interest of the owners in and to the land under water in front of and adjacent to said premises.

Being the same premises conveyed by Gerard M. Stevens, referee, to Frederic R. Coudert, Charles Coudert, Jr., and Louis Leonce Coudert by deed dated the 29th day of March, 1877, and recorded in the Register's office of Westchester County in Liber 929 of Deeds at Page 371.

Terms: Each parcel will be sold separately, free and clear of all incumbrances except as above. The purchaser will be required at the time of sale to execute the usual memorandum of sale, and to pay ten per cent. of the purchase price, and the residue on the 15th day of November, 1905, when deed will be ready for delivery.
Dated New York, September 15th, 1905.
FREDERIC R. COUDERT, Executor, &c.

SURROGATE NOTICES.

SCHWARZE, PAULINE.—The People of the State of New York, by the grace of God free and independent.—To Edward De Witt, an executor named in the will of the testatrix hereinafter named, and Frank Schwarze, Victor Schwarze, Theresa S. Dickert, Elizabeth Bickham, Minnie Sears, Frederick Schwarze, Matilda Ruff, Augustus Schwarze, John Schwarze, Pauline Hebermann, Children or descendants of said Victor Schwarze, if any, (provided the said Victor Schwarze died before said testatrix hereinafter named) who are or may be next of kin of said decedent, which said person or persons, if any there be, are unknown and their names, places of residence, and Post Office addresses are unknown and cannot after diligent inquiry be ascertained, and who are cited as a class, the next of kin of PAULINE SCHWARZE, late of the County of New York, deceased, send greeting:

Whereas, Theresa S. Dickert of the City of New York has lately applied to the Surrogates' Court of our County of New York to have a certain instrument in writing, bearing date the fifth day of September, 1903, relating to personal property, duly proved as the last will and testament of Pauline Schwarze, late of the County of New York, deceased; therefore you and each of you are cited to appear before the Surrogate of our County of New York, at his office in the County of New York, on the 29th day of November, one thousand nine hundred and five, at half-past ten o'clock in the forenoon of that day, then and there to attend the probate of the said last will and testament.

And such of you as are hereby cited as are under the age of twenty-one years are required to appear by your guardian, if you have one, or, if you have none, to appear and apply for one to be appointed, or, in the event of your neglect or failure to do so, a guardian will be appointed by the Surrogate to represent and act for you in the proceeding.

In testimony whereof, we have caused the seal of the Surrogates' Court of the said County of New York to be hereunto [Seal.] affixed. Witness, Hon. Abner C. Thomas, a Surrogate of our said County of New York, at said county, the 4th day of October, in the year of our Lord one thousand nine hundred and five.
JAMES A. DONNELLY,
Clerk of the Surrogates' Court.

HYDE READY TO TESTIFY IN INSURANCE INQUIRY

Nc Reservation as to Questions, as He Had Requested.

McINTYRE GIVES IN, TOO

Will Go on the Stand Whenever the Committee Wants Him—McCurdy a Witness To-day.

James H. Hyde, formerly Vice President of the Equitable Life Assurance Society, has returned to New York and will appear before the Armstrong committee whenever his testimony is desired. This announcement was made on Mr. Hyde's behalf yesterday, and also that there would be no restriction as to the scope of questions that might be put to him. He is not under subpoena, and it is understood will not be subpoenaed, as he stands ready to appear at any time. William H. McIntyre, who was Fourth Vice President of the Equitable until the reorganization last Summer, it is said will also return to the city and place himself at the disposal of the investigating committee.

Counsel Charles E. Hughes has been very anxious to question Mr. Hyde and Mr. McIntyre, because there are several lines of Equitable activity on which they seem to be the only persons, apart from ex-President Alexander, who is ill, competent to speak definitely. This is the case particularly with regard to the various "yellow dog" funds. One of these, popularly known as the "$685,000 loan," and officially designated as "J. W. A. Account No. 3," was backed for the last six years of its existence by a note indorsed by James H. Hyde as Vice President of the Equitable. Another fund, also in the Mercantile Trust Company, was maintained as a loan to the Secretary of ex-President Louis Fitzgerald of that corporation. These two accounts, it is believed, furnished the means of payments of Equitable money for purposes political and otherwise which it was not desired to have a matter of public record. A third fund in the Equitable Trust Company was maintained, according to the testimony of witnesses before the Armstrong committee, in the guise of a loan to a clerk in the Equitable offices, but actually for the purpose of certain syndicate operations, the proceeds of which in some instances were devoted to replenishing the other two accounts.

Another matter concerning which Mr. Hughes will be glad to get Mr. Hyde's testimony is the participation taken out in his name on behalf of the society in the Union Pacific preferred stock holding syndicate, which Kuhn, Loeb & Co. managed. There is a conflict between the testimony Mr. Hyde gave to the Superintendent of Insurance on this subject and that of Mr. Schiff before the Armstrong committee. According to Mr. Hyde's statement to the State Superintendent, it was understood on the part of everybody concerned that his participation was taken out on behalf of the society. Mr. Schiff, on the other hand, said that he knew nothing of this, and understood that Mr. Hyde's participation of $2,500,000, which E. H. Harriman obtained, was purely a personal affair.

When the investigators meet, at 10:30 o'clock this morning, President Richard A. McCurdy of the Mutual Life will be put on the witness stand again. Mr. McCurdy will be asked to explain the "confidential legal payments" by the Mutual Life, to which other officers of the company have testified.

A lead has been turned up which promises to throw a little more light on these matters, and it runs into the Morristown Trust Company, in which the Mutual has large stockholdings. Counsel for the committee will inquire whether or not checks drawn for various payments of this kind were upon that company and were subsequently indorsed to some institution in this city where they would appear merely as charges against the account of the Morristown Trust Company.

This scheme of making "confidential" legal payments, it has been reported to the investigators, was originated in the days of the late Charlton T. Lewis, who was a member of the Mutual's legal staff for many years after the old Chamber of Life Insurance, organized for handling legislative matters for the various companies, went out of existence, in the eighties.

A large part of President McCurdy's examination will have to do with his participation in syndicates in which the Mutual also was interested, and with his holdings in the various subsidiary companies within the Mutual's sphere of influence.

Attorney General Mayer has about completed his reply to the letter of the Merchants' Association, demanding action against the officials of some of the companies. Mr. Mayer, who left for Albany last night, declined to say what his reply would be, but it is understood that he will deplore "precipitate action" and advise that everybody suspend judgment until after the insurance investigation is over.

Talk that one or more new life insurance companies organized on a stock basis would soon enter the field here was started in Wall Street yesterday, but it had no more tangible basis than the opinion of several life insurance men who did not want to be quoted that such undertakings would be the logical outcome of the disclosures affecting mutual companies.

CAUGHT BELOW DEAD LINE.

Detective Says Lipman Was Engaged in Picking Pockets.

A policeman wearing the wheel of the Traffic Squad on his left sleeve walked down Broadway at a brisk gait just after noon yesterday. Another man followed him. They were nearing the Wall Street corner when the man behind made a dash forward that brought him up to the side of the policeman.

"There's the fellow," he cried, pointing to a half-grown boy a little further down Broadway.

"And I'll be blowed if he ain't just turning a trick," said the man in uniform. He had barely reached the youngster when another man stepped in between.

The boy said he was Abraham Lipman of 258 Delancey Street. The man who pointed him out to Policeman Morton of the Traffic Squad was Leslie Vreeland of 2 Dover Street, whose $100 watch and fob Lipman was charged with having stolen at Fulton and Nassau Streets only a few minutes earlier. At the time of the arrest he was under close observation by Detective Sergeant Calvin, who said he saw him trying to pick a pocket and was about to arrest him. Lipman was held in the Tombs Court on a charge of highway robbery.

"SMART SET" AGENT GONE.

Solicitor Ahle Does Not Appear When Blackmail Case Is Called.

When the case against Charles H. Ahle, the solicitor for "America's Smart Set" who is accused of attempt to blackmail Broker Edwin M. Post out of $500 by means of a letter written on the letterhead of Town Topics, was called in General Sessions yesterday, Assistant District Attorney Vandiver informed Judge McMahon that the defendant could not be found.

The court forfeited the bond of $3,500, but gave counsel until to-morrow morning to produce Ahle.

NEW FRENCH-AMERICAN BANK.

Henry Brunner Going to Paris to Complete Arrangements for It.

A new French-American bank is in process of formation with the special purpose of facilitating commercial operations between the United States and France. The new bank will be known as the Banque Franco-Americaine. Pierre Baudin, formerly Minister of Public Works and now Chairman of the Ways and Means Committee of the French Chamber of Deputies, has been chosen President of the institution. The men identified with the promotion of the bank in this country are Henry Brunner, C. H. Botsford, who was instrumental in establishing the Italian-American Trust Company of New York, and Edward F. Cragin of 100 Broadway.

Conferences will be held to-day with New York bankers, with the object of completing the American Directorate of the bank. Mr. Brunner expects to sail for France on Saturday to complete the establishment of the Paris branch of the bank.

Mr. Brunner is cashier of the Central Trust Company of California in San Francisco and is identified with other banking institutions on the Pacific Coast. Moreover, he is the head of a private banking house in Switzerland which has been active for the last five or six years in placing American securities in that country.

The plans for the formation of the Banque Franco-Americaine have been under discussion for some months. Two banks have been formed recently with the object of bringing French investors in close touch with the American security market, the Société Financière Franco-Americaine, which was founded by Speyer & Co., and the French Finance Corporation, with which other New York banking interests are identified. These two banks give special attention to the sale in France of American securities. The Banque Franco-Americaine, it is said, will be a commercial bank rather than an institution for fostering French investments in American securities.

The purposes of the new bank will be to bring American manufacturers into close touch with customers in France, and in this way attempt to increase trade between the two countries. The bank will be devoted to the transaction of the banking business growing out of the trade between the two countries, but it proposes also to serve as a credit agency through which definite information can be had of the financial responsibility of those who may seek to transact business with American manufacturers. It proposes also to do similar service for French exporters.

IVINS HITS MORE HEADS, PARTICULARLY ODELL'S

Will Have Nothing to Say to the Republican Boss.

CRITICISM OF MR. JEROME

He's Unnecessarily Belligerent, Says the Republican—An Open Letter to Hearst.

William M. Ivins, Republican candidate for Mayor, added more life to the campaign yesterday. He declared that he wouldn't know State Chairman Odell if he met Mr. Odell in the street, and was not expecting a meeting with him, as he (Mr. Ivins) had nothing to say to Odell; he picturesquely criticised District Attorney Jerome, and he wrote an open letter to William R. Hearst in which he declared that he would ask no financial aid of the Republican Party nor accept any, and suggested to Mr. Hearst that they both hold Tammany Hall to a rigid accounting in the matter of campaign expenses.

Mr. Ivins was informed that State Chairman Odell had been in town all day and asked if he had received a call from him. This was his reply:

"I have not seen Gov. Odell. I don't know that I would know him if I were to meet him in the street. I have not seen him in twelve years, and then only once met him in litigation. I know nothing of his movements and have no interest in them. I have not been asked to meet him and have not asked to meet him. He has not communicated with me, nor I with him. If he calls on me I shall welcome him as I would any other gentleman, but I shall not call on him, for I have no more to say to him now than I have had any time these twelve years."

Mr. Ivins said he had not had any reply to his announcement that he would be pleased to have Mr. Jerome speak from the same platform with him if Mr. Jerome desired to do so. Speaking of Mr. Jerome's candidacy he said:

"I admire Mr. Jerome very much. I regard him as an able, a courageous, and an unnecessarily belligerent man. I have nothing but applause for Mr. Jerome's public work. If he is not elected District Attorney he will have no one but himself to blame.'

"Why?" Mr. Ivins was asked.

"Because," he replied, "in my judgment he hasn't conducted the kind of a canvass that looks to success. A man can't treat all mankind as a punching bag and then expect men to fall down and worship him."

The letter Mr. Ivins sent to William R. Hearst read as follows:

"William R. Hearst, Esq.:

"My Dear Sir: I have read your letter in to-day's issues of the newspapers with keen interest. I particularly note the emphasis which you place upon 'Talk.'

"I dislike extremely the element of personality and should prefer to leave it altogether out of the campaign, but it would seem to be inevitable. You say: 'I do not think that talk is what the people want at this time; we have had talk for years, and nothing but talk.'

"Now, in this I agree with you thoroughly. It is performance, not promise, that the people want. I am justified, therefore, in asking you what guarantee you have for believing that you can transmute this promise into performance, convert talk into fact, in the event of your being elected Mayor. Surely you must recognize that it will be a complete impossibility, without the help of that Republican Party in the State of New York which it seems to me you needlessly revile.

"It is difficult for me to believe that you seriously contemplate an election and at the same time thus in advance take steps to guarantee the hostility of the people without whose aid you can accomplish nothing. You will hereafter, as now, have the support of some clever and brilliant men, such Mr. E. B. Whitney, who is an excellent lawyer and a man of rare honesty of purpose—men who will be useful to you in the formulation of the desired objects, but who can scarcely forge the instrument without which your administration would be impotent. If you and he are to-day fighting bravely, as you are, for municipal ownership, I beg you not to forget that I was a large contributor to the beginnings of the present situation, that I was already discussing, and effectively discussing, the issues before you were out of college.

"In a recent article in the International Quarterly Mr. Whitney says:

"'An era of perpetual or practically perpetual servitudes commenced with the era of corruption at the middle of the nineteenth century. The limitations of 1851 were never again imposed. Governors and Mayors from time to time protested in veto messages, as did Edwin D. Morgan in 1860 and William R. Grace in 1886, but legislators and Aldermen did not heed their protests.'

"In 1886, as Chamberlain of the city, I was a member of Mayor Grace's Cabinet, and in that Cabinet supported and heartily advocated the attitude of the Mayor with respect to franchises, and your own advocate and supporter, Mr. Whitney, thus supplies me with the proof that I was at work, and effectively at work, in this identical field of which you seek to assume a monopoly, before either of you even knew of the existence of the problem.

"As you cannot monopolize the issue of municipal ownership—of a preservation to the community of the wealth of the community—neither can you monopolize the issue with regard to our public schoolhouses, clean streets, Police Department, gas, or subways. These questions are of immense importance, but the fundamental issue is to deprive Tammany Hall, the hereditary and irredeemable enemy of good government, of its power in our community and not to confiscate the property of the honest investor. It is

UPSETS CIVIL SERVICE RULE.

By President's Order Cabinet Officers May Dismiss Employes.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 17.—The horseplay of a Government chauffeur has led to the most sweeping modification of the civil service rules that ever has been made. The President to-day signed the following:

"EXECUTIVE ORDER.

"When the President or head of an executive department is satisfied that an officer or employe in the classified service is inefficient or incapable, and that the service will be materially improved hy his removal, such removal will be made without hearing, but the cause of removal shall be stated in writing and filed. When misconduct is committed in the view and presence of the President or head of executive department, removal may be made summarily and without notice.

"THEODORE ROOSEVELT.

"The White House, Oct. 17, 1905."

This new rule has been the subject of discussion in the Cabinet for some time. It was suggested by the President's experience recently while out driving with Mrs. Roosevelt. A chauffeur in a Government automobile persisted in running in and out of the path of the President's carriage, and kept cutting the President out of the road until he was more than ordinarily annoyed.

The President on narrating the incident said that such a case of irresponsibility on the part of a man who had a Government vehicle in charge ought to be punishable with instant dismissal. To this it was observed by a member of the Cebinet that the man was under the civil service rules and entitled to notice in writing of his offense and could require a reasonable time within which to be heard in defense.

The amendment to the rules in effect makes an exception to Rule 2, Section 8, which declares that no removal shall be made from the classified service except for just cause and for reasons given in writing, and the person sought to be removed shall have notice and be furnished a copy of such reasons, and be allowed a reasonable time for personally answering the same in writing.

The President's order caused a commotion in official and political circles. The point was promptly made that it was a step in the direction of the old days of the spoilsmen, when a clerk's head could be taken off without so much as saying "by your leave" to any one.

MANY BANKERS ACCUSED.

DENVER, Oct. 17.—Leonard Imboden, James A. Hill, C. B. Wilfley, E. E. Hull, H. L. Hull, C. C. Roberts, W. T. Camp, D. M. Carey, A. B. Davis, and J. H. Edmondson were indicted by the Grand Jury to-day on the charge of conspiring to steal $1,712,587 from the Denver Savings Bank.

Wilfley and Edmondson are ex-Presidents of the bank, and Hill was President of the bank when a receiver was appointed on Aug. 19. H. L. Hull is President of the Mount Vernon National Bank of Boston. Roberts and Carey are officers of the Cherokee State Bank of Enid, Oklahoma; Camp and Davis are officers of the Texas State Trust Company of Fort Worth, Texas; Imboden and E. E. Hull are promoters.

In addition to the general conspiracy indictment seven indictments were found against Edmondson on charges of larceny, embezzlement, and converting the funds of the depositors to his own use. He is charged specifically with the robbery of $105,000.

Four indictments were returned against Wilfley, charging him with lending certain funds belonging to the bank and securing heavy commissions for his own use. One indictment was returned against Hill, charging him with the embezzlement of $10,000.

Imboden, Wilfley, and Hill were arrested this afternoon.

MARRIED OR GOING TO BE.

Problem About a Ship-Owning Widow Which Remains Unsolved.

Announcement was made early yesterday that Mrs. J. Marshall Phillips and Col. Moses Dillon of Chicago were to be married at noon to-day at Sherry's. They had a fine party there last night, and somehow the report got around that the wedding had taken place ahead of schedule time.

Mrs. J. Marshall Phillips is a widow. She owns a fleet of vessels sailing out of Boston. Col. Moses Dillon is a retired officer of the United States Army, who since his retirement from the army has made a fortune in the lumber business.

Mrs. Phillips lives at the Hotel Somerset. So does Col. Dillon. The clerk said last night that he did not know whether they had been married or not.

"Are they registered?" a reporter asked, with an idea of settling it that way.

"They don't have to register," replied the clerk. "They have lived here a long time."

Sherry's did not think there had been a wedding at the restaurant, but they have so many there that no one was sure.

SHE CARRIED CASH BAIL.

Philadelphia Shoplifter Furnishes $400 from Her Satchel.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 15.—A department store detective saw a woman, expensively dressed, take a Persian lamb coat valued at $275 from a rack, fling it carelessly across her arm, and leave the store. Two detectives obliged her to return.

"I don't know why I took the coat," she said. "I surely had no reason to do so. I have money enough to buy it," and she opened her hand bag, displaying more than $500. She said she was Mrs. Annie Barr, and that her home was in San Francisco. She had been on a visit to relatives in Brooklyn and was on her way to San Francisco. Her husband, she said, had provided her with $1,000 to pay the expenses of her trip.

When taken before Magistrate McCleary she pleaded for leniency, offering to pay for the coat.

"I never did such a thing before," she cried. "I don't want my husband and child to know of my disgrace. It would kill me if they heard of it."

The Magistrate bound her over under $400 bail for a further hearing to-morrow, and Mrs. Barr furnished the cash.

CONVICTS EMPLOYED AS PHILADELPHIA POLICE

WEAVER BARRED AT HEARING

Mayor and Directors Told to Leave as Council Committee Investigates His Administration.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 17.—"How are the homes of this city protected? I'll tell you! By men who have spent three and four years in the penitentiary, and whose pictures were taken from the Rogues' Gallery by ex-Director Smyth!" exclaimed Supt. Taylor of the Police Department on the witness stand this afternoon.

He was called at the inquiry before the Councils' Comittee of Seven appointed last August to investigate the administration of Mayor Weaver. He had been pressed so herd by the committee's counsel that he burst out in an angry torrent, not waiting for questions.

"If you want to know the whole truth," said he, "I'll tell you how Smyth told me to take care of repeaters. By his direction, I had to take from the Rogues' Gallery the photographs of men he put on the police force."

The Chairman tried to check him and threatened to eject him, but without effect. One of the attorneys said that what the committee wanted to know was how the homes of the people were protected. Taylor took the words out of his mouth and flung back the answer.

Taylor testified that he was President of the Twenty-fourth Ward Republican Club, and that the greater number of the policemen of the district were members of the organization. On the last meeting night forty or fifty policemen attended, some leaving beats. Permission came from the Lieutenant of the district, who had received an order from ex-Director of Public Safety Smyth, which had not been rescinded, allowing the men to attend political meetings if they wished to. Taylor denied that he issued orders to men how to vote on club matters, except that he told them he was with the administration, and they all ought to help the Mayor.

Lieut. Thomas Campbell, in command of the district under investigation, followed Tsylor on the stand. He said that on the night of the last meeting of the club, of the twenty-eight men on duty half attended the meeting, while the other half had to cover a larger amount of territory. He confirmed Supt. Taylor's statement that the men were permitted to leave their beats under an old order of ex-Director Smyth. Other witnesses corroborated him.

After the hearing, Taylor, in explanation of his statement as to repeaters, said that Smyth, when in office, told him not to let the policemen molest repeaters on election day.

Only one witness was admitted to the chamber at a time. All doors and windows were closed. Mayor Weaver sent a letter by messenger to the committee just before 3 o'clock, the hour set for the hearing, asking permission for himself and his Directors to be present. The Mayor's letter said:

"I am extremely anxious that every act of wrongdoing committed by any person in any way connected with the administration may be fully and impartially disclosed. I do not see how this can be done under the rules you have adopted, excluding the responsible heads of the departments as well as myself.

"I have noted that the counsel whom you have retained are the counsel for certain officers and contractors now under criminal charges and indictments for frauds upon the city or inculpated in such frauds. It seems to me that it is impossible for these counsel to occupy the dual relationship of representing at the same time those now under formal criminal accusations (whose acts, I presume, you will also investigate) in the courts of justice, and impartially aiding you in an investigation touching the integrity of the municipal administration."

The committee made no reply, and on the minute of 3 o'clock Mayor Weaver, accompanied by Col. Sheldon Potter, Director of Public Safety; A. Lincoln Acker, Director of Public Works, and F. J. Shoyer, Director of the Department of Supplies, walked into the room. A few minutes later the Sergeant at Arms politely informed the Mayor that his party would have to retire.

Mr. Weaver asked if the committee meant to convey that neither he nor his Directors could be present while the departments were under investigation and that they could not defend themselves against the testimony of discharged employee. Chairman Work's only reply was that the committee intended to abide by its rules. After some further parleying the Mayor and his Directors filed out. There was a large crowd in the corridor, but no demonstration ensued.

$5,000,000 FOR BIBLES.

American Bible Society to Ask for a Huge Fund.

CAPE MAY, Oct. 17.—At the Presbyterian Synod of New Jersey to-day the Rev. Dr. John Fox of East Orange, one of the Secretaries of the American Bible Society, declared an appeal for $5,000,000 was being prepared, to aid the society in spreading the Gospel.

Resolutions were unanimously adopted urging a movement to obtain better temporance legislation, including a wise general option law. The resolutions urged an appeal to Congress, looking to the prohibition of the liquor traffic in the Indian Territory. The Synod also decided to maintain its attitude against the repeal of the existing statutory prohibition of liquor sales in military camps.

At the evening session of the synod the plan for the evangelical revival, which it is proposed to conduct from one end of the State to the other, was outlined. The meetings will begin on Nov. 19. Every town of any size in New Jersey will be provided with an evangelist preacher and musicians. Men and women will be drawn from all parts of the United States to take part in the meetings.

JEROME AND IVINS TICKET.

Some enthusiastic friends of District Attorney Jerome, acting on their own initiative without his knowledge, began last night to circulate an entirely new ticket which names Mr. Jerome for re-election and many of his friends for other offices. They say they will have the necessary 2,000 signatures by midnight, and that the ticket will be known as that of the Voters' League. The emblem will be a black circle inscribed "Blackball the Bosses' Men."

The ticket includes the Republican nominees for Mayor, Controller, and President of the Board of Aldermen, Messrs. Ivins, Teale, and Wells, respectively. Joseph H. Choate, Justice Gildersleeve, and Justice Ingraham are named for the Supreme Court. Charles A. Perkins is named for the Court of General Sessions and Nicholas J. Hayes for Sheriff.

William Rand, Mr. Jerome's right-hand man, is selected for County Clerk; Mr. Jerome for District Attorney, John A. Henneberry for Register, Robert Grier Monroe for President of Manhattan, and Messrs. Brown, Goldenkranz, Monroe, and Scholer for Coroners.

"Nobody on the ticket knows that the petition is in circulation," said one of the promoters last night. "We are going to give 'em all a surprise. We'll be there, though, with our 2,000 names when the time comes."

STOKES DIDN'T REMEMBER.

Registration Clerk Quizzed in Vain to Get a Line on His Past Votes.

There is much curiosity on the lower east side as to whether J. G. Phelps Stokes will vote for Ivins, McClellan, or Hearst for Mayor. He is on the Hearst ticket as a candidate for President of the Board of Aldermen.

Mr. Stokes appeared before the Board of Registry at 38 Ludlow Street on Saturday evening. Barnard Lewis of 62 Essex Street was there to represent Tammany. He had never happened to meet Mr. Stokes.

Mr. Stokes gave his name and address properly. He lives on the top floor of 47-49 Madison Street. He said that he was 34 years old; that he had lived thirty-four years in the State, and that he had been a resident of the precinct for thirty-three days.

The election clerk then began to ask the questions cited in the registration book.

"Where did you last vote?"

"I don't remember."

"Did you vote at the last election, the year before, or the year before that?" was next asked. Mr. Stokes could not remember that.

"Did you vote at the last Presidential election," was asked, "or the one before that, and when did you first cast a Presidential ballot?" inquired the election clerk.

Mr. Stokes could not remember.

"Well, Mr. Stokes," said the Tammany Inspector, "my first vote was the proudest event in my life. There was a fight outside the polling booth, in which I engaged afterward. I felt on that day that I had really reached man's estate."

There was handed to Mr. Stokes one of the blue envelopes provided for those who wish to vote at the primaries. This he put in his pocket. He was advised that it was a ballot in case of a contest at the next primaries. Withdrawing it he read it over carefully for seven minutes.

"If I can't take it home to peruse I'll leave it here," said Mr. Stokes, laying the envelope on the table.

"Well," said the Tammany Inspector, "I'll be—"

And words failed him.

PHOTOGRAPHS MARS'S CANALS

Prof. Lowell Gains Confirmation of Telescopic Observations.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, Oct. 17.—It is announced at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology that Prof. Percival Lowell, non-resident Professor of Astronomy, obtained in the last opposition of the planet Mars photographs which conform strikingly to the details of the markings, particularly the "canals," observed and drawn by Prof. Lowell with the telescope and described by him in publications. Dr. C. O. Lampland assisted him.

A collection of these photographs mounted side by side with the drawings made at the same time has been presented to the Royal Society. The photographs are to be brought to Boston in the near future.

Heretofore the discussion concerning the details and actual extent of the so-called canals has been complicated with the personal equation of the observer. Prof. Lowell's theory, based on several years' observations at Flagstaff, Arizona, where he had the clearest atmosphere and best glasses, is that these markings are irrigating canals. That they contain water apparently is proved by the fact that in the Springtime their edges take on a green tinge, as of the verdure on a river bank.

IRVING'S BODY CREMATED.

Ashes Are to be Placed in Poets' Corner, Westminster Abbey.

LONDON, Wednesday, Oct. 18.—At an early hour this morning the body of Sir Henry Irving was removed in great secrecy to a crematorium, the name of which is not given, where it was cremated. The secrecy was due to the desire of the family to avoid publicity.

To-morrow night the ashes will be taken to Westminster Abbey, where, in accordance with custom, they will lie in St. Faith's Chapel until the funeral ceremony on Friday. The funeral cortège will start from the residence of Baroness Burdett-Coutts, in Stratton Street, Piccadilly, which the Baroness has placed at the disposal of the family.

A spot alongside Garrick's grave in Poets' Corner, Westminster Abbey, has been selected for the interment, and Irving's ashes will therefore lie directly beneath the statue of Shakespeare.

King Edward will be represented at the funeral. Twelve hundred cards of admission to the Abbey will be issued. The honorary Secretaries have already received applications exceeding this number to attend the funeral.

FATAL TONG SHOOTING FOLLOWED BY FIGHT

SIGHTSEERS IN A PANIC

The Tong war in Chinatown broke out again last night. Soon after 10 o'clock, when Mott Street was busiest, a single shot rang out. The crowd of sightseers thronged the sidewalks. The automobiles were lined up as usual in front of the restaurants.

There was not a hint of trouble in the air. Louis Sung, a laundry man, clad in regulation Chinese costume, was walking slowly along Mott Street, and was at the dividing line between 9 and 11. He was seemingly at peace with the world, and was paying no attention to his surroundings, when a man stepped out from a doorway and made for him.

Louis Sung half turned and looked into the barrel of a long pistol. Then there was a flash. The laundryman fell. He turned into the door of No. 11 and stumbled up the stairs. The Chinaman who had done the shooting ran into No. 17. There he slipped out of sight.

In an instant Mott Street was transformed. From every doorway streams of Chinamen tumbled, and from the Bowery a big wave rolled in. The sightseers were jostled about and overwhelmed by the crowd. Policemen bobbed up.

The police invaded every house. They had to fight back the sightseers with the swarming mass of Chinamen and the outpourings from the Bowery saloons. On the top floor of No. 11 Sung was found, stretched on a little table. He had been shot through the back, and the bullet had passed through his stomach. An ambulance was summoned from the Hudson Street Hospital, and the search for the man who had done the shooting set in.

While the search was under way half a dozen policemen were thrown about the doorway of No. 11 and strove to beat back the crowd. The reserves were called out from the Elizabeth Street Station and tried to clear a road for the ambulance. When the ambulance, its gong clanging, appeared, the roughest element of the crowd broke loose.

John Ryan of 332 East Twenty-sixth Streeet was shoved into a doorway and told to deliver his watch and money by a hard-faced man who had two others at his elbows. He was about to obey when Detective Miller ran up, caught the highwayman by his collar, and yanked him backward. The detective was set upon by two men, who afterward said they were John Conners and Henry Fenton. Miller shouted for help, and other policemen responded. The three men were overpowered and locked up in the Elizabeth Street Station.

Meanwhile the reserves had enabled the ambulance doctor force to enter No. 11 and take out the wounded man. He was put into the ambulance and taken to the hospital.

A minute later Detective Noonan found a Chinaman crouching in the back yard of 17 Mott Street. He was holding a pistol, one chamber empty, in his hand. Noonan promptly arrested the Chinaman.

At the Elizabeth Street Police Station he said he was Hom Wah Toy, 18 years old, and a recent arrival in New York. He was charged with the shooting of Sung and locked up.

Sung was said to be dying when he was taken to the Hudson Street Hospital. The police of the Elizabeth Street Station said he was a member of the Hip Sing Tong and that Toy was imported by the On Leong Tong to help "get square" for the onslaught that the members of that body suffered in the Chinese theatre not long ago.

"The On Leong Tong has been hunting for trouble all day," said one policeman. "Early in the afternoon a Chinaman tried to shoot a Hip Sing man, but his revolver merely snapped the cartridge. This was a Tong shooting to-night, all right. It's the On Leong Tong getting even."

Toy was identified in the hospital as the man who had done the shooting.

CLOSED SHOP UNLAWFUL,

If the Unions Attempt to Coerce the Employer, Says Court.

CHICAGO, Oct. 17.—The injunction issued last week, restraining members of Typographical Union No. 16 from interfering with the firme composing the Chicago Typothetae during the present strike of union printers, was sustained to-day by Judge Holdom, in the Superior Court, in a decision which classes the attempts of the typographical union to force a contract for an eight-hour day and for a closed shop on the employers as unlawful. Judge Holdom said:

"The foundation of the strike in this case is the union contract demanding a closed shop and an eight-hour day. Both the closed shop and the eight-hour day are unlawful when it is attempted to coerce the employer to agree to them."

The injunction, as it stands, restrains the union and its members from interfering with the business or employes of the complainant firms, either by attempting to dissuade the employes from working or from sending out circulars to the customers of the firms asking them to boycott the strike-bound houses.

Man Killed in the Subway.

William J. Murray, a car cleaner employed in the Subway, was run down by a south-bound Broadway train last night at 113th Street and instantly killed. John Murphy, the motorman, said that Murray carried no lamp, and he did not see the man until the train was almost upon him.

Flies Disseminate Cholera.

PARIS, Oct. 17.—Prof. Chantemisse, head of the Pasteur Institute, lecturing at the Academy of Medicine to-day, said his experiments had proved that flies were the greatest disseminators of cholera in the towns.

BILLIARD ROOM IN CHURCH.

John D. Rockefeller to Pay for Fitting Up Cleveland Men's Club.

Special to The New York Times.

CLEVELAND, Oct. 17.—Before he left for the East John D. Rockefeller promised to pay for improving the Men's Club-rooms in the Euclid Avenue Baptist Church.

In the renovation he planned to fit up a billiard room in the basement of the church. The Rev. Charles Eaton, the pastor, and the Trustees have approved Mr. Rockefeller's plans.

$75,000 BROADWAY FIRE.

Alarm Box Was Out of Order and This Caused Delay.

Broadway traffic was tied up for an hour at 7 o'clock last night by a fire on the seventh floor of the building at No. 473. The floor is occupied by Fishel & Weber, belt makers, and the American Comb Works.

The fire was difficult to control on account of the inflammable material in which it started. The damage is estimated at $75,000. The nearest fire box was out of order, and this caused delay.

THIRTY-FOUR HURT IN WRECK.

Two Cars Jump Track at Curve on Cheyenne and Northern.

CHEYENNE, Wyo., Oct. 17.—Thirty-four persons were injured in an accident to a north-bound passenger train on the Cheyenne and Northern Railroad to-day near Horse Creek, thirty-five miles north of Cheyenne. Three of the injured may die.

The train was rounding a curve when the smoking car and day coach left the rails, and rolled down a twenty-foot embankment. The locomotive and the baggage car had passed the spot in safety.

DYNAMITE FOR LOUBET.

Packages Concealed in Flowers Found at Barcelona.

PARIS, Oct. 17.—A dispatch to the Gil Blas from Madrid says the police of Barcelona have found a number of packages of dynamite concealed in flowers.

The investigation indicates that there was a plot to use dynamite in the course of President Loubet's approaching visit to King Alfonso. Several arrests have been made.

President Loubet will leave Paris for Madrid Oct. 22, and will be the guest of King Alfonso until Oct. 26.

MAN HUNT ON MT. McGREGOR.

Child's Father Heads Posse Searching for Her Assailant.

GLENS FALLS, Oct. 17.—Sheriffs of Saratoga and Warren Counties, with deputies, assisted by armed citizens, searched Mount McGregor and other mountains between Glens Falls and Corinth to-day for Patrick Toomey. He is charged with having attacked the fourteen-year-old daughter of Frank Ralph of Corinth last Saturday. Ralph is leading a posse.

Toomey has a shotgun, but he does not know the country, having lived in Corinth but two months.

LEXINGTON, Ky., Oct. 17.—After being sentenced to life imprisonment for the murder of George Farris, a well-known turfman and lumberman, at London, Ky., yesterday, Virgil Bowers, a negro, was taken from the Laurel County Jail last night by an armed and masked mob of two hundred people and hanged.

Circuit Judge Faulkner will empanel a special Grand Jury to-morrow in an effort to prosecute the men guilty of resorting to lynch law.

BURTON INDICTMENT FAULTY.

Judge Vandeventer Orders a Special Grand Jury to Return Another.

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 17.—Judge Willis Vandeventer in the United States Court of Appeals late to-day announced that he had sustained the demurrer to the indictment of United States Senator Burton of Kansas on the ground that the indictment was faulty. He ordered that another indictment be returned at once, and set Nov. 9 as the date for a special Grand Jury to meet.

Senator Burton gave bond in the sum of $5,000.

EXPLOSION AT HARVARD.

Boiler Tears Out Waverly Hall Portico—Telephone Booth Saves Man.

Special to The New York Times.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Oct. 17.—Waverly Hall, one of the big dormitories at Harvard, was damaged to-night by a boiler explosion. Mrs. Caroline Lias suffered from a broken arm and was badly burned; James Pounds, a Sophomore, was knocked down and stunned; Mrs. Louis E. Edes and her son fell into the hole torn by the explosion and narrowly escaped death. The fifty occupants of the hall were all badly scared.

The heavy stone portico of the building was wrecked and all the windows of the building were shattered. The report was heard several blocks away. The boiler was a small one under the portico at the front of the building. Pounds was in a telephone booth in the corridor, but the booth protected him from injuries more serious than shock.

E. B. Whittieay, a senior in the Scientific School, touched off a small cannon in his room on the fifth floor of College House, this afternoon. What he supposed was only a small charge exploded with a force that shattered windows. Smoke poured from his room, causing an alarm of fire.

BALD EAGLE ATTACKS A BOY.

Hunters Shoot It Twice Before Bird Gives Up the Battle.

Special to The New York Times.

BELLEVILLE, N. J., Oct. 17.—While Eugene Mongel of 14 Washington Street, Belleville, and his cousin, Pierre Lafayette of Woodside, were looking for game in a wood back of Hillside Park, Belleville, yesterday afternoon they were surprised by the appearance of a bald eagle.

The bird flew at Mongel with such force that he was knocked down. Lafayette got behind a tree. Before the eagle could attack Mongel again he rose and shot the bird in the wing.

The injury served only to increase the eagle's rage, and it continued to battle until Lafayette came to his companion's aid and finished it with another shot.

It was taken to Mongel's home, and with wings spread apart was found to measure five feet three inches. Mongel intends to stuff and mount it.

PAID BY THE MUTUAL FOR LEGAL SERVICES

Plunkitt, McClelland, Fricke, and J. Howard, Jr., on the List.

PRESIDENT McCURDY PROTESTS

Says the Inquiry Is Going Beyond Its Right Scope—Questioned About Printing Contracts.

President Richard A. McCurdy of the Mutual Life Insurance Company was on the stand all day yesterday at the City Hall. Counsel Hughes of the Armstrong investigating committee spent a good deal of time trying to find out about some of the confidential legal payments made by the Mutual Life Insurance Company in the last five years. He brought out several interesting things that will help him in his inquiry. President McCurdy still declared that he had no knowledge of specific purposes for which such payments were made, but he did throw a little more light upon the work of Andrew C. Fields, head of the Mutual's department of supplies.

Mr. Fields, President McCurdy at last admitted, besides handling the "printing, postage, stationery, and advertising" expenses of the Mutual, has had a good deal to do with legislative matters at Albany. He said that he even maintained a house there in "the season," because life in a hotel proved too great a tax on his strength, as he is advanced in years. Mr. Fields also appears to have authorized payments of Mutual Life money for various kinds of "legal services," as several of the vouchers introduced at yesterday's hearing bore his name, in addition to the O. K. of some executive officer of the company.

Just now Mr. Fields is in Southern California, or at least that is where Mr. McCurdy said he thinks he is. There is, however, a certain element of doubt about Mr. Fields's whereabouts. A physician's affidavit which the Mutual produced yesterday intimated the doctor's belief that Mr. Fields had gone West for his health late in the Spring or early in the Summer. President McCurdy testified that his manager of supplies was in the President's office as late as last July.

To Legal Services, George Plunkitt.

Several new names appeared yesterday, as those of persons who had shared in the "legal-service" payments of the Mutual. Notable among these is that of George Plunkitt, who got $901.15 for services on Feb. 20, 1905. There are two George Plunkitts in the City Directory—one is George W., Tammany politician and former State Senator, and the other is his son, George E., a lawyer of 38 Park Row. Mr. McCurdy said he did not know which George Plunkitt it was.

The elder Plunkitt is lying ill at his home in West Fifty-first Street. His son was just going into his home at 538 West Forty-sixth Street last night when a reporter met him returning from his father's.

"No, I don't know a thing about the voucher mentioned in the insurance investigation," said Mr. Plunkitt. "The Senator knows nothing about it, either. He does not know Fields, has never seen him. The testimony, as I understand it, was that this check was indorsed last February. The Senator was not in Albany then—he had left the year before. He hasn't seen the signature, of course, but he thinks it must be a forgery. He has never had any dealings with or performed any services for the Mutual Life Insurance Company.

"The same is true of myself. I have never had the slightest relation of any kind with the Mutual Life. I never did anything for the company, and it never paid me a penny."

Another name in the "legal service" category is that of Charles P. McClelland, now United States General Appraiser here. Mr. McClelland got $8,947.32 for "legal services and disbursements" between Dec. 17, 1900, and March 31, 1902. The next Fall he was elected to the Senate from Westchester, and served on the Insurance Committee in the session of 1903, receiving his present appointment from President Roosevelt the following Fall. Mr. McClelland lives in Dobbs Ferry, where he is a neighbor of Andrew C. Fields.

A third recipient of these payments was William C. Fricke, ex-Insurance Commissioner of the State of Wisconsin and a National authority on insurance law, who is now Superintendent here for the Union Life Insurance Company of Cincinnati. In January, 1904, he accepted a retainer of $5,000 to see that the Mutual "suffered no harm" in some legislative matters that were pending in the State of Wisconsin.

J. Howard, Jr., $2,500 a Year.

A little different variety of payment, although charged to "legal services," was turned up in the form of two vouchers from J. Howard, Jr. J. Howard, Jr., according to President McCurdy, is none other than Joseph Howard, who for many years has conducted a syndicate correspondence for newspapers all over the country, and was once President of the New York Press Club. The vouchers showed that he had received $2,500 on Feb. 1, 1904, and a like amount the next year "on account of professional services, repayable on demand." President McCurdy laughed a little as he said that the payments to Howard were "in the nature of advertising expenses," and had probably been charged to "legal services" by inadvertence. His idea was that Howard had been on the Mutual pay roll for some time at approximately $2,500 a year.

There was still another set of legal payments that attracted attention yesterday. They proved to be those to William Barnes, Sr., the father of the Republican leader of Albany County. The elder Mr. Barnes appeared on behalf of the insurance interests at the session of the Legislature last Winter in helping defeat Senator Brackett's bill to repeal Section 56 of the insurance law, which provides that suit for an accounting from an insurance company or for an injunction against such a company can be instituted only through the Attorney General. A letter from his son, William Barnes, Jr., the Albany Republican leader, in regard to his father's account was introduced in evidence.

Mr. Hughes spent considerable time yesterday over the Mutual's expenditure for stationery and printing. He drew from Mr. McCurdy the statement that Lysander W. Lawrence & Co. and the Globe Printing Company had handled the bulk of the Mutual printing and stationery work for many years. Soon after this Mr. Hughes brought out the fact that Lysander Lawrence, head of the Lawrence firm, was the Treasurer of the Globe Company, while his partner, Louis Ballard, is Secretary of the Globe Company. The President of the Globe Company is Edgar W. Rogers. It does not appear that Mr. Rogers is a member of the Lawrence firm, but last week when reporters sought Mr. Lawrence at his office Mr. Rogers received them there on Mr. Lawrence's behalf and as his accredited spokesman.

The trouble between the Mutual and Thomas L. Bowles, who was formerly its general agent at Milwaukee, came up just before the end of the session. After bringing charges of extravagance against the management and losing his place, Mr. Bowles conducted a campaign against the company that resulted in a liberal settlement of a suit he had brought. Mr. McCurdy explained that Bowles was removed for insubordination. This it turned out consisted in a preferment of the charges of extravagance against the management. Mr. McCurdy said that, although some of the charges concerned his official acts, his Board of Trustees had referred the whole case to him. He added that he did not believe many of the Trustees ever read the long document that contained the accusations, and was quite sure he had not gone over it in detail himself.

Bowles and a Farmer's Rifle.

Eventually Mr. Hughes wanted to know why the Mutual had settled with Mr. Bowles. This was Mr. McCurdy's reply:

"I don't want to be disrespectful to the committee, but I think a farmer is justified in buying a rifle to shoot a skunk instead of engaging him at close quarters."

At the opening of yesterday's session James McKeen, who is associated with Mr. Hughes, read to the committee a few figures bearing on James M. Beck's statement at the last hearing that the assets of the Mutual Life were greater than the combined assets of the Bank of England, the Bank of France, and the Bank of Germany. Mr. McKeen said that in view of the fact that Mr. Beck had justified the successive increases of President McCurdy's salary by this statement, he had obtained some data on the subject by cabling over to the other side. From this it appeared, he told the committee, that at the August report of this year the assets of the Bank of France amounted to $1,222,075,000, those of the Bank of Germany to $472,945,000, and those of the Bank of England to $531,554,725. The assets of the Mutual Life are $440,978,000, so that Mr. McKeen figured that Mr. Beck's conclusion was at least $1,785,596,725 out of the way. Mr. McKeen added that the President of the Bank of Germany received a salary of $30,000 a year and the Chief Governor of the Bank of England a salary of $10,000 a year, as against Mr. McCurdy's $150,000 a year.

Mr. Beck Was Mistaken.

This brought Mr. Beck to his feet. He said that in the haste of the moment when he referred to the figures the other morning he had made an unconscious misstatement. What he intended to say was that the assets of the Mutual were larger than the combined capitals of the three foreign institutions mentioned. Whereupon Mr. Hughes remarked drily that as the Mutual had no capital at all, he thought the comparison as eventually elucidated needed no further comment. Nevertheless, he added, as he took up the examination of Mr. McCurdy:

"I guess we'll compare assets with assets and capital with capital hereafter."

Mr. Beck made no response.

Mr. Hughes showed Mr. McCurdy an advertisement of the Mutual Life taken from a magazine for October of this year. Attached to it was a coupon containing a request for additional information concerning the company's "guaranteed compound-interest-bearing gold bond contract." Mr. Hughes wanted to know what was done with these coupons when they went back to the company. Mr. McCurdy made a long explanation to the effect that they were referred "to the proper department." Counsel asked him if, as a matter of fact, the coupons were not turned over to Charles H. Raymond & Co., General Agents for the Mutual for the metropolitan district. Mr. McCurdy said he didn't know anything about it. The investigating committee has heard that these coupons, the result of advertising for which the Mutual pays, are turned over to the Raymond firm. The Mutual's advertising manager, Mr. Sullivan, is under subpoena, and will be questioned on this point.

After his failure to draw from President McCurdy information on the question of the advertising coupon, Mr. Hughes took from his table copies of some letters which he said he had received from policy holders of the Mutual, and read some of them to the company's President. The first was from a man who said that in 1865, when he was 38 years old, he had taken out a ten-payment life policy for $3,000, on which he received dividends of more than $50 in each of the five years following his last premium payment. But whereas he had received $55.54 in 1876, he got but $39 in 1881, but $20 in 1891, and only $3 in 1904. The policy holder wanted some light on this situation, as, he said, "when the reserve on this policy has been increasing steadily year after year, which would, of course, tend to keep up dividends."

On this basis Mr. Hughes started to ask his witness for an explanation of the decrease in dividends in a period in which the assets of the company and its surplus had increased in a very marked degree. Mr. McCurdy interrupted him and said:

I want to make one general remark, if you will allow me, Mr. Hughes, and that is when you come to these calculations of dividends and so on you have got the wrong witness. You ought to, in fairness to me and in fairness to the company—you ought to call the actuary of the company, who can answer you readily and whose mind is stored with all these facts and figures and arguments that you precipitate upon me, entirely unprepared, and if I may be allowed to say so, with all due respect, I think it is taking an unfair advantage, for instance in this very case, although I should not profess to be an expert on such questions as this, and the actuary of the company is—take this very case—if you had been good enough to let me know the day before the nature of the investigation, or the line of the investigation that you were going to follow and what I might be expected to answer I should have been very glad indeed to have prepared myself for and answer you as well as I could; but witnesses are brought here without any knowledge of the line of examination that is to be followed, and they are taken entirely unprepared. I must say that I do not think it is fair treatment.

Now, on the other hand, if the committee will pardon me for stating my views—allow me to state my views on the subject—I think the whole course of this investigation, as it is called, is entirely outside of what was in contemplation by the Legislature when the committee was constituted. It is an investigation into the conditions of life insurance, and is what is commonly called in the newspapers "an inquisition," and Mr. Hughes himself—with all due respect to him I say it—has been designated Chief Inquisitor. Now I say that has a mediaeval sound not entirely in accordance with the ideas of the present age, I think; and to make this an inquisition, in which, as has been advertised in all the papers, witnesses are brought here and "put upon the rack" and all that sort of thing—that, I say, is in my opinion an entirely different conception of the functions of this examination than what I believe was in contemplation by the Legislature when they constituted a committee to look into the conditions of life insurance with regard to future legislation.

Mr. Hughes said:

This is indeed an inquisition, Mr. McCurdy, in the true sense that it is an inquiry into the facts which this committee and this counsel propose to get. We shall have occasion to call your Actuary, but you have been for some forty years with this insurance company. You are President of the company, and you are responsible for a salary of $150,000 a year. Now I want to know what you know about the business of the company.

"Trying to Make Me Out a Fool."

Mr. McCurdy sat bolt upright in his chair.

"You are trying to make me out a fool!" he rejoined with more feeling than he had exhibited at any time.

"Without commenting upon that, which obviously requires no comment," Mr. Hughes went on, "I want to ask you to tell me, not in great detail or with reference to anything abstruse, but in the most general manner, some of the considerations which are applicable to the course of business of your company. I think that is a proper line of inquiry, and I must ask you to answer my questions as best you can. Now in the first place, during the time that premiums are being paid upon the policies you recognize the fact, do you not, that the premiums so paid are calculated with reference to the supposed rate of mortality and the supposed rate of interest which the company will earn, and also with reference to the estimate of the amount which will be needed to meet the liabilities of the company. Isn't that so?"

"I refer you to the Actuary," replied President McCurdy.

"You don't know as to that?"

"I refer you to the Actuary," President McCurdy replied again, and he added that he would not enter into a discussion of such subjects, which, he said, were matters for the technical experts of the company to deal with.

"Well, then," said Mr. Hughes, "tell me, if you know, Mr. McCurdy, why it is that with all your boasted increase of assets and writing of new business your dividends last year on this policy were $3, and when your administration began they were $50. Do you know?"

"Very well," said Mr. McCurdy, "probably this policy—" Then he broke off and said, "But I do not admit the fact."

"Do you deny it?" asked Mr. Rogers of the committee.

Mr. McCurdy said he didn't propose to admit the assertions contained in this or any other similar letters that Mr. Hughes might produce until he had had them verified by the Actuaries of the company, but he supposed that the policy in question was what was called a reduced-rate policy, on which an initial reduction was made in premium and subsequently reflected itself in the dividend returned. Mr. Hughes thereupon brought out the fact that the reduced-rate policy was introduced in the Mutual just before Mr. McCurdy became President of the company, whereas the policy in question was issued twenty years before that. But Mr. McCurdy again declined to discuss the topic.

Mr. Hughes's Reason.

Q.—The reason I take it up with you, Mr. McCurdy, instead of calling at once for the Actuary, is that you have seen fit to present here a great many figures in connection with the fact that your salary has been largely increased, and which tended to show the great prosperity of your company, and also indicated the growth in assets and its growth in business. I want to know whether you know whether the prosperity of the company or the reverse has been indicated in the amount of interest earned and the amount of dividends which it has been able to credit upon its policies? A.—I believe that every one of the facts and figures submitted by Mr. Beck is correct. I believe that the company's prosperity is great and greater now than it ever has been, but beyond that I respectfully reassert that I decline to enter into any form of calculation where your best witness is the Actuary of the company and who is most competent to deal with them.

Q.—Is it a fact that the gains from excess interest which were applicable to paid-up policies were one-third in 1894 of what they had been in 1893? A.—Probably not, but I decline to discuss the question.

Q.—Why do you say "probably not"? I do not want a discussion; I want a fact. If you say you do not know, we shall accept that statement. A.—Then I withdraw the words "probably not," and I say I decline to discuss it.

Q.—Do you decline to answer it? A.—I decline to discuss that question, when I proffer you a witness whose business it is to discuss that very kind of a question.

Another Policy Holder's Letter.

Mr. Hughes read another letter from a policy holder who said that he had a policy for $5,000, dated Oct. 30, 1869, on which he allowed dividends to accumulate. These had run at times as high as $149 a year, but dropped down to $22 in 1903, and to $7 in 1904. Mr. McCurdy declared that the question was one for an actuary, that he "would not be led into a wilderness of questioning and cross-questioning that should be submitted to some other person to answer."

Q. (by Chairman Armstrong)—Mr. McCurdy, this committee is not here to lead you into a wilderness, and I do not think you quite apprehend the purpose of the committee or its counsel, whose duty it is and we are called to recommend proper legislation, and unless you gentlemen, who have practically all your lives been engaged in obtaining knowledge of these questions, are willing to give us this information—we want you to give it to us to the best of your knowledge—. A.—I am going to give it to you by the best and most competent witnesses you can summon, the Actuary of the company, who is the proper person to give you those answers.

The Chairman—If the committee prefers your knowledge and your judgment, based on your experience, you mean you would prefer not to give that?

The Witness—If it is a matter of preference with the committee, it is with me. If it is simply a matter of preference on the part of the committee, it is a matter of preference for me to adhere to the position I take.

Mr. Hughes said it was pertinent to inquire whether, if the returns obtained by the Mutual Life on its investments were at such reduced rate as to force reduction in dividends, it was proper for the company to increase the salaries of its executive officers. Mr. McCurdy said:

"I Don't Choose to Discuss It."

"You may think it pertinent to make that inquiry. I don't choose to discuss it."

Q. Whether you think it pertinent or not, have you anything to say upon that phase of it? A.—I have simply to say that when the matter of my salary was introduced here for discussion I declined to discuss it in a self-commendatory way. I didn't care to. I haven't fixed my salary. I have never been oversfond of self-advertising, and I am not here to justify my salary. Other people fixed that.

Q.—If you were determining without reference to any matter of personal interest what the salary of the President of your company should be, would you think it proper to take into consideration the diminishing returns from investments and the consequent diminution in the dividends credited upon policies? A.—I am not considering any such condition or proposition.

The Chairman—The question was, Mr. McCurdy, whether you think it proper to consider it—not whether you were.

The Witness—I don't see how you are going to cross-question a man upon his own inmost thoughts.

Q.—Not unless he is willing frankly to reveal them. A.—What?

The Chairman—Not while he reserves the privilege of submitting to the committee so much or so little as he chooses, according to his idea.

The Witness—Isn't that the nature of the evidence?

The Chairman—That is not the way to solve this situation we have before us.

The Witness—That is not what?

The Chairman—That is not the way to solve the situation we have before us, in my opinion, although it seems to be your opinion—it seems to be your opinion it is.

The Witness—It is my opinion that this investigation is quite different from a trial. There are no issues framed here. There are no allegations except of a very vague character, that I am aware of, such as are contained in these letters. I am answering at random to draw my opinions ultimately. Witnesses are subpoenaed here by counsel for the committee. He produces them as his witnesses, and he immediately proceeds to impeach their testimony. If that is trying anything here according to the rules of evidence I have forgotten what little law I ever did know, which was not much.

Chairman Armstrong then asked Mr. McCurdy how he would conduct the investigation if he were a member of the legislative committee. Mr. McCurdy said he really didn't know, and couldn't tell unless he gave the matter very serious consideration. Moreover, he had forgotten the phraseology of the resolution authorizing the investigation, and remembered only that it was an investigation into the conditions of life insurance.

"Quite as broad as the English language could make the resolution, wasn't it?" asked the Chairman.

"I don't think I caught that expression of yours," President McCurdy replied, "but it has seemed to me that the conduct of the investigation so far was quite outside of what the Legislature probably contemplated: although that is an opinion which I have no right to express here, excepting by courtesy."

Not Too Thorough.

Q.—In other words, it was perhaps becoming too thorough? A.—Not at all, not at all. Take, for instance, now—I don't know that I have any right to argue with the committee at all, excepting as you are willing to listen to me. Take the case of a witness presented before this committee—he is not permitted to know even in advance, as I have said before, what the subjects of this evidence are to be. You do not ask him, or counsel does not ask him, in a kind and considerate way! "Now, we want to know your opinion about this," and say, "We want to know certain facts," give him time to make the proper inquiries, ascertain the facts, let him state the things in his own way; then I should say—it may be an impertinence even to suggest such a thing—but after you have heard this witness tell frankly and kindly what he has to say about it, then it would be very proper for this committee to take this up in executive session, and discuss it and go over it, and offer their own conclusion about it, whether in justification of the witness's position or not, but to put him on the stand here and swear him to tell the truth, and make him feel when he is brought here that the object is not—to make him feel that, whether rightly or wrongly, and probably wrongly, but to make him feel, as I have said, that he is put on the rack, and that the object is to ruin him if possible in public estimation, to try and distort, as is the case with my own testimony—has been the case—to distort questions and answers and evidence and put a wrong construction—why should not the witness shut his mouth up, and say just as little as he can? I do not say that is my case. I tried to draw the distinction between those things which I ought to say and which I ought not. I proffer to you, as I say, on such questions as this the evidence of a man who is infinitely my superior.

"What is the salary of this man you refer to?" asked Mr. Hughes.

"Twenty-five thousand dollars," said Mr. McCurdy.

Mr. Hughes said that he thought the witness had an excellent opportunity to raise the investigation to a very high level by telling the committee frankly and candidly what he, as an insurance man of forty years' experience, thought about the dividends.

"I decline, as I said before. You cannot budge me from that," replied President McCurdy.

Won't Compel Him to Answer.

He was not pressed further in the matter, and Chairman Armstrong explained afterward that the committee did not deem it necessary to use its right to compel a witness to answer, under penalty of proceedings for indictment, on a question of fact which could be obtained from the testimony of somebody else. Moreover, he said, the committee, if it should take such a refusal to the District Attorney, would be disposed to do it on some matter of vital importance, and not on a subordinate inquiry.

Mr. Hughes read upon the record extracts from several other letters from policy holders, one from a man who in 1865 took out a ten-year policy for $6,000, completing his payments of yearly premiums of $320.60 in February, 1875. Thereafter for some years, the letter said, the dividends sometimes ran as high as $90, and at no time were they less than $40 or $50. Recently, however, they had dwindled until in February, 1905, the policy holder received a notice that his year's dividend would be $17. Mr. McCurdy had no comment to make. Mr. Hughes brought out another letter from a prominent lawyer whose signature he showed the witness. A table was submitted with this policy showing that between 1886 and the present time on total premiums of $2,854, paid on a $5,000 policy, the dividends, which had run as high as $14 or $15 in annual cash value and $30 or $40 in addition to policy value, had dwindled to a cash value of $2.73 in 1905 and $5 additional to policy value in that year. The letter recited a list of nine policies paid in 1884 on which the dividends in no case were less than 50 per cent of the face of the policy and in most cases more, adding that the aggregate dividends on the writer's policy would amount to about 12 per cent. of its face value on an ordinary supposition of life.

Still Mr. McCurdy had no comment to make upon the showing aside from saying that he had not followed the figures very closely, as they were too long for anybody to carry in his head carefully.

"I hope," he added, "that you will not consider this remark too trivial for the occasion; its facetiousness has to some degree been referred to here; it is said 'figures do not lie, but liars can figure,' and I know of so many cases to which that is applicable. I do not apply it to any one in particular here, but there have been so many cases which I think are so susceptible to the facetiousness of the illustration that it is fair to answer your question in that way."

Mr. Hughes asked Mr. McCurdy if it were not a fact that the decrease of the rate of interest earned by the Mutual was not accompanied by a large increase of expenses. But still the Mutual's President declined to discuss the matter. He said, however, that in a general way he had supervised the expenses of the company in their relation to its receipts.

McCurdy's Work Interrupted.

Q.—Will you state, now that you have had several days to think the matter over and are fairly well acquainted with the line of examination, what you have done to reduce expenses of your company? A.—Well, you make a suggestion there that I think it is only fair that I should meet before I proceed to answer your question in any other way. You say now that I have had several days to think it over. I think you do not fully appreciate, Mr. Hughes, the very great interruption to my time and any consecutiveness of thought that this investigation and your very adroit conduct of the case have produced. As a matter of fact, I have not had any time for anything during the last week. I do not take this thing home with me. My daily duty begins—I am a countryman—I come to town on a boat that leaves Hoboken at ten minutes after 9. A good many of my associates live out there. I begin my business when, according to my rule that I have established, when the ferryboat leaves the Jersey shore, and it goes on until the ferryboat reaches the Jersey shore in the afternoon; and when I go home I claim a little respite from a pretty arduous day, and after I have had my dinner I read a novel and I go to bed, and I try not to bother my mind with the investigation. If I did I don't know what might happen. Now, as matter of fact, my day in New York is so much taken up with the interruptions that this investigation has produced that I don't have time to think of anything, and I think very little about it. I come here, as I said before, practically unprepared—practically at your mercy.

Q.—Well, however you may come, will you state just what you have done, that you are able to recall, to reduce expenses? A.—I say that I have done everything that is possible for me to do, and I cannot give you a catalogue—résumé that may have been done in detail.

Q.—Well, have you reduced salaries— A.—Ah! [Laughter.] Oh, you are entitled to laugh; but let me see how I will answer that. [Laughter.] I didn't fix my own salary, as I have told you before; other people fixed it.

Q.—Or reduced it? A.—No, I didn't reduce it, and I don't mean to do so—to do it myself, anyhow, whatever other people may do.

Q.—Well, did you either suggest or recommend or enforce reduction of anybody's salary? A.—Yes, practically, in the—in the explanation that I partially gave you at the last meeting, of the introduction of the classified system of salaries. That was an effort to reduce a constant tendency to increase salaries without the opportunity of due consideration and a knowledge of what they were, or whether, in many cases, they were adequate or inadequate, or excessive.

Mr. Hughes wanted to know what salaries these were that President McCurdy had reduced. The reply came, "The salaries of the clerical force." There was a burst of laughter that made Chairman Armstrong rap for order. President McCurdy continued:

Doubts Clergymen's Worth.

"If you want me to go further than that and say that I did not attempt to reduce the salaries of any of the executive officers, I am perfectly willing to admit it. I don't think any of them were overpaid, for the conditions of life under which they live and move and have their being; for the character of the business that they do. I saw a smile went around the room when I answered that the very eminent gentleman whom I referred to, the actuary of the company, received a salary of $25,000. The same rules of compensation do not apply to all callings. The papers have talked about the salaries received by professors in colleges and ministers of the Gospel, and so on. Why, I doubt, without mentioning any names, whether some clergymen who have recently expressed themselves in public would make very good managers of financial institutions or be worth anything to their companies."

Mr. McCurdy was unable to say how much money he had saved to the Mutual Life by reducing the salaries of the clerical force, or how much was going to be saved by the change in the agency system from a general agent scheme to a managerial basis. Mr. Hughes asked him what he had done to reduce legal expenses. He said that several years ago he had a long conversation with Mr. Short on this subject, and as the result directed that a great many suits which had been on the calendar for years be disposed of without further delay. He said he thought he had effected a very considerable saving in this way, but didn't know the exact amount. Neither did he know that checks for $25,000 each had been drawn quarterly by Robert Oliphant, Chairman of the Mutual's Expenditures Committee, for "confidential legal" purpose. He was satisfied to let such matters remain in the hands of Mr. Short. Mr. Hughes picked up a voucher made out by the late James F. Bierce, who used to be State Superintendent of Insurance, and asked what the services were that had been rendered in exchange for the $2,500 of Mutual Life money that the voucher represented. Mr. McCurdy said that Mr. Bierce was under retainer by the company virtually from the time he ceased being Superintendent of Insurance down to his death last Spring, but that he personally didn't know anything about the services rendered.

Then the McClelland vouchers came to light. Mr. McCurdy said he had heard recently that Mr. McClelland had been retained for some time by the Mutual Life, adding that he had no particularly definite information on the subject. He didn't know to what sort of business Mr. McClelland attended. Mr. Hughes produced this memorandum of payments to Mr. McClelland:

Dec. 17, 1900, legal services............ $689.82
Jan. 8, 1901, legal services and disbursements 2,700.00
April 20, 1901, legal services and disbursements 1,458.00
Oct. 7, 1901, legal services and disbursements 1,000.00
Feb. 14, 1902, legal services and disbursements 750.00
March 31, 1902, legal services and disbursements 2,350.00

His memory refreshed by these figures, Mr. McCurdy recalled that Mr. McClelland was one of the regular attorneys of the company engaged in the foreclosure of mortgages and bonds. Mr. Hughes then asked Solicitor Allen of the Mutual to produce a statement showing in what particular foreclosures the amounts of money referred to above had been paid.

Fields Indorsed It.

One of the vouchers bore the indorsement "Fields," but Mr. McCurdy did not know how the name got there. He had just as little information about the legal services performed by James R. Craig in return for $750, which he received on Jan. 12, 1905, on the recommendation of Mr. Fields.

Mr. Hughes then inquired more particularly into the activities of Mr. Fields. President McCurdy began by telling him that in the supply department Fields had charge of advertising and purchasing of stationery and the employment of janitors, &c., for the Mutual Building. Still Mr. Hughes was unable to ascertain why Mr. Fields should be employed to hire counsel.

Q.—Don't you recall whether or not Mr. Fields's action or employment to look after matters of legislation was with your approval? A.—Oh, yes, in that sense, if you mean a general official approval by the President of a corporation that such-and-such a department should be looked after by such-and-such a person who was recommended as qualified for that post—why, yes, in that sense it was with my approval.

Q.—Was Mr. Fields a lawyer? A.—I fancy not; no.

Q.—What were his qualifications? A.—I can't tell. I did not appoint him.

Q.—No; but the qualifications which led you to view his employment without disfavor? A.—Oh, that is merely fanciful, that I had any particular knowledge of Mr. Fields's qualifications or whatever he did as head of the supply department or anything else. If he was there and the man in order of succession, and there was nothing against him, why, he would get that place, and so on for any reason or another. Mr. Short, we will say, chose to employ him as messenger boy; I should have not looked into it. That is, when I say a messenger boy I use the word figuratively, of course.

Q.—Do you know where Mr. Fields is now? A.—No, I do not.

Q.—When did you last see him? A.—I saw him some time during the Summer.

Q.—Haven't you seen him this Fall? A.—No.

Q.—Do you know whether or not he has been in New York recently? A.—I don't know; no, no.

Q.—What is his condition of health—something has been said about that? A.—The last time I saw him he was helped into my office by a man on whose shoulder he leaned, and who—who accompanied him in and seated him in a chair, and he had come up from somewhere down on the Jersey coast. I believe he had been spending a part of the Summer, at any rate, by the advice of his physician, and, being there, he came up to see me, and, as the common expression is, to pay his respects to me. He was helped into the room and helped out of it, and came up on an elevator and went down on an elevator.

At this point Mr. Beck produced the affidavit on Mr. Fields's condition made by Dr. Champion H. Judson, and declaring that the physician advised Mr. Fields in April last to take a trip to Southern California or to the south of France. Dr. Judson said he believed that Mr. Fields must be now in California, because he advised him to go away in April. Mr. Hughes remarked that there seemed to be some discrepancy between the affidavit and the statement of President McCurdy that Fields was helped into his office in July, but Mr. McCurdy didn't know where Fields was, and didn't know who in the Mutual Life would be able to give this information. Mr. Hughes asked him to find out in the recess, but when the afternoon session began Mr. McCurdy was just as much in the dark as ever.

Payments for Services.

Mr. Hughes then ran over vouchers for these payments:

Feb. 20, 1905—$901.15 to George Plunkitt for services.
Jan. 15, 1905—$250 to John E. Asch for services.
Jan. 13, 1904—$300 to Louis F. Murray for services.
Feb. 11, 1904—$225 to M. E. Mulaney for services.
Dec. 1, 1904—$230.74 to M. E. Mulaney.
Oct. 17, 1904—$150 to William M. Carpenter for services.
Jan. 7, 1904—$725 to William M. Carpenter for services.
Jan. 7, 1904—$1,175 to James O. Lawrence for services.
Nov. 18, 1904—[illegible] to J. H. Armstrong for professional services.

Mr. McCurdy did not know anything about these payments, all of which had the authorization of Mr. Fields.

Next Mr. Hughes produced vouchers of Feb. 1, 1904, and May 24, 1905, $2,500 each, to J. Howard, Jr., and wanted to know who J. Howard, Jr., might be.

"He was formerly and is still a writer for the press," said Mr. McCurdy. "That would be in the nature of advertising."

"Is it legal services?" Mr. Hughes persisted.

"I fancy it was put there by inadvertance," Mr. McCurdy replied, "for he is not a lawyer—at least I never heard tell that Howard was a lawyer."

The voucher of May, 1905, read: "On account of professional services repayable on demand," and Mr. Hughes wanted to know what this meant. Mr. McCurdy said:

What Howard Does.

"Probably some correspondence made; he conducts here a literary bureau and his office is, so to speak, like a public office in the American Tract Company's building, I think; somewhere up there. He writes for a number of papers, The Boston Globe, and carries on a syndicate of that kind. We have employed him for a number of years."

Q.—What are the professional services, those? A.—Those.

Q.—Why repayable on demand? A.—That I cannot say; perhaps it was an advance on future bills.

Q.—I see this is approved by you? A.—I notice that myself. I say, very likely it was an advance against money payable by the company in the future; a good many people obtain them sometimes.

Q.—Well, it was an accommodation, was it not? A.—No, I do not think you can call it an accommodation.

Q.—An advance on future work? A.—An advance on future work—was probably being done at that time.

Q.—What was the nature of the work? A.—The nature of the work; general correspondence throughout the press of the country.

Q.—Did you understand that was to be charged to law expenses? A.—I should fancy not. There is nothing to indicate it here. No, I did not direct it to be charged to legal expenses.

Q.—Do you remember how you did direct it to be charged? A.—I do not think I directed it to be charged at all.

Q.—In whose handwriting is that word "law" in blue pencil upon it? A.—I could not say; I don't know.

Q.—How much money has the Mutual paid over to Mr. Howard a year, do you know? A.—My impression is it pays him somewhere along in the neighborhood of $2,500.

Q.—Well, is it more than that? A.—I should say not.

Leaving Joseph Howard, Jr., for the time, Mr. Hughes went back to A. C. Fields, developing the fact that Mr. McCurdy did not know who directed him in matters affecting legislation. His own talks with Fields, he said, were of a very general character.

Fields at Albany.

Q.—Don't you know that he had a house in Albany? A.—I have heard two or three years ago what I subsequently was informed was a very exaggerated account that Mr. Fields had a house in Albany. I inquired into it and I was told that Mr. Fields's health was not good, and that in order to avoid the exposure to his health and the excitement of living at a hotel—in order to avoid that, he and some three or four other men got together and hired a house for a season and paid $800 for it and divided the expense between them.

Q.—What was the season, Winter? A.—Probably during the Winter.

Q.—Who were the three or four men? A.—Oh, that I don't know.

Q.—Did you ever hear? A.—No.

Q.—Did you understand the climate of Albany was preferable to that of Dobbs Ferry? A.—No; I considered the climate of Albany was such that if a man who was in ill-health was there it would be very much more desirable if he would have the comforts of a private house than be subjected to the exposure necessarily incident to going to a hotel and changing rooms and that sort of thing.

Q.—That is, if his business required his attendance in Albany? A.—If his business required his being there it would be a great deal better for him to have a house and divide the expense of $800 a year for it among three or four people than to go to a hotel and shift around from place to place.

Q.—How much of the time did his business require him to be in Albany? A.—That I don't know.

Q.—Did you know that it required him to be there at all? A.—In a general way, yes.

Q.—What did you suppose he was doing there? A.—I supposed that he was in general looking after the progress of legislation.

Mr. McCurdy explained that a great deal of attention had to be paid to the Legislatures of the various States.

"Technically," he declared, "most of them are honest. A few are dishonest." Then he added: "I guess you had better strike that out; but the Legislatures have to be watched in every State. If they are not watched, any corporation like an insurance corporation would be culpable in not protecting the interests intrusted to it."

Mr. McCurdy said that he had no knowledge of the specific purposes for which the legal payments had been made and had never insisted on any vouchers that would show this.

Hamilton and Missouri Matters.

Taking up the relations of Andrew Hamilton with the Mutual Life, Mr. Hughes drew from the witness the statement that he didn't know Mr. Hamilton and was not at all conversant with the details of payments made to him. This was one of the Hamilton memoranda that was produced:

"March 6, 1901. To the Vice President: Judge Hamilton was in to-day, and leaves in a day or two for St. Louis via Chicago. The Missouri Legislature adjourns on the 18th of March. He is to meet in Chicago some people from Wisconsin in regard to matters there. He has asked me to have a check mailed him at Albany on Thursday for $2,500 in connection with Missouri matters. E. L. S., G. S." And then: "To the Committee on Expenditures": Similar request: "Please send me twenty-five-hundred-dollar check to be transmitted to the order of Andrew Hamilton and charged to legal expense account. Edward Lyman Short, General Solicitor." "Committee on Expenditures. Ordered paid, March 13, 1901. J. H. Herrick."

Q.—What matters were pending in Missouri in connection with which any money was required in March, 1901? A.—I have no idea excepting we have had in Missouri—we have had a good deal of litigation over some policies and some matters with the insurance law there, I think.

Q.—This would appear to have been in connection with the Missouri legislation, as the note says the Missouri Legislature adjourns on the 18th of March? A.—That is your inference.

Q.—Did you know that Andrew Hamilton was paid from time to time to represent the Mutual Life Insurance Company in matters pertaining to the legislation in other States than that of New York? A.—I never did.

Q.—Now, I call your attention to a voucher dated April 28, 1903:

"Received from the Mutual Life Insurance Company of New York check for $13,333, in the matter of the adjustment of Mutual accounts.
"A. HAMILTON."

Accompanying which is the following:
"April 28, 1903.

"To the Cashier: Please send me check for $7,000, to be drawn to the order of the New York Life Insurance Company, for adjustment of Mutual account.
"EDWARD LYMAN SHORT."

And the same date:

"Please send me check for $6,333, to be drawn to the order of the New York Life Insurance Company, for adjustment of Mutual account."

What Mutual account was there requiring adjustment with the New York Life Insurance Company? A.—I have not the faintest idea.

Q.—Did you never have any idea that the Mutual Life Insurance Company and the New York Life Insurance Company were jointly engaged in protecting themselves in regard to matters of legislation? A.—Yes, I did have a general idea to that effect.

Q.—What officer of the New York Life did you meet in connection with that? A.—I never met any one.

Mr. McCurdy's Idea.

Q.—How did you get the idea? A.—As one gets any idea—from the ordinary transactions of business. I think it was assumed as a matter of course that all the legislation in different States was looked after, at least by the three companies, and sometimes by correspondence with other companies. But I never wrote any letters about it or knew anything about it.

Q.—Did you also have an idea that the Equitable Life Assurance Society was jointly interested in such matters with your company and the New York Life Insurance Company? A.—Yes.

Q.—Did you meet any one of the Equitable Life Assurance Company relating to it? A.—Not that I recall at the present time.

Q.—If your company and the New York Life Insurance Company and the Equitable paid as much as is indicated by that voucher there would be a total payment of $40,000 at that time. Do you know any matters requiring the payment of $40,000 in or about April, 1903, by the three companies? A.—I do not know that they did; I don't know what the adjustment may have meant.

Q.—Are you so independent of the operation of the legal department that matters of expense in connection with legislation were never brought to your attention? A.—Absolutely, unless there was some special reason.

Mr. Hughes called the attention of the witness to the fact that the Mutual's expenses in legal matters last year was about $364,000, and wanted to know what Mr. McCurdy, as President, did to see that this money was properly laid out.

"I accepted reports," was the reply.

"Did you do anything else?" Mr. Hughes asked.

"Having an honorable gentleman like Mr. Short at the head of the department, I was not called upon to do anything more than to administer the general affairs of the company in all departments."

"And from that you know that a certain amount of money was being expended?"

"I knew from the report at the end of the quarter or at the end of the year. The detail work I did not enter into."

Fricke's Services.

Q.—Who is William A. Fricke? A.—He was formerly Insurance Commissioner of one of the Western States; I have forgotten which.

Q.—Of Wisconsin? A.—I think it was Wisconsin.

Q.—And when did he cease to be Insurance Commissioner? A.—Some years ago.

Q.—I show you a voucher under date of Jan. 5, 1904, as follows:

"Received from the Mutual Life Insurance Company of New York $5,000 for special service to be rendered. ($5,000.) William A. Fricke"; and I read upon the record the letter annexed to the voucher. The date is concealed by the voucher which is pasted upon it, but I presume it is about the same date as the voucher itself:

Mr. Hughes read as follows:

"Dear Mr. McCurdy: Mr. William A. Fricke will accept a retainer to see that the Mutual Life Insurance Company suffers no harm. He will accept the company's check in his favor and will return from Milwaukee a receipt as retainer for 'special services.' Please direct check made out for $5,000 delivered to me to his order and I will file receipt this week. Yours truly, CHARLTON T. LEWIS.
"RICHARD A. McCURDY, President.
"Indorsed to the Actuary: 'Check to the order of William A. Fricke,' 'special services,' McC., President."

Q.—That is your handwriting, that indorsement, is it not? A.—Absolutely.

Q.—Do you recall the fact of that payment? A.—No.

Q.—Does your indorsement refresh your memory? A.—No.

Q.—What were the special services Mr. Fricke was to render? A.—I have no idea.

Q.—Was Mr. Fricke a lawyer? A.—I do not know whether he was or not.

Q.—Do you know what his business was at that time? A.—I think Mr. Fricke was an expert assistant accountant, or actuary, I should say, in technical insurance questions, having been Superintendent of the Insurance Department—did you say Michigan or Wisconsin?

Q.—I understood it was Wisconsin. A.—Wisconsin. It is not important unless you think so, but as an expert his opinion and service, I presume, was considered valuable by Mr. Lewis, and his—Mr. Lewis's—idea I regarded well; he was esteemed by me and he had my fullest confidence.

Q.—Why were the words "special services" in that? A.—I have not the slightest idea.

Q.—In what matters were Mr. Fricke's expert services required, or do you know anything about that? A.—I have no recollection of that; there were thousands of transactions occurring in the daily administration of a great company like this where one relies upon vouchers presented to him or recommendations of the moment. I could not tell you what business Mr. Lewis had with Mr. Fricke at that time or any other time.

After saying that he did not know why $3,100 had been paid on May 18, 1905, at the request of W. F. Thummell to S. S. Olds of Lansing, Mich., Mr. McCurdy went into a rather long description of the services performed by the late Charlton T. Lewis in watching legislation.

"If Mr. Lewis would recommend to me to pay any sum of money in reason," he said, "I would without hesitation put my check on it."

An Educating Expedition.

He added that Mr. Lewis customarily was occupied not in attempting to corrupt the Legislature but to educate it. This is President McCurdy's account of what Mr. Lewis told him concerning an educating expedition:

He told me he went first to the capital of the State and he got the Red Book or the Blue Book, or whatever they called it, and he found out the locality of each of the members of the Legislature, and each of the Senators of the Legislature, and he found out all of the men and political god-parents, if I might so

The WEBER PIANO
at the Metropolitan Opera House

Season of 1905-1906

Oct. 9, 1905

THE WEBER PIANO has again been selected for exclusive use by the Conried Metropolitan Opera Company, both in New York and en tour.

¶ This is the seventh consecutive season that the Weber has been chosen by this great organization in preference to any piano, at home or abroad.

¶ As is well known, the world's foremost artists appear at the Metropolitan Opera House, and no expense is spared to make every detail of the performances of the highest order of merit. It is therefore most significant that the Weber should be the one piano selected for exclusive use in this center of musical art.

HEINRICH CONRIED, Director of the Conried Metropolitan Opera Company, says

¶ "I know of no piano that would give us better satisfaction, and it is my desire that the Weber Piano shall continue to be used at the Metropolitan Opera House."

FOOD.

A LADY LECTURER

Feeds Nerves and Brains Scientifically.

A lady lecturer writes from Philadelphia concerning the use of right food and how she is enabled to withstand the strain and wear and tear of her arduous occupation. She says:

"Through improper food, imperfectly digested, my health was completely wrecked, and I attribute my recovery entirely to the regular use of Grape-Nuts food. It has, I assure you, proved an inestimable boon to me.

"Almost immediately after beginning its use, I found a gratifying change in my condition. The terrible weakness that formerly prostrated me after a few hours of work, was perceptibly lessened by a few days use of Grape-Nuts and is now only a memory—it never returns.

"Ten days after beginning it I experienced a wonderful increase in mental vigor and physical energy, and continued use has entirely freed me from the miserable insomnia and nervousness from which I used to suffer so much.

"I find Grape-Nuts very palatable and would not be without the crisp, delicious food even for a day on any consideration. Indeed, I always carry it with me on my lecture tours."

There's a reason.

A GOOD OLD-FASHIONED SALE OF

California blankets and comfortables that will take you back to the time you paid half-price, enjoyed the same comfort and received the same quality as others who paid full price.

Good blankets are most difficult merchandise to buy at half-price, and we frankly admit that these are not absolutely perfect. Wait, now—just a minute. When you see them you'll say "but I don't see anything wrong with them. Where are the imperfections?" Well, so far as the durability and quality are concerned there is none, but they are termed "manufacturer's seconds," because here or there a mill spot may be discerned on close scrutiny, or maybe the borders are wider than the original sample—no other faults, we assure you. Main Floor.

Just enough to prevent a reliable manufacturer from selling them as clean, regular goods, and when he offered them to us at half-price we recognized them as the best values we ever saw and bought.

TEN THOUSAND PAIRS TO BE DISPLAYED ON SPECIAL BARGAIN TABLES TO-DAY—SALE CONTINUES TILL ALL ARE DISPOSED OF AT ABOUT HALF PRICE.

ANNUAL SALE OF 100,000 BOOKS

BOOKS PEOPLE WANT AT PRICES MUCH LOWER THAN THEY ARE WILLING TO PAY.

JUDGE this sale not by the enormous quantity of books offered—one hundred thousand and more. Judge it by the select titles which you have never before seen priced at the prices we quoted for the annual event begun yesterday. Second Floor.

Of course the quantity—100,000—is responsible for the low prices and the unusual selection of titles. Months ago we reminded the publishers of our annual sale, begun yesterday, and since that time the accumulation of odd sets of standard literature, ends of publishers' stocks and thousands of popular novels has been so great that

We believe the collection warrants our saying that no store in America has ever been better equipped for supplying the reading public with the literature they want at prices much lower than they are willing to pay.

Sometimes people expect too much and then they are likely to be disappointed. When we set our mark for this book sale Monday we thought we were expecting too much, BUT YOU SHOULD HAVE SEEN THE CROWD—WHY, THE RESULTS WERE DOUBLE WHAT WE EXPECTED.

12 handsome volumes—half leather back and corners—marbled paper sides—price only 11.50 per set. Your money back if it does not satisfy you.

SOUNDS far fetched, but is absolutely the plain truth. We bought a tremendous quantity of these magnificent library sets, which were sold by a well known subscription firm at $2.00 per volume on the easy payment plan. Our prices for cash are so low as to make it a crime for any well bred person who loves books to be without the works of these, the great masters of literature.
The paper and type are of the VERY BEST. Each volume contains a photogravure and many illustrations in half-tone. The binding is handsome leather backs and art linen cloth sides—a dignified binding that will please the most critical.

call them, their relations, end the influential men, so regarded in their neighborhoods. He made journey after journey up and down the capital, to this town and tha other town, during the entire session of tha Legislature; they were men that would not leave their business to go to the capital of tha State, not only for all expenses paid but something else. He went on further and said that he went to Washington during that session of the Legislature, and it took him some weeks to make the acquaintance of Senators and Members of Congress and the House of Representatives from that State, so that he was compelled to get upon a friendly footing in order that they might be induced to listen to him and hear his statement of the damage that would be wrought to the company and to all lite insurance companies providing these measures then pending were passed. And he got from them letters of introduction back again. And that was tha substance of it; all that Winter he was practically engaged upon that business, and without expending ona dollar excepting for the fees paid to lawyers and the expenses paid to laymen—tha compensation in many cases paid to laymen.

"In connection with Mr. Lewis or anybody else," Mr. Hughes demanded, "where you have had occasion to know of the work done in behalf of the company, can you recall what the legislation was in any particular case that threatened your company?" "No," was the reply. "It is going on all the time."

But Mr. Hughes was not content.

"Haven't you, as President, he asked, "any recollection of the legislation which you deemed it necessary to oppose?"

"Not the slightest," said Mr. McCurdy. "It would not be in my province to do anything of the kind; those things are attended to by other people. If I should undertake to run every ons of the departments myself, I would run myself underground in no time."

"Do you supervise them?"

"As the President of a large company ought to, and not otherwise."

"You were asked about the agency department and you were asked certain questions bearing upon expenses and matters of actuarial importance, and you have been asked regarding the law department. Is there any department other than these that you have in any effective way supervised as President?"

"I supervise them all," replied the Mutual's President, "but I do not participate in the operation or rountine of any of them."

Doesn't Go into Routine.

"Do you supervise any of them more than you supervise the agency or law department?"

"Probably not," said Mr. McCurdy.

Mr. Hughes wanted to know if Mr. McCurdy remembered the efforts last Winter to obtain the repeal of Section 56 of the insurance law, which provides that no order judgment, or decree for an accounting or enjoining, restraining or interfering with the prosecution of the business of any domestic insurance company or appointment of a temporary or permanent receiver shall be made or granted in any way except upon the application of the Attorney General. Mr. McCurdy said he didn't know the circumstances attending the passage of the law, and Mr. Hughes reminded him that it had been originally passed in 1890, following a decision of the Court of Appeals, which held that an accounting could not be compelled from an insurance company to enforce a distribution of accumulations different from that determined by the company in accordance with its ordinary methods.

Mr. McCurdy said that he thought the present law was a very good one.

Q.—Now, do you remember last Spring an effort was made to repeal that? A.—No.

Q.—Do you recall that? A.—Oh, yes, yes. Now, excuse me. I believe Senator Brackett did introduce a bill, didn't he?

Q.—Yes. Now, what attitude did you take in regard to it? A.—None that I know of.

Q.—Is that one of the sort of statutes you thought your company should oppose in the interest of the policy holders? A.—It never was brought to my attention in that light at all.

Q.—Now, a former Commissioner of this State, a man of great repute and ability, was Mr. William Barnes? A.—Yes, Sir.

Q.—You have known him for many years? A.—I formerly knew him. I have not seen him for many years.

Q.—He was a man of distinction and an insurance expert? A.—Yes, I suppose so.

Q.—Didn't you pay him to oppose this bill? A.—Not that I am aware of.

Q.—When I say you, I mean your company, of course? A.—Not that I am aware of. Oh, wait, wait a moment until I recall. In the sense in which you ask the question, my answer is quite accurate, but some time recently, I think this Fall, I received a letter from Mr. Barnes in which he stated that he had appeared before committees, in which he sent a bill in, in which he stated he had apppeared before committees and argued matters and so on, and that was the first knowledge of it, and whether he inclosed a bill to me or not I don't recollect.

Bill from William Barnes.

Mr. Hughes read this:

No. 403 State Street, Albany, N. Y.
Sept. 11, 1905.

To William Barnes, Dr.:

To services as counsel on three hearings and oral and printed argument before the Code Committee of the Senate in the Legislature of 1905.....$1,000

Received payment.

Recommended for payment, Law Department, by Frederick L. Allen, in charge, Sept. 13, 1905.

Approved for payment.

Accompanying it was this note to Mr. McCurdy of the same date as the bill:

Dear Friend—I inclose bill for $1,000 for three arguments last Winter. Judge Andrew Hamilton of the New York Life sent me a check for $1,000 on or about July 11. He wrote me he had written Mr. Short to send me the same, but Mr. Short's fatal illness has prevented my hearing from him, and I have not heard from any in his department. * * * I am, very truly, your old friend,

WILLIAM BARNES, SR.

Postscript—We were very successful. The vote in the Senate being 36 in our favor. W. B.

Appended was a general note of the Acting Solicitor to the President, and an approval by Mr. McCurdy:

The bill referred to by Mr. Barnes in his letter was a bill introduced in the last Legislature, providing for the repeal of Section 56 of the insurance law, providing that tha interference and prosecution of any domestic insurance company, corporation * * * shall be made or granted, otherwise upon tha application of the Attorney General.

For your information, I send herewith appended a copy of the argument mada upon tha bill.

As you know, the bill was defeated.

Mr. Barnes is correct in his statement as to Mr. Short, that Judge Andrew Hamilton had paid him $1,000 on account.

It has been my understanding we were to pay him the same amount as the New York Life.

If there is anything further I can do I will be obliged to have you let me know.

F. L. ALLEN.

To the Law Department—Mr. F. L. Allen in charge:

Mr. Barnes's bill is approved for payment in the manner customary by the late General Solicitor. Mr. Allen's signature is attached, and it will be signed by the cashier.

McC., President.

Mr. Hughes again asked whether the witness thought it was in the interest of policy holders to defeat the bill to repeal Section 56. Mr. McCurdy said it was doubtful if he had the slightest knowledge of Mr. Barnes's employment for this purpose at the time. Then Mr. Hughes said:

"What I wanted to direct your attention to was the possibility in case matters of this sort are left to the discretion of the law department without the intervention of the responsible executive that matters will be opposed that might be in the interest of policy holders. Has that occurred to you?"

"If the general solicitor was not competent to decide that I would get another one," was the answer.

"Well," pursued Mr. Hughes, "the fact is you have not regarded it as your duty to say whether or not the legislation opposed that which should be opposed in the interest of policy holders."

"I have not," said Mr. McCurdy. "I have credited the heads of each department with some degree of intelligence to act on their own initiative."

Will Forego His Novel.

Q.—Now that the matter has been brought to your attention I would like to hava your opinion as an insuranca man upon tha advisability of opposing in the alleged interests of policy holders the repeal of Section 56. A.—If you will allow me to reflect over night apart from my custom of reading a novel, I will give it great consideration, and answer your questinn to-morrow. I would not like to exprese an opinion upon tha practical operation of an act of the Legislature without giving it serious consideration.

Mr. Hughes inquired next whether it was the practice of the Mutual to pay out money as an honorarium. When Mr. McCurdy wanted specification, counsel asked him if he knew William Barnes, Jr. The witness said he believed that William Barnes, Jr., was the editor of The Albany Evening Journal, and that in this instance he thought that the word honorarium must have been employed in a colloquial sense without distinguishing it from a retainer, "for," he added, in answer to questions, "it is not the practice of the Mutual to pay money as a compliment."

Mr. Hughes then read this note addressed to the company:

The honorarium which the Mutual Life, with other companies, was kind enough to confer upon my father, William Barnes, has customarily been paid on July 1 each year. I trust you will pardon my bringing to your attention the fact that the Mutual Life hes not yet sent a check.

"That justifies the assumption," remarked Mr. McCurdy, "and Mr. Barnes's receipt is returned. The son returns his father's receipt, 'Received $666.66. William Barnes, consulting counsel'—I take it that is a good, that is a good consideration."

Mr. Hughes asked President McCurdy how many lawyers there were in a position to render services like those rendered by Mr. Barnes regularly under the retainer of the Mutual. Mr. McCurdy passed the question to Mr. Allen of the Mutual's law department, who said that he would have to look the matter up. Several other vouchers were produced representing legal payments for various amounts, which Mr. McCurdy did not know much about in detail.

In taking up the Mutual's expenditure for stationery and printing and the affairs of the Lawrence firm Mr. Hughes developed first that Edward W. Rogers, who represents Mr. Lawrence in the latter's absence, was President of the Globe Printing Company, which does a large part of the Mutual's work.

Mr. McCurdy said that some few years ago he had believed that too much money was being spent for stationery, and so took the question up, having samples of all the different qualities of goods used by the company submitted to him. He said that he made certain changes which he believed effected some reduction of expense. Mr. Hughes read the figures of the Mutual's stationery and printing expenditure for several years: $473,523 in 1898, $581,783.21 in 1899, $519,750.30 in 1901, $627,884 in 1902, $688,049 in 1903, and $601,101 in 1904.

From this Mr. Hughes went back to the relations between the Globe Printing Company and the Lawrence firm. He asked first, however, whether, when Mr. McCurdy inquired into the matter of stationery, he ascertained also whether competitive bids were asked for on such contracts. The witness said that he directed that bids should be asked for, and that he remembered that some other bids than those accepted were presented, but in this he was a little doubtful about the details. Mr. Hughes asked him if it was not a fact that the Globe Printing Company and the Lawrence firm handled the bulk of the Mutual's printing business. Mr. McCurdy said that he thought there was no question about it. Mr. McCurdy declined to approximate the amount of the printing that the Globe Printing Company and the Lawrence firm did.

Mr. McCurdy said that he had a slight acquaintance with De Witt Lawrence, the brother of Lysander Lawrence, who up to the time of his death was Clerk of the Senate, but did not know Anderson Lawrence, another brother of Lysander Lawrence. Mr. McCurdy denied that any officer of the Mutual had any interest in either the Lawrence firm or the Globe Printing Company, and he would not say whether any one of his Trustees had suggested to him that in the item representing printing and stationery expense in the Mutual's annual report matters had been charged up which did not properly belong to this department.

No Terrapin or Wine.

Regarding luncheons which are given to Mutual employes, Mr. McCurdy said that these included everyhody except the industrial workers, like the elevator men, policemen and mechanics, and that six or seven hundred persons were included in the item of $72,000 which the luncheons cost the first year that they appeared as a separate item on the reports of the company. Mr. McCurdy denied, laughingly, that the company had a wine cellar, as far as he knew anything about it, and Mr. Beck volunteered to back him up in this opinion, adding:

"As far as Dr. Parkhurst's terrapin is concerned, I haven't seen it. I don't think any officer of the company has. I would be very glad to have the caterer produced if you desire."

Mr. Hughes at last got around to the settlement with Thomas L. Bowles. Mr. McCurdy went into the change in the agency system of the company which led up to the friction with Bowles when the plan was put into effect of placing the Milwaukee agency on a salary basis.

Mr. Hughes asked the witness about the letter that Mr. Bowles prepared containing charges against the management of the Mutual, and Mr. McCurdy said he supposed it was sent to all the members of the board. Mr. McCurdy said that he didn't have a copy of it available and didn't know whether it was on the files of the company. His explanation was that he had removed Bowles for insubordination.

Mr. Hughes then produced a bulky document and asked the witness if he recognized it as the Bowles charges. Mr. McCurdy said he didn't, because he hadn't read it, and he didn't believe his Trustees had read it.

Q.—You discharged him without looking into the charges made? A.—I read enough to know that he deserved it, and that there was all there was about it.

Q.—Did you think it was a proper ground for criticising an agent who sought to bring to the attention of the board and the President that there was needless expense in the management of the company? A.—If an agent was insubordinate he deserved to he dismissed, anyhow, and then if he had charges of that kind to make he could make them some other way, but not as long as he remained an agent of the company of which I was the President and in which I had any authority and while I retained my self-respect.

Mr. McCurdy just after that said he thought a farmer was justified in buying a rifle to shoot a skunk instead of engaging the animal at close quarters.

Mr. Hughes began to examine Mr. McCurdy on the question of the profits which his son, Robert H. McCurdy, derived from the foreign business of the Mutual, but he did not get very far before the adjournment, which was until 10:30 this morning.

STRICTLY LEGAL, SAYS BARNES.

They Can't Bring Him in for a Share with Hamilton.

NANTUCKET, Mass., Oct. 17.—William Barnes, Sr., formerly counsel for the New York Life Insurance Company, but now a resident of this town, discussed to-night the statement made by President McCurdy of the Mutual Life Insurance Company regarding Mr. Barnes's appearance in behalf of the Mutual Life before a legislative committee at Albany last Winter. Mr. Barnes declared that the only money he had received from any life insurance company was for strictly legal services. Regarding President McCurdy's testimony, Mr. Barnes said:

"Some time ago I delivered an oral and printed argument before the Insurance Committees of the Senate and House on several insurance bills which were there. This argument strongly supported the provisions against the repeal of Section 56 of the Insurance Code. While presenting the argument I met and talked with Mr. Hamilton, and was retained as counsel for the New York Life, receiving a reasonable fee for my services.

"I have been only slightly connected with the Mutual Life Insurance Company, but have furnished that company with several legal opinions at different times, and have received my pay. This matter probably arose from my recent article on the mutualization of the Equitable Life Assurance Society. It looks as though they were trying to bring me in for a share with Hamilton, but all the money I ever received from an insurance company was as an attorney's fee. The Mutual had its own lawyer.

"A great deal of this insurance trouble is without foundation. I am probably more familiar with insurance matters in this country than any other person. My first insurance work began in 1858, and I have been connected with it ever since.

"Up to the time I came to Nantucket to live I received a general retainer from the New York Life. I am in favor of sustaining life insurance so far as practicable, and have always endeavored to correct any existing evils. My position as Superintendent of Insurance in New York State made me thoroughly familiar with the affairs of all New York companies.

"Former President Cleveland's reply to my recent article is all humbug and I intend to answer it shortly."

Referring to the campaign donations of the New York Life Insurance Company, Mr. Barnes said:

"I really thing that the contributions of funds to the Republican National Committee were purely business transactions and helped to prevent the bringing of disgraceful conditions upon this country. I shall have something more to say on insurance matters in the near future, but I will now state positively that the only money I ever received from the New York Life or any other company was strictly for legal services. I did receive a sum through Hamilton, as I stated before; but it was for legal services alone."

ASKS VANDIVER TO WAIT.

Then, Says Speaker Hill of Missouri, We'll Do a-Plenty.

Special to The New York Times.

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo., Oct. 17.—Speaker David W. Hill of the Missouri House of Representatives has written to State Insurance Superintendent Vandiver asking him to defer action for thirty days in the cass of the New York Life Insurance Company, whose license in Missouri he threatens to revoke.

Speaker Hill says he cordially agrses with Mr. Vandiver in his condemnation of the management, salaries, and commissions of the New York Life and believes that the policy holders "want a change of management from stem to stern." He believes, however, that a revocation of the company's right to transact business in the State would greatly impair the value of the contracts held by Missourians.

He wants Mr. Vandiver to meet a gathering of Missouri policy holders before deciding how to act. He adds this:

"Missouri can then take the lead, and the other States from Maine to California, I am sure, will follow, and what the policy holders will do to President McCall and Mr. Perkins and the other mismanagers of the company will be a-plenty."

MR. BARNES, JR., SPEAKS.

Says Mutual Matter Was Entirely His Father's—He's No Lawyer.

ALBANY, Oct. 17.—When William Barnes, Jr., saw the report of President McCurdy's testimony at the insurance investigation to-day relative to the transactions between the Mutual Life Insurance Company and William Barnes, Sr., he said:

"That was entirely a matter of my father's. I had nothing to do with it except to write the letter referred to, at his request. He was ill at the time, and I acted for him. Of course I never pretended to be a lawyer or consulting counsel."

William Barnes, Sr., moved last Summer to Nantucket, where he now resides.

INSURANCE AGENT ARRESTED.

Accused of Altering Policies by Means of Forgery.

Special to The New York Times.

CARROLLTON, Ohio, Oct. 17.—Accused of selling ordinary endowment insurance as paid-up insurance by means of forgery, and pocketing the difference in premiums, George Hayden, special agent of the Mutual Life Insurance Company, was to-day arrested and bound over to the Grand Jury. He is being prosecuted by the Mutual Life Insurance Company, and, though most of his work is in this territory, he says New York is his home.

Hayden worked for the Equitable in Pittsburg until three years ago, when, it is alleged, he was heavily involved and forced to quit.

SURETY UNDERWRITERS MEET.

Convention Delegates Say Laws Affecting Them Are Inequitable.

The Board of Casualty and Surety Underwriters, organized last December, chiefly for discussion of legislation affecting its particular field, began its second annual meeting at the Hotel Manhattan yesterday. John T. Stone, President of the Maryland Casualty Company, presided.

The delegates to the convention declare that those who enact the laws have only vague notions of the dissimilarity between life and fire insurance and casualty and surety insurance, hence the need of improved legislation. Existing laws are declared to be inappropriate and inequitable.

Mr. Stone said that the paramount issue in insurance circles is the question of the desirability and practicability of the control of inter-State insurance matters by the National Government.

The combined premiums of the classes of insurance represented by this organization in 1904 was $47,421,152, which was $5,680,393 more than in 1903.

To remedy existing evils in insurance matters the Board of Underwriters recommends:

Lower and equal taxation by all States, not exceeding 1 per cent. upon gross premiums, in view of all other taxation by the States or by any municipality, except taxabla property.

Equal license fees by States not exceeding the reasonable cost of issue and registration of companies and agents, and the abolition of all local license fees.

The abolition of compulsory advertising.

Uniform statutes upon all other proper subjects for insurance legislation and uniform department practice.

After a somewhat heated debate the question of Federal supervision was disposed of finally at the extra evening session of the board last night at the Hotel Manhattan by accepting the committee report against National legislation. This puts the organization on record as being opposed to Federal supervision.

The convention will end to-night with a dinner.

PIER SCHOOL OPENS TO-DAY.

In It 2,200 Children Will Then Receive "Full-Time" Tuition.

Twenty-two hundred children will be taken off "part time" this morning by the opening of a school in the Recreation Pier at the foot of East Third Street, Manhattan. This pier has been closed in and converted into a school containing twenty-two classrooms, with accommodations for 1,100 children.

Public School No. 36, at 730 East Ninth Street, will be most benefited by the change. All the classes in this school have been on "part time" since the beginning of this term. The opening of the pier school, however, will put every class on full time, as the entire boys' department of twenty-two classes will be transferred to the pier.

William J. Goldey, Principal of Public School No. 36, will be in charge of the new school.

impossible that you should be elected; it is very possible that I should be, and, nevertheless, you prefer to jeopardize the opportunity of striking the common enemy the severest blow that it has ever had, in order to urge your Socialistic policy, with which I have no sympathy.

"I have always believed that your politics were subservient to your journalism. Your present attitude confirms me in that belief. Will you give the public the pledge that I have given them—that, in the event of your election, you will retire from journalism and from all interest in it and devote yourself exclusively to the service of the people? If you will not give that pledge, how is it possible of belief that you are not seeking the election to serve your journalistic ends?

"I regret the last paragraph of your letter as being unworthy, because truthfulness still remains a desirable quality, even in a political fight, and you know that my nomination is not in accordance with a corporation contract between two machines, as you assert; you know that I represent no boss, and you know that I represent no corporation; and you know, moreover, that your own cause is sufficiently good not to necessitate your falling thus carelessly and needlessly into assertions such as you make.

"Our strength should be directed against the common enemy. Your possibilities are great, and, if the public had in you the confidence they had in Henry George—a towering character, never suspected of selfishness—of unquestionable sincerity, a brave fighter in the struggle for humanity—you would inevitably cast a startling vote. Naturally, I desire, first, my own election; next, the relegation of the Tammany candidate to the third place at the finish; but it is for both you and me to remember that he brings to his support a splendidly organized machine, absolutely subservient and supplied with funds beyond the dreams of avarice.

"You cannot overlook the fact that where you and I are compelled to support, unaided, the expense of our own candidacies, Mr. McClellan can call, with a certainty of a favorable response, for the unlocking of a larger contribution to his campaign expenses than has heretofore been made in any campaign, municipal, State, or National, in the history of our country.

"You have no such resource, for you and your friends by their voluntary contributions must bear the entire burden of the fight, and, if you win, you must win on principle and not by purchase. The same is true of myself, and so completely am I disassociated from party in respect to this that I shall ask no financial aid from the Republican Party and shall accept none, nor shall I ask any financial help of any individual. I shall keep myself, as I believe you will keep yourself, in the position, so far as these matters are concerned, scrupulously of the benefactor and not the beneficiary. I shall be glad to have from you any suggestion as to the way in which the cause of honesty can be protected and furthered through holding Tammany Hall to a rigid accounting in the matter of its campaign expenses.

"The issue of the campaign is not the personal charm or engaging respectability of Mayor McClellan, but what he has accomplished, what he has left undone, and what disaster to the interests of our municipal commonwealth his re-election portends, and in the discussion of these issues more power to your elbow.

"Yours sincerely,

"WILLIAM W. IVINS."

Yesterday afternoon Mr. Ivins issued another statement in which he announced that he and Mr. Hearst had Mayor McClellan "on the run." He said:

"One thing is certain, Mr. Hearst and I are both running for the Mayoralty, and the unexpected has happened. We now have Mr. McClellan on the run. Up to this time it has appeared to Tammany Hall and McClellan that he simply had to sit for it, as he would sit for his picture, instead of running for it, as an active candidate ordinarily does. It must be apparent to him now that he is not going to be swept into office, and that he will have to defend his administration. There is one thing I like in Mr. Hearst's letter, namely, that he puts Mr. McClellan on the defensive. In that Mr. Hearst's cause and mine are very like each other. Tammany Hall is the hereditary and incorrigible enemy.

"Somehow a feeling has been created in a part of the public that Mr. McClellan has given us a good administration. As a matter of fact, he has given us an abominable one. He has accomplished precisely nothing, and has permitted Tammany Hall to continue, as always, the medium for the distribution of the wealth of the community among chosen individuals.

"I intend during the campaign to make the administration of each of the great city departments under Mr. Murphy's appointees the subject of special analysis and revelation. If this be not a campaign of education it won't be my fault."

Chairman William Halpin of the Republican County Committee was in a happy frame of mind at this time. He declared he was "simply delighted" with the aggressive mood displayed by Mr. Ivins. Mr. Halpin could not be found after Mr. Ivins's later statements.

SAW MR. JUDSON SIGN.

Capt. Kirby Was a Witness of the International Pool Transfer.

George W. Hoadley, a brother of Joseph H. Hoadley, will be a witness to-day in the suit of Franklin, Scott & Co., brokers, against Joseph H. Hoadley and Joseph Leiter. George W. Hoadley was called to the witness stand in the Supreme Court yesterday just before court adjourned, and it was evident that the defense intends if possible to prove by him that Joseph H. Hoadley and Joseph Leiter were not in the International Power Company pool at the time that Cyrus Field Judson became indebted to the brokerage firm for $65,800, the amount sued for. It is contended by Hoadley and Leiter that the pool closed months before the International Power balloon burst.

When the crash came George W. Hoadley took charge of Judson's office and levied on everything there. It was about this time, according to the defendants, that Judson signed over to Hoadley everything he owned. Judson, while admitting signing a paper making such a transfer, declared that he had been drinking at the time, and that he did not know what he was doing. To prove the transfer William F. Kirby, the Captain of Hoadley's yacht Musbka, was the first witness called yesterday.

Capt. Kirby testified that he had signed the document as a witness. He happened to be in the office at the time. Capt. Kirby added that Judson appeared to be all right, and did not appear to have been drinking heavily.

DIED AFTER THIRD DEGREE.

Coroner May Investigate the Death of a Brooklyn Prisoner.

Borough Inspector Cross and Coroner Flaherty may be asked to investigate the death of William McGowan of 122 Jay Street, Brooklyn. Members of McGowan's family allege that he was beaten by policemen while being put through the "third degree" in the Fulton Street Station. McGowan died last Sunday and was buried yesterday.

Two weeks ago some gymnasium goods were stolen from a place at 9 Fulton Street. Detectives Rand and Wsrd arrested McGowan on suspicion. He was taken to the Fulton Street Station and next morning was sent to Raymond Street Jail pending a disposition of his case. McGowan is alleged to have said before being taken to jail that he had been beaten in the basement of the station while protesting that he knew nothing about the robbery. Soon after reaching the jail McGowan had convulsions and was removed to the Cumberland Street Hospital, where he died.

At the Fulton Street Station yesterday Sergt. Wood denied that any violence had been used toward McGowan.

FALL RIVER WAGE ADVANCE.

FALL RIVER, Oct. 17.—A direct increase in wages of 5 per cent. and the adoption of a profit-sharing plan, which, under the present market conditions should net an additional 8 per cent., was the answer made to-day by the Fall River Cotton Manufacturers' Association to the recent request of the operatives for a restoration of the wage scale to that paid prior to July, 1904. The increase will go into effect next Monday.

In July, 1904, a reduction of 12½ per cent. in wages was made, and a nine months' strike followed. The present proposal of the manufacturers not only restores the old scale of wages as requested, but it makes a slight advance. The new plan affects directly some 25,000 employes. But it is believed that if adopted by the employes it ultimately will be taken up in every cotton mill centre in New England.

Deaf and Dumb Boy Gets $7,500 Verdict

Waldo R. Margulies, a 17-year-old deaf-and-dumb boy, who was injured by an Amsterdam Avenue car at 148th Street, got a verdict of $7,500 against the Interurban Railway Company in the Supreme Court yesterday. The boy testified in the sign language in court, and his testimony was interpreted by a teacher of deaf-mutes.

OIL BUSINESS IS PRIVATE.

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 17.—That the affairs of oil companies are as properly private as the personal affairs of an individual was the contention of John D. Johnson, one of the counsel for the defense in the resumption to-day of the inquiry into the methods pursued by the Standard, Republic, and Waters-Pierce Oil Companies before Supreme Court Commissioner R. A. Anthony.

"The testimony being taken," declared Mr. Johnson, "merely caters to public excitement. It is not being taken in good faith. The Attorney General has no intention of carrying the proceedings to a conclusion."

Attorney General Hadley interrupted with: "Any statement that I am not acting in good faith in this matter is absolutely false."

Mr. Johnson thereupon said he withdrew any remark which the Attorney General might consider a personal reflection. Commissioner Anthony announced to-day that he would not render an opinion of whether the Waters-Pierce Oil Company can be compelled to produce its books in court to show whether there is any connection between it and the Standard Oil Company.

"Since I took this question under advisement," he said, "a motion involving the same question has been filed with the Supreme Court. Pending the court's decision I will not render an opinion."

HEARST QUOTES SAGES IN OPENING CAMPAIGN

Lincoln, Jefferson, Jackson, and Tilden in His Speech.

BUT NOT CITY OWNERSHIP

Applause in Two Installments Greets Him at His First Meeting—What Mr. Ford Promises.

Before an audience that received him with cheering and applause that lasted seven minutes, W. R. Hearst made the first speech last night in his campaign for Mayor of New York on the Municipal Ownership ticket. In the maiden speech of his campaign there was not a word about municipal ownership, not a word in answer to the challenge of Mr. Ivins, the Republican candidate, but a lot of quotations from Jefferson, Jackson, Tilden, and Abraham Lincoln over which the audience went wild.

The Amsterdam Opera House, in West Forty-fourth Street, where the meeting was held, is in the heart of the Eleventh Congressional District, which sent Mr. Hearst to the House of Representatives twice in succession. The spacious hall and galleries were filled to the last seat with an audience in which well-dressed men and women rubbed shoulders with men in working attire. Every inch of standing room was occupied as well.

Cheers in Two Installments.

Things happened so that the demonstration for Mr. Hearst should be a double one. The first section of applause and cheering took place shortly after the meeting began. Mr. Hearst made his first appearance then. He walked up an aisle the length of the hall to a door leading to the stage. He disappeared through the stage door, but did not reappear on the stage as everyhody had expected. Every man and woman in the hall yelled and applauded as long as he was in sight, and the band played "Hail to the Chief."

The second demonstration, which was the seven-minute one, came when ex-Senator Ford, the candidate for Controller on the Hearst ticket, was getting to the end of a long speech, in which he had fiercely denounced the opponents of the M. O. ticket.

"It is up to you. Shall it be McClellan or Hearst?" shouted Mr. Ford.

"Hearst! Hearst!" roared the audience.

At that cry Mr. Hearst stepped from the right wing, where for some reason he had kept himself concealed for nearly two hours.

Men and women arose in their seats, cheered and cheered. The Chairman pounded his gavel without result. Mr. Hearst stood smiling for seven minutes before he could make himself heard.

"Three cheers for Hearst," shouted a voice in the audience as he was about to begin.

"Three cheers for Raffles!" shouted another voice. Then the audience laughed and Mr. Hearst joined in. He spoke in a monotone and his voice did not carry far, but he was frequently interrupted by cheers. He said in part:

"My Friends: I desired to make the first speech of the campaign in my own district.

"You elected me as a Democrat, and I am a Democrat, but I am not a grafting Democrat, and I tell you that the gas man and the contract man who have stolen your franchises have stolen your party name as well, and have no right to it. Democracy is more than a name. It is a principle, a conviction.

"Jefferson said: 'Democracy is equal and exact justice to all men of whatever state or persuasion, religious or political.'

"Do you think that the gas man and the contract man measure up to Jefferson's standard of Democracy? Do you think that the men who leave your streets torn up for months to please the Gas Trust, who shut off your water supply and spread disease to please the Contract Trust, who sell you out and distribute your public property to please the Traction Trust—do you think that they show equal and exact justice to all?

Andrew Jackson's Standing.

"If you are still in doubt about the true meaning of Democracy, turn to Andrew Jackson, that fearless champion of the people's rights. Jackson said: 'When capital is in the hands of corrupt and crafty men, it is driven to secret modes of influence, which undermine and destroy our institutions, and legislation is molded to suit the ideas of the corrupt and crafty, instead of those of the honest and industrious.'

"The Remsen bill was legislation molded to suit the ideas of the corrupt and the crafty, and your so-called Democratic Mayor signed it in obedience to those secret modes of influence which Jackson denounces.

"If you are in doubt about the duty of Democrats in local campaigns, turn to Samuel J. Tilden. My friends, I have spoken of Democracy in this Democratic district, of which I am the Democratic Representative, but this is no partisan campaign, this is no partisan ticket.

"We stand by the Democracy of Jefferson, the Democracy of Andrew Jackson, the Democracy of Samuel J. Tilden, and also the Republicanism of Abraham Lincoln."

Before Mr. Hearst spoke Clarence J. Shearn, Mr. Hearst's counsel, who is running for District Attorney on the Municipal Ownership ticket, pitched into District Attorney Jerome and promised that if he were elected his first official act would be to lay the case of President John A. McCall and Vice President Perkins of the New York Life Insurance Company before the Grand Jury. He said he would also try to have Superintendent of Insurance Hendricks indicted. The audience yelled with delight.

Would Be Behind Bars.

"Jerome," he said, "has gone after the small criminals in great shape, but he has left those sheltered behind the barriers of wealth and great legal talent strictly alone. If half of the energy he expended in breaking into the house of poor Hannah Ellas had been devoted to the Shipbuilding swindle, the New York Building and Loan Company, or the Merchants' Trust Company some very respectable gentlemen would be behind the bars by this time.

"The reason he gave for not going after these was that the Board of Estimate would not give him money to pay for expert accountants. If I am elected there will be no such lack of funds. The man who pays for this campaign will see to that."

"Will he give you money to buy false teeth with, too?" asked an inquisitive member of the audience, who happened to recall the Dodge-Morse case. The answer was drowned in the howl of mrth that swept through the hall.

A feature of the evening second only to the speech of Mr. Hearst was a poem entitled "Turn Out the Grafters."

Ex-Senator Ford charged that Mayor McClellan was the candidate of Murphy, Odell, and Cutting, and that his election was desired by the franchise-owning corporations, who knew, he said, that one billion dollars' worth of subway franchises were to be disposed of in the next few years. Mr. Ford promised five-cent round-trip fares in subways owned and operated by the city and expresses that would run at the rate of ninety-four miles an hour, including stops, if Hearst was elected.

ECONOMY IN HEARST'S CAMP.

He Isn't Throwing Money Away in the Mayoralty Canvass.

The Business Men's Committee of One Hundred organized on Monday to support the candidacy of William R. Hearst for Mayor met yesterday afternoon at the Hoffman House and decided to begin a campaign at once and open branch headquarters throughout the business district, where noon-day meetings will he held.

J. G. Follinsbee, Chairman of the committee, said that a schedule of meetings would probably be made public to-day, and that contributions from members and their friends were coming in fast. Mr. Hearst in this campaign will depend very largely on the financial aid this element in his following will bring to him. There will be no lavish expenditure of his own funds such as characterized his campaign for the Presidential nomination.

The men in charge at the Hoffman House headquarters are concentrating their attention on Brooklyn. Already Clermont Avenue Rink, the biggest meeting place in that borough, has been engaged for every night during the campaign, with the exception of Thursday of this week. Mr. Hearst will speak at least twice in Brooklyn during the three weeks between now and election. He will make his first address there to-night.

A delegation of cab drivers, headed by Samuel Prince, President and business agent of the Public Hack and Cab Drivers' League, called at the Hoffman House yesterday and arranged to meet Hearst at 8:30 o'clock to-day. Prince said he would pledge the support of his organization to Mr. Hearst, and intimated that a cabmen's campaign with speeches for Hearst's candidacy made by them from their boxes would be a feature of the canvass.

McCLELLAN ON THE-RUN, EH?

Yes, Ahead of the Republicans, Says Murphy—No Deal Against Jerome.

Charles F. Murphy unburdened himself at Tammany Hall yesterday of an interview which was long for him. He was in excellent humor, and seemed to be especially pleased with the interview given out in the morning by William M. Ivins, the Republican Mayoralty candidate.

"So Mr. Ivins says he has Mayor McClellan on the run, does he?" laughed Mr. Murphy. "Well, he has, but we know which way he is running, and it is away from the Republicans and well in advance of them."

When asked about the statement from District Attorney Jerome that the Tammany leader and Chairman Odell of the Republican State Committee had made a deal to turn Jerome down for District Attorney, Mr. Murphy became emphatic.

"That statement is too ridiculous to discuss," he declared.

"Why did Tammany decline to put Jerome on the ticket?" he was asked.

"That will be answered fully on the stump," he replied.

There was a report at the Wigwam that Mr. Jerome would come out in favor of Mayor McClellan's re-election in his Carnegie Hall speech to-night. Mr. Murphy denied any knowledge of the report.

Practically all the district leaders called at Tammany Hall during the day and went over campaign matters with Mr. Murphy. Late in the afternoon there was a meeting of the Executive Committee at which he issued general instructions to the leaders, telling them they would be held strictly responsible for the results in their districts. He also told them what provision would be made by the central organization to provide the districts with campaign funds.

Last evening Mr. Murphy held a ratification meeting in his Eighteenth Assembly District. The meeting was held at 407 East Twenty-third Street. Maurice B. Blumenthal was the chief speaker.

GOOD WORDS FOR McCLELLAN.

Real Estate Campaign Club Indorses His Administration.

At a meeting of the Real Estate Men's Campaign Club, held yesterday afternoon at the rooms of the Real Estate Board of Brokers, 156 Broadway, resolutions were adopted indorsing the administration of Mayor McClellan and advocating his re-election.

The resolution laid special stress on the Mayor's action "in getting increased appropriations for public schools and public parks, and in forcing the Legislature to recognize the urgent need for additional water supply, and in so carefully conducting the business affairs of the city that, notwithstanding largely increased appropriations for public needs, the tax rate has been considerably lowered."

The Mayor was further commended for his "executive ability, fairness, and honesty, which have never been excelled, and which have been in marked contrast with the conduct of our Legislature in matters affecting real estate interests and those of the citizens of New York generally, one of the most striking of which has been the unfair mortgage tax law, under whose growing burdens real estate is seriously suffering."

President De Selding of the Board of Brokers took occasion to point out that, while many members of that organization might favor the Mayor's re-election, the organization as such is not to be regarded as the father of the present movement among real estate men.

Charles E. Schuyler is President of the Real Estate Men's Campaign Club and Wright Carclay its Secretary.

HEARD IN THE CAMPAIGN.

A Sporting Way of Settling It—"Mr. Raffles" Calls on Hearst.

"What kind of a ticket are you going to vote?" asked Luther Little of a Republican who in a discussion in the "Amen Corner" had given utterance to some very independent sentiments.

"Being a true sport," replied the gentleman interrogated, "I intend to play 'em across the board."

"How is that?" inquired Mr. Little.

"McClellan, Ford, Stokes, and Jerome," was the reply.

***

"I'd like to talk to President Roosevelt," said he. "I've some good advice to give him."

"Step right into this room, and we'll connect you with the White House," said one of the attendants.

After a while the telephone rang. The connection was with the switchboard, and Sidney Goodacre was at the other end of the wire. The caller, though, was under the impression that he was addressing Mr. Roosevelt, and made a ten-minute speech.

"I'm glad to get this off my mind. Now I can attend to usiness again," he said, as he shook hands with everybody in sight before leaving.

"That man might have gone away sore," remarked the wise Mr. Goodacre. "Nothing like pleasing people—especially in a campaign."

***

"Mr. Raffles of Brooklyn to see Mr. Hearst," called out the announcer at Hearst headquarters in the Hoffman House yesterday afternoon.

Cerberus McGuire, who guards the door to the inner room where the Hearst dough bags are supposed to be concealed, stepped between the visitor and the door, declared that Mr. Hearst was too busy to be seen, and directed "Mr. Raffles" to the Brooklyn headquarters in Court Street. Still Raffles insisted that he must see the head of the M. O. ticket, and added that he was well known in the borough of simple lives. After it had been established that he was Isaac Rafel, a Brooklyn merchant, he was ushered into the presence.

An elderly German shaped a wabbling course into a hall where a Hearst meeting was in progress last night. He went right up to the platform, said he represented the Common People, and demanded a hearing. After a while he was allowed to speak. This was the speech:

"Vell, if ve all are sheeps let the wolves come along, and eat us up. Dot's all I haf to say."

IVINS'S MANY MEETINGS.

He Plans to Speak at Half a Dozen Each Night.

After next Friday night, when he holds his first big meeting at Carnegie Hall, Mr. Ivins, the Republican candidate for Mayor, will be heard at from five to seven meetings each evening. In addition to the afternoon meetings he will hold in different parts of the city to meet the district workers. To speak in each of the Assembly Districts of the city, as he has promised, Mr. Ivins and his automobile will have to work continuously until within a few hours of the opening of the polls on Election day.

Next Wednesday night Mr. Ivins will make an automobile tour of either the eastern or the western end of Brooklyn, speaking at six or seven meetings. On the following Wednesday, Nov. 1, the other end of Brooklyn will be visited by the Republican Mayoralty candidate.

JEROME FORCES EXPECT A BIG CROWD TO-NIGHT

Plans for Overflow Meetings Outside Carnegie Hall.

MR. JEROME SLIGHTLY ILL

Declares, However, That He Will Be Ready for the Meeting—Funds Pouring In to Aid His Canvas.

Every box and every platform seat for District Attorney Jerome's first meeting in Carnegie Hall to-night was disposed of early yesterday morning, and Robert A. Kelly of the Citizens' Union Committee on Meetings spent the remainder of the day regretting that he had to refuse places to many men of political importance. Among those for whom seats have been arranged are scores of the most representative men of the city.

The final arrangements for the meeting were completed at a late session of the Citizens' Union Committee last night. John G. Milburn will preside. There will be only three speakers—Dr. Felix Adler, R. Fulton Cutting, and Mr. Jerome. No tickets will be required for the main part of the house. The way the platform seats and the boxes have been picked up and fought for indicates that a large crowd will have to be turned away to-night. Overflow meetings will be arranged, the principal one of which will be presided over by Robert A. Kelly. There will also be fireworks and several brass bands for the entertainment of those who are unable to get into the hall.

What bothered the managers of the campaign and Mr. Jerome's lieutenants most last evening was the condition of his throat. He remained at home all day and in bed much of the day, suffering from a slight bronchial attack. Mr. Jerome himself is confident, however, that he will be in good voice to-night. His health has been much improved of late and he anticipates no difficulties in meeting the extraordinary demand which the hurricane campaign he has planned will be sure to make on his strength.

The initial meeting will be quickly followed by three others at the Murray Hill Lyceum and at the Grand Central Hall, 92 Clinton Street, to-morrow evening, and at Zeltner's Morrisania Hall on Friday evening. C. C. Nadal of the Citizens' Union will preside at the Murray Hill Lyceum, and among the speakers will be Julius Henry Cohen, Henry De Forest Baldwin, and Mr. Jerome. The meeting at the Grand Central Hall, which Mr. Jerome will visit later the same night, will be presided over by Dr. Knapp. Cyrus L. Sulzberger will be one of the speakers. Arthur Von Briessen is to act as Chairman at the meeting in the Bronx on Friday.

All these plans were perfected at a meeting held last night by the leading members of the Citizens' Union at their headquarters. They organized themselves as "The Jerome Campaign Committee," with John E. Eustis as Chairman and John J. Murphy as Secretary. An Executive Committee was elected, consisting of R. Fulton Cutting, Chairman; F. C. Huntington, R. G. Monroe, Henry W. Hardon, Julius Henry Cohen, Richard Welling, C. B. Orcutt, C. J. Fay, Augustus H. Stebbins, and John E. Eustis. The following Working Committees were appointed:

Finance—E. R. L. Gould, Chairman; Isaac N. Seligman, A. M. White, Jr., Gustav H. Schwab, Henry Hentz, R. Fulton Cutting, A. S. Haight.

Meetings and Speakers—Richard Welling, Chairman; C. C. Nadal, J. Brooks Leavitt, G. H. Olney, R. A. Kelly, Elliot H. Goodwin, J. A. Henneberry, C. L. Scburz, R. G. Monroe.

Press and Literature—Julius Henry Cohen, Chairman; Howard Gans, Arthur F. Cosby.

Organization—C. B. Orcutt, Chairman; E. D. Klein, S. L. Adler, E. Goldsmith, John Davis.

Illegal Registration—August H. Stebbins, Chairman; Julius Blumberg, Jay E. Lawebe, A. N. Hand, George B. Hatch.

One of the features of the campaign will be wagon meetings all over the city, the special object of which will be to instruct the voters in the gentle art of "splitting the ticket"—and how not to split it. More will be heard of this as soon as the official ballot has been prepared. It is not unlikely that a copy of this enlarged size will form a conspicuous part of the equipment of each truck for use by the speaker-lecturers.

It was announced last night that Mr. Jerome had no immediate intention of replying to Mr. Ivins's invitation to the District Attorney to join him on the platform. Mr. Jerome was reported as having said yesterday that "the issue of independence of political bosses was one beyond personalities and that it involved an appeal to the people, not any attack on persons or reply to attacks."

Among the heap of mail brought to Mr. Jerome's headquarters yesterday there were many letters containing checks to aid his campaign fund.

ALL READY TO DIG CANAL, SHONTS SAYS

As Soon as the Engineers, Now Back, Decide What Kind It Will Be

COMMISSION FEEDING 2,000

Revocation of the Markel Panama Contract Done with No Fuss—Undoing Work the French Did.

Canal Commissioner T. P. Shonts and the members of the International Board of Consulting Engineers who went to inspect the Panama Canal on Sept. 28 returned yesterday morning on the steamship Havana looking healthy and glad to get back. Mr. Shonts, the Chairman of the commission, appeared to be well pleased with the improved conditions he found on the Isthmus. The question of food supplies was being settled satisfactorily with regard to the employes, but at a monetary loss to the Canal Commission. The board of expert foreign engineers had thoroughly inspected the route of the canal from Colon to Panama, and on Dec. 1 they are expected to report and recommend what they consider the best kind of canal to dig.

Speaking about the sanitation and the progress which had been already made on the Isthmus, Commissioner Shonts told why the contract for feeding the canal employes was taken away from J. E. Markel of Omaha, who got the contract. When the Markel contract was granted Henry Balfe and Hudgins & Dumas, the unsuccessful bidders, objected on the ground that they had been compelled to revise their bids at too short notice. They also declared that the bills of fare which formed the contract contained some peculiar plagiarisms from the offers made by the unsuccessful bidders. Of the revocation of the contract Mr. Shonts said:

"The Markel contract was revoked by mutual consent because the commission had decided to try to feed the men with their own equipment and staff. When I went to the Isthmus on the trip before this I found the conditions of the food supply as bad as they could be. Not only was the food dear and indifferent in quality, but in some sections the men were confronted with actual starvation. We resolved to take up the food question first.

"Our first act was to order the commissaries to open up and supply the immediate necessities of life to the employes at the lowest possible price. I discussed the question with Gov. Magoon and Chief Engineer Stevens, and we all agreed that the Government must furnish the plant and the equipment.

"I suggested that if we had to equip the hotels at various points of the canal, build refrigerating houses, laundries, &c., we should run them ourselves. Gov. Magoon said that he knew nothing about keeping hotels, and Mr. Stevens had no time to attend to such matters.

"After I had returned to the States all the cables I received from Stevens showed that things were getting rapidly worse, and something had to be done.

"It was a grave emergency. We did the best we could, and asked for bids for the feeding of the men. The contract went to Mr. Markel, and in it was a clause which stated that it could be revoked on thirty days' notice. When I went to he Isthmus this time I found that the conditions had greatly improved.

"The employes were getting their food supplies at moderate rates and the emergency had been safely passed over. I discussed the food question again with my fellow-Commissioners, and pointed out that the bids were all guesswork, and no one knew for a certainty what the expense of feeding the men would be. If Markel's bid was too low he would quit, and if be made money out of it the men would shout. I suggested that we should try the experiment ourselves for three or four months until the hotels were ready and see how it worked out. My idea was adopted.

"We called Mr. Markel in and told him of our decision, and he took it very well. He said that he would waive his thirty days' notice. The present charge is $22.50 for food and $2.50 for the room per month. The colored laborers pay 30 cents, silver, per day.

"We intend to let things run for a sufficient time to see how much it costs to feed the men, and if it is too expensive, and if our organization takes up too much time, the contract will be put up again for new bids. All we know now is that we are losing money in feeding the men at $22.50 a month.

"I should judge that we are now feeding between two and three thousand persons. There are over 13,000 on the rolls. Employes from the United States are paid in gold and the laborers in the local silver currency. Two hotels and seven mess houses have been erected, and 2,500 of the old French houses are being rebuilt. The natives are not thrifty and do not work. If we increased their wages they would only work three days a week instead of six.

"There is a steady supply of negro labor from Jamaica, Fortune Island, Martinique, and Guadaloupe, in the West Indies, and our engineers have learned how to handle them."

Mr. Shonts said he had found the men on the Isthmus in good health—much better than on his last visit. He added:

"We have 4,000 men now at work on sanitation. In June there were 62 cases of yellow fever, in July 42, in August 27, in September 6, and so far there have been none in October. At the Ancon Hospital at Panama there were 239 patients the day before I left, and this is the lowest list there has even been."

Actual work on the canal, Mr. Shonts said, was confined at present to the task of getting wharves, railroads, and machinery ready so that when the engineers found out what they wanted the digging could begin at once. Contracts, Mr. Shonts said, had just been let for 800 flat cars, 120 locomotives, and 60 steam shovels, which cost from $10,000 to $12,000 apiece.

"About 2,600 men are at work in Culebra cut," Mr. Shonts added, "and sixteen steam shovels are in use shaping up the sides for the installation of the new shovels. The new French company did some work there which we wish they had left undone. They had gouged between two and three million yards of earth out of the cut and left it in a ragged condition. As we go along we are filling up the holes they made."

Commissioner Shonts said that he could not tell what type of canal the engineers would decide to build. The committee had three points to study: Practicability, cost of construction, and length of time.

Among the passengers on the Havana besides Mr. Shonts were Rear Admiral Endicott, Brig. Gen. O. H. Ernst, and Major Benjamin and J. M. Harrod of the commission. The Board of Engineers is composed of Gen. George W. Davis, William Barclay Parsons, W. H. Burr, Gen. Henry L. Abbot, Eugene Tincauzer, German delegate; Edouard M. Quellennec of the Suez Canal staff, Isham Randolph, F. P. Stearns, Joseph Ripley, W. H. Hunter, Manchester Canal; Adolph Guerard, French delegate; J. G. Welcker, Dutch delegate; Capt. John C. Oakes, Secretary, and F. P. Warren, interpreter.

Mr. Parsons denied that some of the foreign engineers have given as their opinion that a canal cannot be finished within twenty years.

JAPANESE DINNER TO BRYAN.

TOKIO, Oct. 17.—William J. Bryan arrived yesterday and was warmly welcomed by members of the Japanese-American Society.

A dinner was given to him last evening at the Maple Club by the same society. Baron Kaneko presided. Mr. Bryan evidently enjoyed the pure Japanese style of entertainment.

Mr. Bryan will be entertained at luncheon to-morrow by Count Okuma, leader of the Progressive Party, and also will address the students of the Waseda University.

MIKADO THANKS FIGHTERS FOR VICTORIES IN WAR

Heavenly Duties Owing to Ancestors Are Discharged.

SYMPATHY FOR THE KILLED

Declares the Nation Expects Much of Its Soldiers In Its Progress and Development.

TOKIO, Oct. 17.—The following is a translation of the imperial rescript to the army and navy:

"To our beloved subjects serving in the army and navy we give instructions. They consist of five articles, in which is embodied the spirit of those serving in the army and navy at the conclusion of the war in the thirty-eighth year of the Meiji (1905), and are issued for your further instruction and guidance, having in view the future of our State.

"Ten years have elapsed since our army and navy, keeping apace with the world's progress, realized their remarkable development, and in the war against Russia last year your combined efforts in discharging your respective duties, coupled with unerring strategy, resulted in a full utilization of the opportunities for attack, and realized great and unprecedented victories on land and sea.

"The valor and glory of our Empire thus being manifested, our hopes were realized by your loyalty and bravery, and we accomplished the full purpose of the war and feel gratified that thereby the heavenly duties we owe our ancestors and the people in general are discharged.

"We profoundly sympathize with those who fell in the battles or died through illness and those who were maimed.

"We now conclude peace with Russia. The glory of our army and navy, together with that of the nation, has enhanced the weight of our responsibilities. The nation expects much of you in progress and development.

"Those of you, whether remaining in the service or going home, are commanded to comply with our will and faithfully observe our instructions. We expect you thus to discharge your duties as our helpers, and with increased energy fulfill the obligations to your country."

LONDON TIMES—NEW YORK TIMES
Special Cable, Copyright, 1905.

TOKIO, Oct. 17.—Although the Emperor's rescript on the occasion of the publication of the peace treaty and his message to the army and navy express entire satisfaction with the terms of peace, the newspapers continue to condemn them strongly.

It is now evident, however, that party politics are largely responsible for this attitude.

ST. PETERSBURG, Oct. 17.—The War Office has communicated the news of the ratification of the peace treaty to Gen. Linevitch, who has been ordered to arrange the necessary steps to carry out the provisions for the withdrawal of the Russian troops from Manchuria in eighteen months and for the evacuation of Korea.

No decision has been arrived at as to the size of the army which will remain in Siberia.

PLAGUE IN SIBERIA.

Appears on the Railway Line—Peril to Returning Troops.

ST. PETERSBURG, Oct. 17.—Bubonic plague has again appeared on the line of the Trans-Siberian Railroad, which from now on will be crowded with returning troops.

THREE ARRESTED IN CAR.

Scuffle with Alleged Pickpockets Scares Broadway Passengers.

The north-bound Broadway car was crowded, but the passengers heard a man say to the conductor early last night as the car approached Times Square:

"Lock the front door, and don't let anybody out of the back door until I tell you."

Then four men rushed toward the front door. One of them got out and away before the conductor had locked it. The other three rushed toward the back door, fighting the man who was giving directions. Some of the passengers thought they saw the gleam of a pistol. Women screamed; men bellowed to know what it was all about.

The man who had given directions said that he was Detective Sergt. King, that he was trying to arrest several men suspected of being pickpockets, and that nobody else need be frightened. Three men were taken prisoners.

At the Tenderloin Station, where they were locked up as suspicious persons, they said they were: Patrick McCabe, 249 West 103d Street; John Collins, 274 West Fortieth Street, and George Munro, 2,193 Eighth Avenue.

So many complaints have been sent to Commissioner McAdoo about street-car pickpockets between Fourteenth and Forty-second Streets that he has detailed a number of Central Office detectives to watch on the cars within those limits. Several months ago the pickpockets confined their thefts to the cross-town cars that ply between ferry slips. It is only lately that they have ventured upon the Sixth Avenue and Broadway cars.

The thieves and pickpockets are busy all over the Tenderloin. Mrs. Augusta Grant of Plainfield, N. J., bought a glass of soda water in a drug store at Sixth Avenue and Twenty-third Street Monday. She laid her satchel down on the counter. It had in it $200 and some valuable papers. When she lowered her arm after taking the first draught of soda the purse was gone.

Miss Bertha Greenleaf of Newark, N. J., laid down her purse in a store at Broadway and Thirty-seventh Street several days ago. It had in it a diamond brooch worth $185 and $80 in cash. The purse vanished.

STOPS ARMS FOR DOMINGO.

President Forbids Exports of War Supplies to the Republic.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 17.—The exportation of arms, ammunition, or munitions of war of any kind from any port of the United States or Porto Rico to the Republic of Santo Domingo is prohibited by a Presidential proclamation issued from the State Department to-day.

The memorandum explains that this action was taken after consultation with the Domingan Government. It is intended to assist in the enforcement of regulations designed to prevent perennial revolutions. A joint resolution of April 22, 1898, is cited as the President's authority.

LOWER TARIFF FOR ISLANDS.

25 Per Cent. of Dingley Rates the Plan—Payne for Reduction.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 17.—Sereno E. Payne, Chairman of the Ways and Means Committee, to-day followed in the footsteps of Gen. Grosvenor of the same committee by declaring for free trade with the Philippines. Both are members of the quartet known as the "House machine."

The treaty concluded with Spain precludes free trade before 1909, it appears. The understanding is that the Administration scheme is a bill which shall reduce the tariff to 25 per cent. of the Dingley rates, with a proviso that in 1909 all tariff rates shall be abolished. Mr. Payne's declaration was made after a conference with the President.

DAY OF DOCTORED BOOKS GONE, SAYS PAUL MORTON

Thinks Mr. Roosevelt Favors Yearly Corporation Audit.

MR. SCHIFF ON PUBLIC TRUSTS

Tells Accountants' Association That Many Directors Have Confused Their Duties and Responsibilities.

The American Association of P ic Accountants held its eighteenth ann - sary banquet in the College Hall of e Hotel Astor yesterday evening. Franklin Allen presided at the banquet, with Paul Morton on his right and Jacob H. Schiff and Controller Grout on his left. One hundred and sixty guests sat down at 7 o'clock, when dinner was announced. Isaac Seligman was to have been present and deliver an address on finance with Mr. Schiff, but was unable to attend.

The toast of "The President of the United States," which was given with musical honors, was responded to by Paul Morton, former Secretary of the Navy. In the course of his speech which was punctuated by the applause of the accountants, he said:

"Theodore Roosevelt has as much love of country as George Washington; he has as much foresight as Thomas Jefferson, and he has the same amount of courage as Andrew Jackson. His opposition of slavery of all kinds was not excelled by Lincoln, and to-day, while he is accused by many as being a man of war, he stands pre-eminently among the rulers of the world as a man of peace. We are in doubt for which we have the most pride, our country or our President.

This is a great country we live in. We have a great people; they are strenuous; they love to work, they have ingenuity, and it seems to me that their ambitions are as high as any people in the world.

Fulfills American Ideal.

"To me Theodore Roosevelt fulfills the American ideal. He is ready to make war at any time on wrong, on corruption, on evil, and he does it with fearlessness. He will never insult a foreign power, and every foreign power knows that he will be quick to resent an insult to us. His own life is an open book.

"And I believe that I am voicing his sentiments when I say that every great corporation of this country might be investigated or audited at least once a year by public and independent accountants [applause] so that investors might be kept posted and protected. Directors informed, and employes led not into temptation.

"Publicity is sure to come, and a time is near at hand when doctored bookkeeping will be treated in the same vigorous way that other malpractice is. [Applause.]

"I know of no man," said Mr. Morton in concluding his speech, "who has done more, in my opinion, to bring about a keener realizing sense of dangers that have threatened our great corporations, our financial institutions, and our republican form of Government than Theodore Roosevelt, and as an American citizen I glory in the country and I glory in our President."

After the applause had subsided the toastmaster, Franklin Allen, said: "In view of the well-merited applause of the last speaker, it may not be inappropriate for me to express in your behalf the hope that financial circles of this city will soon call him in his own new chosen field as the great Peacemaker."

Has Praise for Two Officials.

In calling upon Controller Grout to respond for "The City of New York," Mr. Allen said: "I was born before the war and have listened to a great many promises which are still unfulfilled, but let us be thankful, let us rejoice, that the city to-day is as beautiful as it is. The government of New York City might be better than it is, but its two principal officers at the present time, the Mayor and the Controller, are honest, public-spirited men. I rejoice that one of them is here to-night, and I call upon Controller Grout to respond to the toast of our wonderful city."

In his speech the Controller dwelt briefly on the importance of public accountants as a body and their usefulness in the Finance Department of the city. He described the progress made by New York and its importance all over the world as a part of the United States.

"I do no believe the toastmaster," said Mr. Grout, "that there are other cities whose Governments surpass the City of New York. [Applause.] I think the time has come when we should not surrender to this mania which possesses us every two years when there is a municipal election, when we feel that we must condemn the government of the City of New York for everything it has done. I undertake to say to-day that it is the best governed city in the United States. [Applause.]

"I undertake to say, going back in my experience for fifteen years, that there never has been a time when the City of New York was worse governed than many of our great business corporations have. New York will be before many years the financial and commercial metropolis of the world; the metropolis with the largest population, and the metropolis with the best opportunities for education, for refinement, and for culture."

After the speeches on "Law" and "Education" had been delivered, the toastmaster called upon Jacob H. Schiff to respond for France. When the applause occasioned by his rising had subsided, Mr. Schiff said:

Indispensable to Bankers.

"When my friend Mr. Dickinson, the Chairman of your Dinner Committee, was good enough to invite me on your behalf to take part in your gathering to-night, it gave me much satisfaction, for I appreciate the opportunity to meet so large a number of the members of a profession for whom I ever had the most sincere regard and profoundest esteem. Indeed, the two aids which have become indispensable to the success of the banker, the corporation manager, and to the man of large affairs, are the lawyer and the accountant, and it is almost impossible to obtain a correct judgment of any undertaking without the assistance of the expert accountant.

"I am willing to admit that the success and the reputation of my own house have in no small degree been furthered by the guidance it has received in many instances from the men of your profession in the consideration of the large and important business propositions which are being brought before it. It is a fact that the advice thus obtained has led to the rejection of a considerably larger number of propositions than have been found acceptable, greatly to the safeguarding of our good name and reputation.

View Sometimes Too Rosy.

"I need, however, add, as one who has some experience in financial matters, it happens at times, I believe, that public accountants are led to place too favorable an aspect upon the results of an investigation with which they become intrusted, under the mistaken idea that they are expected to present facts in such manner that propositions under consideration must be made feasible of being carried into effect. This, you will agree, is entirely wrong, and while I know such happenings to be the exception, they should be entirely avoided.

"I speak of this here because, now that you have formed this strong association, the best service you can render to the business community consists in the exclusion from your ranks of all whose methods shall not find in every way your own approval; in fact, your organization should become to your profession what the Bar Association is to the legal fraternity, a power for the establishment and maintenance of the highest professional standard.

Must Bring Moral Uplifting.

"We are at this time passing through a period which, while it is bringing forth some unsatisfactory disclosures, cannot but lead to a moral uplifting and regeneration in many ways. The unprecedented development and success of corporate interests have in some instances led executive officers to forget that a corporation cannot be administered like a private concern and that executive officers owe accountability to those from whom they derive their powers.

"With notable exceptions, Directors of great corporations have been thoughtless and too trustful, and, in the face of recent developments, the lesson need be learned that acceptance of corporate Directorship brings definite duties and responsibilities, at least of a moral character, which need be actively looked after and courageously discharged. It is just in this connection that the services of your profession might with much advantage be called more frequently into requisition.

Has a Discouraging Side.

"The present situation, with the lasting and wholesome effect it will without doubt exercise, has, however, much that must be discouraging to men of self-respect. The very men, Directors of great insurance companies, who, in face of a peculiar system and conditions, have at least made the endeavor to direct, have come in for particular criticism, not only for not discovering shortcomings of executive officers, but alike for the legitimate conduct of their own affairs. Calm judgment and deliberation are somewhat in danger of disappearing, and it is indeed high time that the conservative public press rather seek to allay excitement than to stimplate it, as has become the habit.

"The most valuable asset of a community is the good name and reputation of its citizens, and it is a serious state of affairs when reputations become to be considered only, as to their value, for the number of headlines and amount of copy they will furnish to the sensational newspaper.

"Nothing, however, so powerfully makes for truth as figures, at least in financial affairs—true figures as sought out and properly marshaled by the expert accountant. Even if figures are cold, you men of figures are warm-hearted—creators of confidence—and furnishing, as you do, the very basis for successful legitimate enterprise, so do I wish success to your profession and prosperity to your association. I thank you."

Among the guests were Dr. James T. Young, Eugene A. Philbin, and John H. Loomis, President of the Accountants' Association. A letter from Grover Cleveland, regretting that he could not attend, was read.

The dinner celebrated the amalgamation into one representative National body of all accountants heretofore identified with the Societies of Certified Public Accountants of New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Maryland, Georgia, Massachusetts, Ohio, Illinois, Missouri, Minnesota, Michigan, Tennessee, Colorado, Washington, and California, representing a total membership of over 500 practicing certified accountants in the United States.

DID FAVOR MATOS'S CAUSE.

Gen. Greene Gives Decisive Testimony in Venezuela's $11,000,000 Suit.

Gen. Francis V. Greene, ex-President of the National Asphalt Company, was examined yesterday before United States Commissioner Gilchrist as a witness in behalf of the Venezuelan Government in the action instituted by the latter against the New York and Bermudez Company to recover about $11,000,000 because of the latter organization's alleged assistance to and participation in the Matos revolution in 1901.

Gen. Greene was asked only one question, which he answered at length, his reply indicating beyond doubt that the defendants did materially aid the revolutionists. Lawyer John D. Lindsay, representing the New York and Bermudez Company, did not ask Gen. Greene a single question in cross-examination. After Gen. Greene had concluded, all the interested parties took a train for Washington, where other witnesses are to be examined to-day.

The question put to Gen. Greene was:

"State whether when you returned from Europe in 1901, you knew that John M. Mack, Avery D. Andrews, and Arthur W. Sewall, or any of them as representatives of the National Asphalt Company, or any of the allied companies, were in communication with M. A. Matos, or were aiding him with money or in any other manner?"

"My only knowledge," replied Gen. Greene slowly, and speaking with great deliberation, "of this matter comes from what was told me by Messrs. Mack, Andrews, and Sewall. When I returned from Europe in October, 1901, I learned from them that they had decided to support Matos in his dispute with Castro. I told them that I thought they had made a great mistake, because what they had done was not acting in good faith with the State Department, which up to that time, and largely on representations made by me to Secretary Hay, had supported the Bermudez Company.

"I told them that in view of what they had done in my absence it would be impossible for me to make any further claims at the State Department in Washington in behalf of the Bermudez Company, and, in fact, I never did after that go to the State Department in behalf of the Asphalt Company. I also told them that I thought it was a great mistake, because it would cost the company a great deal of money in addition to the amount which they told me they had already expended, which, as I recollect, was in the neighborhood of $100,000.

"In view of my position in the matter, very little was told to me of what was actually done in the support of Matos. The business was transacted largely without my knowledge."

Lawyers Cowling, White & Waite, who with Mr. Dupignac, represent the Venezuelan Government, were much pleased with the evidence of Gen. Greene, and seemed to think that the General's testimony practically rebutted all the evidence offered in behalf of the defendant company.

POOL HINTS AT GRAFT.

Bad Plan to Make Police Probationary Officers, He Tells Investigators.

The commission appointed to examine into the operation of the probation system in the police courts and report to the Legislature through the Governor held its first public meeting yesterday afternoon in the United Charities Building. The meeting was devoted to the examination of City Magistrates. Magistrates Furlong of Brooklyn, Wahle, Whitman, Finn, Pool, and Barlow expressed their views.

Most of the Magistrates said they approved of the existing probation system. Magistrate Furlong thought it could be improved. Magistrate Pool created the only ripple of excitement in the session by declaring that he was heartily opposed to the selection of policemen as probation officers.

Magistrate Pool said that the ideal probation officer was a layman whose soul was in the uplifting of the unfortunate. He hinted that there were opportunities for graft in probationary work. The inference drawn from the expression of his views was that members of the police force were especially susceptible to considerations other than of the humanitarian brand. This opinion was given unasked, and when requested to be more specific the Magistrate showed a disinclination to go into details.

The commission will hold another session this afternoon, and the probationary officers will be examined.

Homer Folks, Chairman of the commission, presided. Other members present were Charles F. McKenna, Samuel J. Barrows, Howard R. Bayne, Howard S. Gans, Miss Alice Woodbridge, Mrs. Tunis J. Bergen of Brooklyn, Mrs. W. W. Armstrong of Rochester, and Frederick Almy of Buffalo.

Electric Switching on the New Haven.

Contracts have been let for the installation of an electrically operated switching plant on the New York, New Haven and Hartford Railroad at Mystic, Conn., similar in construction to that which is nearing completion at Derby Junction. Under the new electric system, switches and signals will be operated by individual motors placed on the roadbed and supplied with power from a storage battery located in the switch tower. The surplus energy automatically indicates to the operator in the tower the position of all switches and signals.

ODELL HERE CONFERRING ABOUT THE SPEAKERSHIP

Merritt May Be the Chairman's Man for the Office.

HE HAS MALBY BEHIND HIM

Bedell's Boom Extinguished — Rogers Likely to be the Platt Men's Choice —Higgins Neutral So Far.

State Chairman Odell came to town yesterday to open the campaign for the election of a successor to the late Speaker Nixon. Previous to his coming he had sent word to some of the State leaders that he would like to see them to talk over the Speakership situation.

Mr. Odell spent the day at the Republican Club. Among those who called on him was Senator Malby, who has a candidate for the Speakership in the person of Assemblyman Edwin A. Merritt. There has been a strong possibility that Merritt would become the Odell candidate.

There was some talk that Chairman Odell might put forward Assemblyman Louis Bedell for the Speakership. Bedell is the representative of the Second District of Orange, which is Mr. Odell's home county. Politicians from Newburg yesterday disposed of the Bedell boom by saying that the relations existing between Mr. Bedell and State Chairman Odell at present were not at all harmonious and that there was a strong likelihood that Mr. Bedell would not be returned to the Assembly this year.

Bedell has been the Chairman of the Committee on Railroads for many years and has wielded a large influence in shaping railroad legislation at Albany. Certain things he did at the last session are alleged to have displeased certain interests.

Col. George W. Dunn, who was Mr. Odell's predecessor as Chairman of the Republican State Committee, was at the Fifth Avenue last night. Col. Dunn is an ardent supporter of James T. Rogers of Broome County for the Speakership. Mr. Rogers is the majority leader of the Assembly, and in line for promotion. He is a Platt man and probably will be the first choice of the Platt men for the place.

If Mr. Rogers's personal popularity should not be sufficiently strong to insure him the coveted honor, the Platt men have several candidates in reserve. Charles W. Mead of Albany is one, and James J. Apgar of Westchester is another. Mead is the man whom William Barnes would prefer to have exalted.

Jean L. Burnett of Ontario, Chairman of the Assembly Committee on Cities, will also be in the field and will have Senator John Raines back of him. Raines and Burnett until within the last two years were counted as Platt men, but of late they have shown a strong leaning toward Odell.

Great interest is being manifested by the Republican politicians in the attitude Gov. Higgins will take in the Speakership fight. Thus far no Higgins candidate has come to the front. If Gov. Higgins should side with either Platt or Odell he would be able to determine the result, but it is regarded as doubtful whether he would be sufficiently strong to have a candidate of his own named in opposition to those backed by Platt and Odell. The importance of the Governor's attitude lies chiefly in the fact that it will indicate whether he is to be a candidate to succeed himself as Governor. Furthermore, it will disclose the alliances upon which he would depend to bring about his renomination.

Already the Speakership fight is becoming an important factor in the election of Assemblymen. It is regarded as certain that the Platt and Odell forces will endeavor to outdo each other in rendering assistance to the Republican candidates for the Assembly, with a view to winning their support for their respective candidates for the Speakership.

Chairman Odell denied himself to all newspaper callers yesterday. He will probably return to Newburg to-day.

FEELING HEARST'S STRENGTH.

Murphy Orders His District Leaders to Canvass the Vote.

Tammany leaders in each of the thirty-five Manhattan and Bronx districts are making careful canvasses to arrive at the exact strength of the Hearst ticket. On Monday Charles F. Murphy informed the leaders quietly that he wanted them to ascertain who were the probable Hearst men in their respective districts and to have the election District Captains report full lists.

These lists will be duplicated, and then District Captains will follow up the work and talk with the men who are believed to be probable Hearst voters. The Tammany orators will devote much more of their attention to Hearst than to Ivins, and will place before the voters the situation as purely a choice between Hearst and McClellan.

TALLEY ATTACKS COLER.

Says Charge That McClellan Hindered Civil Service Reform Is False.

Commissioner Alfred J. Talley of the Municipal Civil Service Commission attacked Bird S. Coler in a speech last night before the Pocasset Club, and branded as "absolute falsehood" the statement of Mr. Coler that Mayor McClellan did not allow him a free hand to effect civil service reforms while Mr. Coler was President of the Commission. Mr. Talley, in defending the Mayor, denied that Mayor McClellan ever asked Mr. Coler to enter the board to aid in the old Tammany fight on Senator McCarren. The Pocasset Club, before which the speech was delivered, is the regular Tammany organization in the Thirty-third Assembly District, of which Fire Commissioner Nicholas J. Hayes, the nominee for Sheriff, is the leader.

TAMMANY NOTIFIES TO-DAY.

And Judge Newburger Will Keep That Republican Indorsement.

Arrangements have been made for the formal notification of all the Tammany county and borough nominees this afternoon at 4:30 o'clock at the Democratic Club. All of the nominees of the two conventions held last Thursday night in Tammany Hall have been told to be present.

Judge Newburger will not decline the Republican indorsement for the Supreme Court, but will run on both tickets notwithstanding the Republicans failed to indorse Justice Gildersleeve for re-election.

C. U. TICKET IN BROOKLYN.

Ebstein, Burr, and Boulton Are to be Indorsed by Circular.

The Kings County Citizens' Union will indorse Frederick H. Ebstein and Justice Burr, Republican candidates for Borough President and Supreme Court Justice, and Alfred J. Boulton, whom the Municipal Ownership League has nominated for Register. This was decided at a meeting of the Committee on Nominations held yesterday afternoon at Citizens' Union headquarters in the Temple Bar Building.

Chairman Walter B. Kelby appointed Alexander M. White, Jr., a committee of one to draft a circular announcing this step to the voters. The circular will be printed and spread broadcast over the borough. The action of the committee will be ratified at a general meeting held next Friday afternoon.

Point for Hearst Man in Brooklyn.

The Hearst campaign managers in Brooklyn chuckled yesterday when they stole a march on the rival campaign directors by leasing the Clermont Avenue Rink, the largest hall in Brooklyn. Chairman Jacob Brenner of the Republican Committee, seeking to hire the rink yesterday, was astonished to learn that the Municipal Ownership League had engaged it for every night of the two weeks preceding election.

Ex-Congressman Francis Burton Harrison presided last night at a Tammany rally in the Twenty-ninth Assembly District. The meeting was held at the home of the Osceola Club, the district organization, and was addressed by Mr. Harrison, Moses Herman, Montgomery Hare, and William Mason Smith.

SANDERSON'S

"MOUNTAIN DEW"
SCOTCH

Is a "pot-still" whisky.

¶ That means that it's made in the old-fashioned way — slow and costly.

¶ The fact that it is thoroughly aged before being imported into this country furthermore guarantees a finely flavored Scotch which is a healthful stimulant, leaving no ill effects.

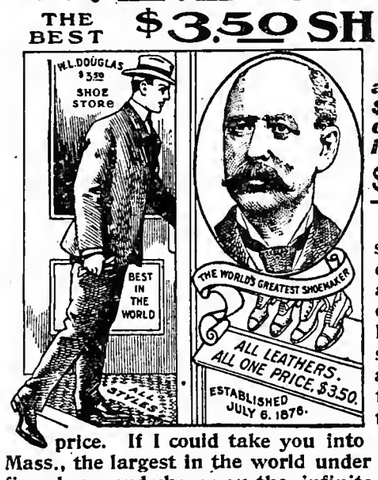
W. L. DOUGLAS
THE BEST $3.50 SHOES FOR MEN.



W. L. Douglas makes and sells more men's $3.50 shoes than any other manufacturer in the world.

$10,000 REWARD to anyone who can disprove this statement.

W. L. Douglas $3.50 shoes have by their excellent style, easy fitting and superior wearing qualities, achieved the largest sale of any $3.50 shoe in the world. They are just as good as those that cost you $5 to $7—the only difference is the price. If I could take you into my factory at Brockton, Mass., the largest in the world under one roof making men's fine shoes, and show you the infinite care with which every pair of Douglas shoes is made, you would realize why W. L. Douglas $3.50 shoes are the best shoes produced anywhere.

If I could show you the difference between the shoes made in my factory and those of other makes, you would understand why Douglas $3.50 shoes cost more to make, why they hold their shape, fit better, wear longer, and are of greater intrinsic value than any other $3.50 shoe on the market to-day.

AS GOOD AS $7.00 TO $8.00 CUSTOM SHOES.

"I have worn the W. L. Douglas $3.50 shoe for the past twelve years. Find them to be just as comfortable, more stylish and wear just as long as custom made shoes that cost me $7.00 to $8.00."

CHOATE AND PORTER ON OUR GROWTH ABROAD

Ex-Ambassadors Speak at Chamber of Commerce Reception.

PRESIDENT A WORLD FIGURE

He Is Regarded Abroad, Say the Orators, as the Embodiment of Americanism in Its Best Form.

Former Ambassadors Joseph H. Choate and Gen. Horace Porter, who have lately returned from posts in London and Paris, were guests of honor yesterday at a reception tendered to them at the Chamber of Commerce. Both have been elected honorary members of the Chamber.

The large assembly hall of the chamber was well filled with members. Among those present were Levi P. Morton, Cornelius N. Bliss, Alexander E. Orr, D. O. Mills, Henry Clews, Jacob H. Schiff, James Speyer, Gen. F. V. Greene, President Underwood of the Erie Railway Company, and C. M. Schwab.

Both the guests were escorted to the rostrum and the reception began with a speech of greeting from Morris K. Jesup, President of the Chamber. President Jesup said, in part:

"The names of Joseph H. Choate and Horace Porter have been familiar to us all for years back. We know what they have done for the city, for the State, and for the country. Years ago, in the time of reform here in this city, we remember the voice of Joseph H. Choate counseling wisdom and order and sobriety. When the call to our civil war came we know what Horace Porter did for the country, and we know what he has done also in the cause of reform. We welcome, therefore, these gentlemen, distinguished for those things which I have mentioned. We welcome them now particularly in their return from their six years of noble service to our country abroad. We feel proud that they have been there as a type of our citizenship."

Mr. Choate was the first to respond to the President's welcome. He thanked the Chamber of Commerce for making him an honorary member, saying: "I don't know what are the perquisites and emoluments of the place. I have not yet been informed.

"Reference has been made," continued the former Ambassador, "to my happy residence abroad—for every day of it I enjoyed intensely. I must say, however, that what pleased me most was to witness every day, from the day I landed until I left, the growing esteem and admiration in which my country was held abroad. And, more than that, in these later years, the esteem and admiration which was universal itself, and every day more and more, for our distinguished and honored President.

"They seemed to regard him, as we at home regard him, as the typical and finest embodiment of American courage, honesty, enterprise, and success—four great qualities which are universally admired in England, and, I believe, in France." Mr. Choate congratulated Gen. Porter upon his successful search for the body of John Paul Jones.

"He has had the signal felicity," said Mr. Choate, "to recover, in spite of insuperable difficulties, insuperable to anybody else, and to restore to his country the ashes of one of her great naval heroes, the founder of the American Navy. I know, I think, better than you know, how much he has done for the promotion and welfare of American commerce, and promoting its true interest in the eight years that he has been in the French capital. But, more than that, he in his residence there has made every Frenchman his friend and at the same time has not aroused a single enemy or even a critic among his own countrymen—a very rare experience in the history of Ambassadors."

Gen. Porter complimented Mr. Choate in turn, and said:

"At the last dinner that I had the honor of attending at the table of the President of France the King of England was there. He spoke most cordially, most enthusiastically, and even gratefully, of the services rendered in England by my distinguished colleague, and his great regret at his departure.

"In going to France there did not seem to be very much to do there; I did not expect to stay but two or three years, leading rather an active life at home; but when the war broke out with Spain; when the Peace Commission assembled to end that war; when the Monetary Commission and Fishery Commission met, and the inquest in regard to the North Sea incident was held; and the war in China began; and when the great exposition took place at the close of the century, and the war in the East came on, I certainly realized that it was the most interesting period that I could have passed in France in the last hundred years.

"There was another thing that was very gratifying to me abroad. While there, America having become a great world power, American notes were sent abroad. We took the initiative in regard to the preservation of the integrity of China and keeping the open door in the Orient; and these notes were generally accepted by our sister Republic of France, and their action was coupled with encomiums upon our President for his taking the initiative, that it came with more power from a great neutral and not a warlike nation in the New World. That was most significant, and it shows that there was a great respect everywhere for his strenuous intercession."

Among others in the gathering were Thomas P. Fowler, George C. Boldt, Charles H. Cramp, Postmaster Willcox, Robert B. Roosevelt, James A. Wright, Frederick D. Underwood, Stewart L. Woodford, John F. Dryden, Clement A. Griscom, Jr., James Stillman, Oscar S. Straus, John A. Stewart, George Westinghouse, A. Ekray, French Consul General; Col. John Jacob Astor, and Alfred Mosely.

A luncheon followed the reception.

ALL GUILTY, SAY SOPHOMORES

Columbia Men Who Shared in Hazing Plead for the Suspended.

An effort is being made by the sophomore class of Columbia University to have reinstated the three members of the class, Beck, Bijur, and Brown, who were suspended for hazing. A petition signed by all the sophomores who took part in the fighting is to be submitted to the Faculty. The wording of the petition makes those who sign it acknowledge equal guilt with the men who suffered suspension. It reads as follows:

"We, the undersigned members of the class of 1908, hereby declare that we were involved to as great an extent in what occurred on Sept. 28 as the three men suspended, and we also promise that if the said three members be reinstated, we will do all in our power to put down such occurrences in the future."

Speculation as to what the university authorities will do in the matter is interesting, as all who sign the petition make themselves liable to the same penalty as was inflicted on the three men.

New Special School for Truants.

A school for the exclusive use of truants and incorrigibles, the first of its kind in this city, will open to-day in Public School No. 120, Broome Street, near Clinton. The school will also be particularly adapted for the instruction of children who have been before the Children's Court and who need special oversight. It will save the city the expense of boarding truants, as the children who attend it will live at home. The new school will be under the control of Miss Ollve M. Jones, Principal.

PALLAS WAS THEIR FRIEND.

Children at the School Farm Mourn the Commissioner's Death.

The little students of agriculture at the Children's School Farm, De Witt Clinton Park, Fifty-second Street and Eleventh Avenue, are mourning the death of Park Commissioner Pallas.

Mrs. Henry Parsons, who devotes her attention to instructing the children, telephoned to the "Farm" at 8:30 o'clock yesterday morning, to ask that the flag be placed at half mast.

"I have already half-masted the flag," said a childish voice. "I did it early this morning. We are all awfully sorry."

Later Mrs. Parsons went to the "Farm" and found that the children had pasted a picture of the Commissioner on a blackboard and placed a border of black crêpe about the picture. The blackboard also bears these words: "The Farm is closed until Saturday on account of the death of Commissioner Pallas."

Mr. Pallas took a deep interest in the Farm, and was a frequent visitor there.

The Park Board adopted resolutions upon the death of Mr. Pallas yesterday. The Central Federated Union will meet to-night in the University Settlement Building, 184 Eldridge Street, to adopt resolutions upon Mr. Pallas's death.

When the Aldermen met yesterday a message was received from Mayor McClellan announcing the death of Park Commissioner Pallas, and suggesting that the board take appropriate action. President Fornes appointed Aldermen McCall, Goodman, and Kenny a committee to make the necessary arrangements. Mayor McClellan will make no attempt to choose a new Park Commissioner until after election.

ADVERTISING MEN MEET.

Their International Association Begins Its Second Annual Session.

The International Advertising Association began its second annual meeting at the Waldorf-Astoria yesterday. The association was organized in St. Louis last year, chiefly with a view to agitating for legislation for the protection of advertisers.

Much has already been accomplished to carry out the aims of the association. A more stringent trade mark law was enacted by Congress last Winter as a result of its efforts. Since then 18,000 trade marks have been registered, as against 2,500 last year.

Certain residents of Cuba had formed the habit of registering trade marks on the island as soon as they were registered at Washington, and when the manufacturers sought to introduce their products in Cuba they found that their trade marks had been pre-empted. They were obliged to buy out the enterprising Cubans before they could do business. This sort of thing has been practically stopped by the association. Delevan Smith of The Indianapolis News and Prof. Stuart of Columbia University will represent the association at Washington this Winter.

Routine business was transacted at yesterday morning's session, and in the afternoon several papers were read.

These Directors, to serve until 1908, were elected yesterday:

A. D. White Chicago; J. M. Campbell, Cincinnati, H. G. Ashbrook, Cleveland; John Lee Mahin, Chicago; Louis Wiley, New York; L. K. Liggett, Boston; Robert P. Habgood, Bradford, Penn.; Ben B. Hampton, New York; E. J. Bliss, Boston, and J. L. Cassidy, Battle Creek, Mich.

The convention will continue to-day, and will wind up with a dinner to-night.

Marshall Field and His Bride Arrive.

Marshall Field of Chicago and his bride were among the arrivals on the North German Lloyd liner Kronprinz Wilhelm yesterday morning. Mr. Field said he thought municipal ownership more of a fad than anything else. Others on board the Kronprinz were Mr. and Mrs. James Brown Potter, Prof. and Mrs. Charles E. Dana, Miss Clara D. Hilger, L. Vogel, the Swiss Minister at Washington; Mr. and Mrs. James Stillman, Jr., E. E. and H. C. Vanderbilt.

CHATTANOOGA'S PLANT A MARVEL TO ENGINEERS

Electric Power Problem to be Worked Out Near That City.

WILL IMPROVE NAVIGATION

Great Dam and Lock in the Tennessee River Will Serve a Double Purpose.

Engineers throughout the country are watching with deep interest the plans of the Chattanooga and Tennessee River Power Company to utilize the waters of the Tennessee River to furnish power for the factories in that enterprising Southern city. The big undertaking is unique in engineering history because it is to be the largest power plant on the globe and because the power is to be transmitted an unparalleled distance. The work on the giant lock and dam will begin in two weeks.

John Bogart, the consulting engineer, in discussing the general possibilities of the great power plant, said yesterday:

"The navigation of the Tennessee River is now impracticable at low stages of the water. The people of that section of the country have been anxious for years to improve navigation, but it has been impossible to get from Congress the large amount of money required. A contract for a lock and dam to entirely relieve navigation has recently been entered into between the Chattanooga and Tennessee River Company and the Secretary of War. The works to be constructed include a lock and dam, a massive power house, a transformer house, and hydraulic and electrical installations sufficient to give an electrical output of 56,000 horse power. The company has just agreed upon a contract with the W. J. Oliver Company, one of the largest firms of Southern contractors, for the construction of that part of the work which shall be performed at once, and this is to be followed by contracts for the installation of the hydraulic and electrical power and the transmission line to the City of Chattanooga and other localities in the neighborhood.

Chattanooga has had a remarkable development in manufacturing industries in the last five years, and perhaps is the most progressive of Southern cities in this respect. Substantially one-half of the power developed by these works will be immediately put in use in the city, and in its regularity and comparative economy will be of the highest value both for industries already established and as a means of inviting and promoting additional factories. The assurance of so large an amount of constant and moderately priced power will be to the highest advantage of the manufacturing centre. The flow of the Tennessee River is so large as to warrant the installation of this great amount of power, which will be greater in volume by 6,000 horse power than its nearest competitor, that at Niagara. Chattanooga and neighborhood factories will, we predict, increase 100 per cent. within a few months.

"The most important feature of this whole proposition is that of annihilating the distance between the points of production and distribution of the power to be furnished. In this respect the Chattanooga plant will stand alone in the world. The physical conditions at the point of the Tennessee River where the plant is to stand are somewhat peculiar, but of great importance, and from a hydraulic standpoint will doubtless lead to the investigation of other streams in manufacturing sections throughout the country and to the development of hydraulic powers wherever fairly similar conditions can be found within a reasonable distance of industrial localities. The increase in the possibilities of electrical transmission to considerable distances demonstrated by this project renders close proximity no longer an essential element for these developments. If we had a river and the falls in the vicinity of New York we could inaugurate the plan here. It would work an industrial revolution."

GREENPOINT BRIDGE OPENED.

New Structure's Lift Span Is the Longest in the World.

The new bridge over Newtown Creek, which connects Greenpoint with Long Island City, was formally opened yesterday afternoon. The two arms of the structure were dropped into place at 4:10 o'clock, and then Bridge Commissioner Best and D. L. Hough of the United Engineering and Contracting Company rode over it, starting from the Greenpoint end, in an automobile. Mr. Hough then turned the bridge over to Commissioner Best and the gates were swung open.

The man who wanted to be the first over was there. About a thousand of him started from either end, and met in the middle with a crash that made a football rush look like a church social. The police finally straightened matters, and traffic was resumed.

The bridge, which is 1,699 feet long and runs from Fourth Street, Long Island City, to Ash Street, Greenpoint, was contracted for on Dec. 9, 1901. A temporary structure was used until yesterday. The total cost of bridge and approaches was about $1,000,000. The United Engineering and Contracting Company built the bridge with the exception of the lift, which was constructed at Athens, N. Y. The lift span is the largest of its type in the world, each lift being 86 feet long. Two thirty horse power electric motors operate the structure.

PURE BILL BOARDS NOW.

Aldermen, by Resolution, Put Them in the Hands of the Police.

Alderman "Tim" Sullivan's resolution to purify the billboards of the city was passed by the Board of Aldermen yesterday. Alderman Goodman wanted the supervision of billposters left with a committee of three to be appointed, respectively, by the Mayor, the Police Commissioner, and the Municipal Art Commission, instead of leaving it entirely to the Commissioner of Police. Under the resolution, penalties for violations are fixed at $10 to $50 on conviction by a Magistrate, or not more than fifty days in the City Prison.

The board approved an appropriation of $21,000 for new fire protection to Bellevue Hospital, and one of $1,000 for the Police Department to collect the election returns. It voted 47 to 7 to widen Fifty-ninth Street, between Madison and Fifth Avenues, by taking two feet from the south sidewalk. The abutting property is owned by John D. Crimmins and Justice P. Henry Dugro.

By Steamer to West Point Football.

The Hudson River Day Line steamers New York and Albany will discontinue their trips for the season after next Saturday. The Harvard-West Point football game will be played on that day on the grounds of the academy. Day Line passengers can return by rail after the game. An inspection drill will be held before the game.

Here's a Challenge to Typewriters.

Miss Lillian Rohmer, who says she is the most rapid typewriter in Chicago, is on her way here to exhibit her prowess at a business system show in Madison Square Garden on Oct. 28. Miss Rohmer says that she can defeat any New York typewriter in either five, ten, or thirty minute contests for speed and accuracy. There are prizes for any New Yorkers who can defeat her.

BLAMES COMPANY FOR CRASH.

Grand Jury Frees Employees Arrested for Palisades Collision.

The retiring Bergen County Grand Jury handed up a presentment yesterday censuring the New Jersey and Hudson Railway and Ferry Company, which runs from the Fort Lee Ferry to Paterson, on account of a rear-end collision on the Palisades two weeks ago as a result of which one person died. The motorman and conductor were arrested, but the Grand Jury discharged them and put the blame on the company.

A presentment was also handed up against the New York, Susquehanna and Western Railroad, which is leased by the Erie, for maintaining a dangerous grade crossing at Little Ferry.

BIG LOSS OF STATE TIMBER.

Commissioner Whipple Suspects Collusion of Subordinates in Affair.

ALBANY, Oct. 17.—Forest Commissioner Whipple said to-day that his department had received word that the International Paper Company in 1903 and 1904 cut more than 3,000,000 feet of timber on State lands in Township 31, Herkimer County.

The department will bring action against the company to recover damages, and will investigate how such wholesale trespass went so long undiscovered. The department is still unable to find Forest Warden Charles A. Klock of Fairfield, who is accused, jointly with Warden Harvey N. Gaylord, of conniving at extensive timber trespasses.

THE DELINEATOR for November Out To-day

¶ The Keynote of the new and greater Delineator for November is Novelty.

¶ In its Fashions the new order of things is evidenced on every page; in its illustrations of the present and coming Styles, Novelty of treatment lends much to the temptations of the modes themselves. 64 pages of the New Things from Paris, from New York, from wherever can be gathered the season's newest and best creations.

¶ Speaking in pages may not mean much to you. A better way to realize the bigness of the November Delineator is to know that it contains more pages devoted to fashions and dress topics than any two other magazines.

¶ Helen Berkeley-Loyd and M. Edouard La Fontaine, writing exclusively for this magazine, contribute papers this month that every woman in the land will wish to read—the real news of woman's dress; the final word of authority on what is to be during the coming months, which is awaited with eagerness each season by every woman who cares for her appearance.

¶ Then the color printing—a feature that is practically exclusive with The Delineator—for while one or two other publications print a few pages with an added color, this number contains 21 pages in color in addition to the regular full-color plates of fashions.

¶ The Delineator has always given the most in quality and in quantity for its subscription price—it is now giving more—much more—than ever before.

¶ Practically everything in this number is new—excepting its good old name. Besides the Fashions and the Household Departments, which have made The Delineator famous; besides its Children's Magazine, which is beyond comparison; besides its many special articles of helpfulness and interest, one great feature deserves the attention of every thinking woman and man:

¶ It is nearly two years now since The Delineator began its investigation of the Pure Food Question—the most thorough searching for facts, the most careful analysis of products ever conducted. Supplementing the work of the Government's experts, The Delineator has gone much further by establishing its own board of examiners and specialists who are investigating the different value of food products and beverages, their chemical analysis and correct or fictitious labeling.

¶ The results obtained by this department or laboratory enable the housekeeper to quickly and accurately decide for herself what is safe and wholesome food for daily home consumption.

¶ Readers of The Delineator have been regularly supplied with timely and most interesting articles on the subject. Among these is the series now running in each issue, entitled "Safe Foods and How to Get Them," written by that well-known authority, Mary Hinman Abel. In the November number the author treats of "Official Milk Inspection." The article is well illustrated by pictures and diagrams. If you want to know how a billion gallons of milk are treated annually in this country, Mrs. Abel's article will inform you.

¶ These specially prepared articles are to be a regular feature of The Delineator, and will contain, in part, some of the results of the investigations now carried on by the business department.

¶ That The Delineator has become an authority on the Food Question, all the world knows. No better evidence of this could be found than in the fact that it is frequently and favorably quoted. This, then, is another evidence—were one needed—of the great value of The Delineator to the American housekeeper, not only in the protection of her health, but to her material comfort as well.

MR. CARNEGIE APPEALS FOR A LEAGUE OF PEACE

Says Three Nations Banded Together Could Banish War.

ADDRESS AT ST. ANDREWS

Installed as Lord Rector for a Second Term — Degrees Conferred on Reid and Other Americans.

ST. ANDREWS, Oct. 17.—Never before had so many distinguished Americans directly participated in ceremonies connected with the inauguration of a rector of a British university as took part in the functions at St. Andrews, when Andrew Carnegie was installed as Lord Rector for a second term. Ambassador Reid, Charlemagne Tower, American Ambassador at Berlin; Bishop Potter of New York, and Dr. William J. Holland, Director of the Carnegie Museum at Pittsburg, occupied seats on the platform, and on them was conferred the honorary degree of Doctor of Laws, which was also bestowed on Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler, President of Columbia University, New York, in absentia.

The hall was crowded with scarlet-gowned undergraduates of both sexes, and the male students enlivened the proceedings with the usual chaff and songs. The entrance of Mr. Carnegie was the signal for an outburst of enthusiasm.

MR. CARNEGIE'S SPEECH.

In the course of his address Mr. Carnegie expressed the opinion that five nations, or even three, banded together in a league of peace, and inviting all other nations to join them, could banish all war in the future. In outlining a plan for a league of peace, Mr. Carnegie said:

"If the principal European nations were not free through conscription from the problem which now disturbs the military authorities of Britain, the lack of sufficient numbers willing to enter the man-slaying profession, we should soon hear the demand formulated for a league of peace among the nations. Five nations co-operated in quelling the recent Chinese disorders and rescuing their representatives in Peking. It is perfectly clear that these five nations could banish war. Suppose even three of them formed a league of peace—inviting all other nations to join—and agreed that since war in any part of the civilized world affects all nations, and often seriously; that no nation shall go to war, but shall refer international disputes to The Hague Conference or other arbitral body of peaceful settlement, the league agreeing to declare non-intercourse with any nation refusing compliance. Imagine a nation cut off to-day from the world. The league also might reserve to itself the right, where non-intercourse is likely to fail or has failed to prevent war, to use the necessary force to maintain peace, each member of the league agreeing to provide the needed forces, or money in lieu thereof, in proportion to her population or wealth.

"The Emperor of Russia called The Hague Conference, which gave us an international tribunal. Were King Edward or the Emperor of Germany or the President of France, acting for their Governments, to invite the nations to send their representatives to consider the wisdom of forming such a league, the invitation would no doubt be responded to and probably prove successful.

"The number that would gladly join such a league would be great, for the smaller nations would welcome the opportunity.
